Telephone Tax Protesters Petition Tribunal

A group of 1,000 Marin residents refusing to pay a portion of their federal taxes on their telephone bills to protest the Vietnam War last night asked a U.S. Supreme Court justice for an emergency injunction to prevent the Internal Revenue Service from collecting the money from members' bank accounts.

Alan Barnett of Mill Valley, Northern California coordinator for the telephone tax war protest, said today the organization opposes the collection at this time because a lawsuit to test the tax's constitutionality is in the courts.

After learning this week the IRS would begin attaching bank accounts, salaries and property of the protesters Monday, Barnett said the group wired Justice William O. Douglas and asked him to intervene.

Barnett said the tax protest movement, which began in Marin last May and has spread throughout the state, has set up trust funds in which members place the taxes they have declined to pay to the government. To date, he said, $20,000 has been collected and held "in escrow, so to speak" pending outcome of the suit, now on appeal to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. The suit was denied last September in Federal District Court in San Francisco. (The action charges the government levied the 10 per cent telephone tax in 1966 to support the war and claims it has no authority to levy a tax to support an undeclared war.)

"The government can take the taxes we are holding in trust if it can demonstrate the tax is valid and constitutional," Barnett said.

Similar suits by other telephone tax protest groups, which claim approximately 16,500 members throughout the state — 7,000 in the Bay Area alone — have been filed in Sacramento and Los Angeles.

In a related move, the Marin organization has asked all Marin banks to waive service charges of from $5 to $15 which are normally charged when tax liens are placed on accounts.

Barnett said only one bank with local offices, the Bank of Marin, has agreed not to charge such service fees against any war protester's accounts. He said some institutions have said they will accommodate individual customers, but make no general policy.

Barnett said the only bank which has declined to cooperate with the protestors, even on an individual basis, is Wells Fargo. He said, "We are asking for the fee waiver because we do not believe banks should charge people for their acts of conscientious objection to the war."

Laurence J. Hoge, Wells Fargo press relations officer, confirmed the IRS intention to begin collection next week. He said the government began to collect the protesters' taxes from banks last spring on a quarterly basis ("apparently hoping the service charges would discourage them"), but desisted when banks asked for an annual collection because of the paperwork created by quarterly collection.

Hogue said Wells Fargo intends to charge service fees to its customers involved in the movement because the liens cost the bank a great deal of money which it has no other way of recovering. "There is a lot of paperwork involved in a tax lien, whether it's for $5,000 or $2," he said. "When the IRS started collecting last spring in Berkeley, we were so busy with this that we had to pull tellers from our banks' windows to help out."

Even if the collection is not halted and some banks refuse to waive service charges, Barnett said the money in the trust fund will not be touched or turned over to the government until the antiwar group has exhausted all legal avenues of appeal.

WHOLESALE FOOD PRICES DECLINING

Drop In March; Government Also Reports A Hike In Unemployment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices for farm products and processed foods declined in March following steep increases in February, the government reported today. Another key report showed that unemployment in the nation rose 0.2 per cent last month.

An increase in industrial commodity prices more than offset price declines for farm products and commodities ready for the consumer market, resulting in a 0.1 per cent overall increase in the wholesalde price index, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said. But that was still down sharply from an 0.9 per cent increase in February and 0.8 per cent jumps in the two previous months.

The bureau said unemployment increased in March to 5.5 per cent of the labor force, from 5.7 per cent in February despite a sharp rise of 620,000 in the number of employed persons, total employment reached an all time high of 81.2 million.

Wholesale prices for farm products and processed foods and feeds -as the administration had predicted —declined 0.4 per cent during February before seasonal adjustment and 0.3 per cent when seasonal factors were figured in.

That was a sharp reversal from a 1.9 per cent increase in February, a 1.3 per cent advance in January and a 2 per cent jump in December. more

Foods ready for the consumer market showed a 1 per cent wholesale price decline before adjustment and a 0.7 per cent drop when seasonal factors were considered.

That compared with a 1.6 per cent unadjusted rise in February, and a 1.9 per cent adjusted increase the previous month.

But wholesale prices for industrial commodities continued their almost unbroken and steady climb upward. The 0.3 per cent increase in March,ipowever, however, down from the 0.5 per cent advances in the two previous months.

Wholesale prices tend to foreshadow hos prices will move at the retail level. Two weeks ago, the government's consumer price index reported the biggest monthly increase in grocery prices in 14 years. White House economists said, however, that food prices would likely turn down in coming months and today's wholesale price report gave weight to that prediction.

The BLS said that the wholesale index for consumer finished goods, which closely parallels the commodity component of the conssmer index, declined 0.3 per cent, largely because of a decline in wholesale prices of meats and fresh vegetables.

The index showed an 11.5 per cent drop in prices for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables in March, and a 2.1 per cent drop in livestock prices. But egg prices shot up 17.2 per cents and poultry prices increased 2.1 per cent.

But processed meats, poultry and fish prices went down 2.5 per cent while processed fruits and vegetables showed a 0.5 per cent wholesale price increase.

The BLS said that during the first four full months of President Nixon's Phase II price controls — December through March — the —theq wholesale price index rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 6 per cent. That compared to an annual rate of 4.6 per cent in the six months preceding the wage-price freeze last August and an an annual rate of 0.8 per cent during the freeze.

The March jump in the nation's workforce was the biggest one month gain since June 1967.

Senators Set Trip To China

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and his Republican counterpart, Hugh Scott, announced today they will visit the Peoples Republic of China for three weeks starting April 18.

"Our purpose," Mansfield and Scott said in a joint announcement, "will be ... hopefully to achieve a better understanding between our two countries."

The two leaders are taking up an invitation from Chinese leaders that President Nixon conveyed to them on his return from the historic visit to the mainland in February.

After Speaker Carl Albert complained that the House was being discriminated against, a similar invitation was extended to House Democratic and Republican Leaders Hale Boggs and Gerald R. Ford. They have not announced a date, but are expected to visit China in June.

Mansfield and Scott, referring to themselves in the third person initially, said in their three-paragraph announcement:

"The joint leadership announced today that they have accepted an invitation from the People's Republic of China to visit that country.

"They stated they would leave Washington April 16. It is anticipated that they will spend about three weeks visiting various cities, meeting with government officials, and visiting schools, hospitals, collective farms, industrial plants, and other points of interest.

"Our purpose will be to look, listen and learn and hopefully to achieve a better understanding between our two countries. It will be our intention to make a report to the Foreign Relations Committee upon our return."

Mansfield elaborated in talking with reporters: "What we'll attempt to do is to build on the foundation —the fragile foundation —which the President has undertaken."

Both Senate leaders are scholars of the Far East, and Scott is one of the nation's leading collectors of Oriental art. Mansfield was stationed with the Marines in China in 1921-22, was a professsor of Far Eastern history for 10 years, and went on a mission there in the mid-1940s on behalf of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The two will be accompanied by their wives and about six staff members, but no official representatives of the U.S. government. They will arrive in China April 18.

Save State's Environment, Reagan Says

New State Department Included In Proposals

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan declared today California can no longer tolerate a "deplete and be damned" philosophy and sketched a program to preserve the state's "priceless" environmental resources.

His proposals, which he termed "common sense," ranged from a "major" bond issue for parks and recreation to coastline legislation to a new Department of Environmental Protection.

Reagan said, "We have often carelessly and unnecessarily depleted our resources and polluted the water and air more than is nacessary ...

"We know we can no longer tolerate the philosophy of deplete and be damned— because quite simply, our natural resources constitute the single greatest asset we have to improve not only the quality of our own lives but the lives of the generations which will follow us," the governor declared.

Reagan released his statement here. The speech was scheduled to be delivered later to a luncheon of the Long Beach Joint Service Clubs.

"We deal today with three kinds of pollution—actual, hysterical and political," Reagan said. "The last two unnecessar-

Loc Ninh Falls; Threat To Saigon Is Increasing

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese troops today captured the town of Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, and laid siege to An Loc, 10 miles to the south, in a growing threat to Saigon. A band of Communist infiltrators cut Highway 1 only 15 miles from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport.

The United States sent hundreds of U.S. Air Force and Navy fighters against North Vietnam again today, and Communist reports in European newspapers said air raid sirens howled in Hanoi and people began digging new shelters against the possibility of U.S. raids there.

The Communists launched a widescale series of attacks in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon in what appeared to be the start of a major new offensive there. But headquarters in the Central Highlands denied reports of a major offensive there by North Vietnamese troops moving in from Cambodia.

Hanoi Radio reported 13 American planes had been shot down over North Vietnam, and the Viet Cong Radio broadcast a warning to President Nixon that he "must understand that to avenge the death of one kith and kin of a northerner (by U.S. air strikes) our southern brothers are determined to compel his (Saigon) clique to repay the crime five or 10 times." The U.S. command has reported the

Laird Says Northern Raids To Continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said today the United States would continue bombing North Vietnam and would not negotiate with the Communists until Hanoi withdrew its invasion forces from South Vietnam. "There is a continuing major violation of the DMZ taking place at this very minute," Laird told a Pentagon news conference.

"We have indicated a willingness to negotiate at all times, as long as there is a willingness (on the part of Hanoi) for serious negotiations," Laird told reporters. "But, of course, with this violation of the 1968 understandings, they would have to move back across the DMZ."

That was a reference to the so-called 1968 understandings whereby President Lyndon B. Johnson stopped widespread bombing of North Vietnam. U.S. officials said it was based on an understanding that Hanoi would not operate in the demilitarized zone, and not shell South Vietnamese cities, among other things.

Freeway Bus Lanes To Be Tried Evenings

A freeway lane exclusively for evening commuter buses between the Golden Gate and Richardson Bay bridges on Highway 101 will be set aside in a six-month test starting by midsummer.

The experiment is expected to shave up to 10 minutes travel time for bus commuters to points north of Mill Valley, Golden Gate Bridge District officials said. Buses to Sausalito and Mill Valley, however, will have to continue using the congested regular lanes in order to make scheduled stops and to exit at Shoreline Highway.

The exclusive lane will be "borrowed" from the opposite side of the freeway, and pylons will separate opposing traffic. Southbound traffic thus will have only two lanes.

The test may be extended to morning commute buses in late 1972, according to a statement by the state Business and Transportation Agency, which granted final approval yesterday for the test.

It said that a morning test was not feasible yet because part of the Waldo Grade has only three northbound lanes, but that this was scheduled for widening to four lanes within the 18 months.

The delay in southbound tests also will give the bridge district time to expand its bus fleet, which already is at its maximum capacity during the longer morning commute period.

Long-range plans by the district envision running buses on an exclusive right-of-way between the north end of the Waldo Grade and Novato, probably using the existing railroad right-of-way.

Budget Clears State Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A mammoth $7.88 billion version of Gov. Ronald Reagan's state budget—praised by no one and disowned by everybody—has been narrowly passed by the Assembly and sent to the Senate.

The spending program, which Democrats say contains a $57 million surplus, calls for $165 million in extra aid to local schools, a new attack on smog and substantial salary increases for state employes and higher education faculty members.

It also proposes what Republicans call "political" cuts in the staffs of GO Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke and in the state departments of Social Welfare and Finance.

The budget bill, which totaled 192 million more than Reagan asked for, cleared the Assembly Thursday on a 55-16 vote—only one vote more than the necessary two-thirds required for passage.

Seventeen Republicans reluctantly joined 38 Democrats in voting for the bill. They insisted they were doing so only to speed it to the Senate but

LBJ Hospitalized In Virginia—Chest Pains

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI)—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson was rushed to University of Virginia Hospital today suffering from chest pains, his second such seizure since experiencing a major heart attack in 1955.

Several hours after Johnson was admitted, Dr. Richard S. Crampton reported the 63-year-old ex-chief executive "is comfortable now and his condition is stable."

Crampton refused further comment on the case, but another doctor, heart specialist Dr. John Willis Hurst, was flown here from Atlanta and promised a statement later in the day.

Johnson was hit by the pains about 4 a.m., 14 hours after attending the funeral of former Tennessee Gov. Bufford Ellington, who collapsed and died of a heart attack Monday on a Florida golf course.

Following the Tennessee funeral, Johnson and his wife, Lady Bird, flew here in a new plane, purchased last week, to visit their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robb. Robb, a former Marine major, is a second-year student at University of Virginia law school.

Former Panther Bodyguard Shot

SAN JOSE (UPI)—An exconvict who once acted as a bodyguard for Black Panther Party leader Huey Newton and whose mother has frequently been seen with militant Angela Davis was shot to death by two gunmen Thursday.

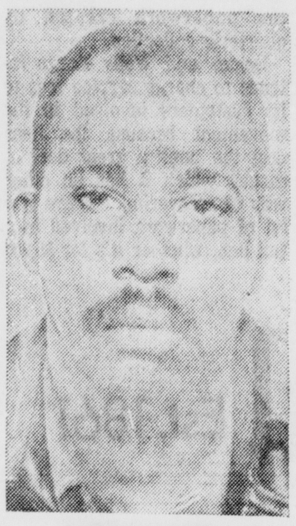
Police today were holding Richard Rodriguez, 24, of Baldwin Park, Calif., and Chester D. Ligons, 28, Los Angeles, in connection with the shooting.

Carr's lawyer, Richard Hodge, said Carr had been a close friend of "Soledad Brother" George Jackson, who died in a San Quentin prison outbreak last summer, and he once acted as a bodyguard for Black Panther leader Huey Newton.



JAMES E. CARR
Shot to Death

His mother-in-law, Mrs. Joan Hammer, has often been seen strolling in the neighborhood with Miss Davis, on trial here for murder-kidnap conspiracy in the 1970 Marin County courthouse shooting which killed a judge and three gunmen.

"I can think of lots of reasons why someone would want to kill him, people from the far left, the far right, and in between, because he was a very controversial leader in prison," said Hodge.

"Some people thought he was a CIA agent, others thought he was super radical."

Carr, who acted as a bodyguard to Newton when the two were at the California Men's Colony East at San Luis Obispo, was shot down in a rifle and shotgun ambush at the rear of the Hammer home as he prepared to leave for work.

Democratic Campaign Warming Up

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Antiwar demonstrators, protesting U.S. air strikes in Vietnam, Thursday heckled President Nixon for ordering the bombing and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey for supporting it.

While 100 demonstrators picketed outside the Philadelphia Civic Center, about 20 inside shouted "Stop the bombing" as Nixon spoke to 10,000 Roman Catholic educators and students.

Nixon did not interrupt his address —promising more federal aid to parochial schools — to mention the war or to acknowledge the hecklers.

Humphrey was interrupted during a speech to 300 elderly citizens in Philadelphia as the 1968 Democratic presidential nominee campaigned for Pennsylvania's April 25 primary in his bid for another chance against Nixon.

Humphrey acknowledged the antiwar sentiment by declaring, "I say let's end this war and get on with taking care of the people in this room."

On other political fronts, Sen. George S. McGovern got a warm reception in California, Rep. Shirley Chisholm pledged to fight for "a free and open" Democratic National Convention, and Eunice Kennedy Shriver announced her support of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie. Mrs. Shriver, the sister of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and wife of former U.S. ambassador to France Sargent Shriver, became co-chairwoman of Muskie's $125-a-plate fund-raising dinner planned in Washington April 17.

Mrs. Chisholm told a Boston news conference that some Democrats had indicated women and blacks would not be seated in proportion to their strength. "There is no doubt about it," she said. "With or without delegates, I'm going to be felt at the national convention in July."

Public Colleges Can Credit Courses

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger ruled Thursday that community colleges can grant credit for courses completed in private, profit-seeking schools without violating the state constitution.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Historical Tomb

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vatican archeologists said today they have identified the burial site of St. Calixtus as the second oldest papal tomb unearthed so far.

They said only the reputed tomb of St. Peter, located beneath the original St. Peter's Basilica and identified in 1950, is considered older.

The discovery was announced after years of study, some of it delayed until the Vatican purchased land over and around the Catacombs of St. Calixtus to the north of Rome.

Steps Up Bombings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) —The Irish Republican Army (IRA) today launched its most intensive bombing and shooting campaign since before Easter despite calls for a truce and a conciliatory gesture by the new British-imposed ruled of Northern Ireland.

William Whitelaw, Britain's Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, announced the immediate release of 73 detained IRA suspects in a move to ease tension and speed an end to violence in the province, and expressed hope it may mean the phasing out of internment without trial.

Whitelaw also said the prison ship Maidstone in Belfast Harbor would no longer house internees.

Nuclear Round

HELSINKI (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union held a 90-minute session of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) today to further the work towards a nuclear arms treaty.

Conference sources said there was a serious approach to the issues, with both delegations thoroughly hard at work to reach agreement.

Nixon Heart Plea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon called today for a renewed attack on heart disease, saying the nation's No. 1 killer should be challenged by preventive measures beginning in childhood.

"It is imperative that we coordinate our research effort, and that not only governments but private citizens join in this endeavor," Nixon said in a statement.

The Senate meanwhile was expected to pass legislation today to authorize a $1.5 billion federal program to research and treat heart, lung and blood diseases.

Executions Stayed

ANKARA (UPI) — The constitutional court granted stays of execution today for three men condemned to death last October of terrorism charges, leaving it to parliament to decide their fate.

The death sentence against Deniz Gezmis, 25, Huseyin Inan, 24, and Yusef Aslan, 26, provoked the kidnaping recently of three civilian technicians by terrorists trying to force the government to spare the three condemned men.

In a siege and gun battle eight days ago northeast of Ankara, the three hostages — two British and one Canadian — and nine of 10 kidnappers were killed.

Rowers Dead?

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — A police inspector said today he feared John Fairfax and his girl friend, Sylvia Cook, who are rowing across the Pacific, may have perished in cyclonic weather which lashed the Queensland coast last week.

Author Attacked

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet press today published a lengthy literary attack on author Alexander Solzhenitsyn which accused him of hating the Soviet Union and loving "German militarism."

Trud, the mass-circulation trade union newspaper, devoted half its four-page morning edition to reprinting a Polish review of Solzhenitsyn's new novel about World War I, "August 1914."

"As we expected, the book was embraced in the West as a work whose value — and we should add this is a political value — is its hatred of the Soviet Union," the critique said. ". . . Russian soldiers and officers are depicted like a gang of marauders.

"The book is full of numerous insulting sentences about Russia and Slavs, while the author describes the Kaiser's Germany and even its armed forces in a very attractive light."

Break With Jrdan

Sadat announced yesterday he was breaking all ties with Jordan as a counter to Hussein's plan for a Jordanian federation.

Students Told: Youth Our Hope

BERKELEY (UPI) — French explorer and oceanographer Jacques Cousteau has called on youth to lead a "complete sociological revolution."

"Our only hope is you," Cousteau told a University of California audience of 10,000 Thursday at the Charter Day celebration on the campus.

"May you remain uncorrupted when you enter the system," he urged the students at the ceremony marking the university's 104th birthday.

"The fight for survival calls for complete sociological revolution," he said.

It will be necessary, the underwater pioneer said, to construct "the stable society," one that will throw away the economic and political concepts used in the industrialized nations of the world.

"Nationalism will make no sense" in the new society, Costeau said.

"An uncontrolled economic growth, like cancer, cannot be justified," he said. "There is an urgent need for international controls, at least among the 20 nations responsible for 80 per cent of the earth's pollution."

Cousteau referred to the ocean as a "universal sewer where all pollution ends up."

"Above all, stop the population explosion," he urged the audience.

Cousteau said the cost of eliminating world pollution would be six per cent of the gross national product of all the countries in the world.

Cocktail Parties Will Be Watched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Planning a cocktail party to drum up support for your favorite presidential or congressional candidate? Uncle Sam will want a full report if the cost exceeds $100.

Under a law that went into effect today, the neighborhood cocktail party and countless other ways of contributing to federal candidates are subject to strict disclosure provisions.

The reporting regulations are designed to end the widely used practice of setting up "dummy committees" in Washington to fill campaign war chests with anonymous donations. The Federal Election Campaign Act also sets a limit on the amount of money candidates or parties may spend for political advertising on television, radio, newspapers, magazines and certain telephone equipment.

The law stipulates that committees and candidates must make reports to Washington and state election officials several times each year identifying anyone by name, address, occupation and place of business who gives more than $100 in a calendar year.

Individuals who make campaign expenditures on their own, without the sanction of a committee or candidate, also must file a report to the appropriate officials.

Forms and detailed instructions have been prepared by the comptroller general who monitors presidential campaigns. Congressional candidates and committees will file with the House clerk or the secretary of the Senate who have prepared manuals and reporting forms.

City-County Group Picks Middle Road

Members of the City-County Planning Council of Marin decided last night to concentrate on the "middle" of three possible alternatives for their body's future role in Marin planning matters, according to Larskpur City Councilman Benton A. Sifford Jr.

Emphasis will be on ways to use the council as a voluntary review agency for all city and county planning, to press for uniformity in fleshing out the countywide general plan now being prepared.

The council discussed an extensive "where do we go next" report from a three-member ad hoc subcommittee headed by Sifford. He reported the council was pressed for time at its Civic Center meeting because of the 10:30 p.m. curfew, and referred the proposal back to his subcommittee for further development.

Sifford said council members asked revisions of the proposal that San Rafael, Novato and county representatives be given "weighted" voting powers. The council informally decided against seeking state legislation giving the council additional enforcement powers over local planning agencies, but also decided the council's present purely advisory role must be expanded.

After more discussion, the city-county council will refer its proposed future status to the county and member cities for review, Sifford said.

Trial Shows Miss Davis Owned Guns

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Angela Davis has been tied indisputably to ownership of a paratroop carbine and a Browning automatic pistol used to stage the San Rafael seizure of hostages. It was the most damaging evidence produced so far at her kidnap-murder trial.

A gunshop clerk told the jury yesterday that the former UCLA philosophy teacher bought the collapsible semi-automatic rifle which Jonathan Jackson, 17, pulled from his raincoat to commandeer hostages from a courtroom.

Another gun salesman said Miss Davis purchased the pistol which Jackson, the brother of "Soledad Brother" George Jackson, handed to convict James McClain to set off the bloody chain of events in which Judge Harold Haley was killed.

In her opening statement, Miss Davis has said, "It was no secret that I was the owner of the weapons."

She went on to say that "the evidence will prove that while I did purchase guns, I did nothing to furnish Jonathan Jackson or anyone else with the weapons which were utilized during the action of Aug. 7, 1970."

But the jury appeared impressed by proof that she bought the guns, particularly the M1 carbine which resembles a machinegun and which witnesses have testified Jonathan Jackson constantly waved and jabbed at hostages and officers throughout the morning.

There will be subsequent testimony that two days before the San Rafael shooting she bought the shotgun which was sawed off and attached by tape to Judge Haley's neck.

Homeowners For Measure A

Directors of the Oak Manor Homeowners Association, in the unincorporated area bordering on Fairfax, unanimously voted last night to support Measure A on the Fairfax city ballot Tuesday.

C. F. Stobbe of 545 Oak Manor Drive, homeowner group president, explained that the directors are opposed to more high-density development in the Fairfax area, and support the initiative measure designed to rezone the Marin Town and Country Club for commercial recreation.

The initiative, if it passes, would block plans for apartment development of the log-time playground area.

WAR

loss of three planes over the north.

All indications were the U.S. air strikes would increase. The carrier Constellation arrived off Vietnam today and went into action, the first time four carriers have operated in the Tonkin Gulf in four years. Pentagon sources said a fifth carrier may e dispatched to China Station. Military sources said another squadron of F105 fighter-bombers also were dispatched to Asia. B52s also were recently reinforced.

With the war increasing in intensity the official South Vietnamese government television station in Saigon warned that the current fighting, "if it becomes decisive, could cause deaths on each side of up to one, two or three divisions." A division on each side is generally put at 10,000 men.

UPI correspondent Leon Daniel reported from An Loc today that the town of 40,000 and the firebase at Quan Loi, three miles to tha east, were under artillery, mortar and rocket attack but that U.S. F4s and Spectre gunships from Thailand were inflicting heavy casualties on the North Vietnamese.

Saigon military sources have reported four North Vietnamese divisions poised along the Cambodian border although only one has been committed to action, in the Loc Ninh area.6They called the threat to Saigon the greatest since the 1968 Tet offensive when there was heavy street fighting in Saigon itself.

The bulk of the Communist forces were reported about 60 miles north of Saigon but small Communist units cut Highway 13 between Saigon and An Loc in many places.

Daniel said the defenders of An Loc and Quan Loi took grim pleasure in denying Hanoi Radio reports the bases already had fallen, but it was clear the situation there was serious.

REAGAN

ily frighten our people, but what is worse, they dilute and vitiate our legitimate efforts to preserve the planet."

He criticized "some" in the news media who accept "any horror story ... until some of us find ourselves reading letters from frightened children who believe they will smother in poisoned air before they finish school or live in a desert of stumps with all the forests gone the way of the dinosaur."

Reagan also declared that environmental controls must not bring "economic development to a sudden and catastrophic halt."

—Enactment this year of legislation designed to preserve the coastline with the emphasis on local controls.

—Creation of a Department of Environmental Protection, including a new solid waste management program and encompassing present air and water pollution control efforts. A similar proposal was turned down last year by the legislature.

—A major park and recreation bond issue to be presented to the voters in 1974. Reagan vetoed a $250 million parks bond issue last year.

—Establishment of a new Power Plant Siting Council to consider the environmental impact of proposed power plants.

—Enlargement of the statewide smog control program, including state financial assistance to local government.

—Passage this year of emergency legislation to provide for regulation of logging on private land. An appellate court last year invalidated previous regulations.

—Production of a comprehensive Environmental Goals and Policy Report to identify areas of "critical environmental concern" and provide planning guidelines.

Reagan also reiterated his belief that environmental protection is primarily a local responsibility.

POLICY

toward the invasion since the Hanoi attack was launched eight days ago, Laird used tough language.

But he stopped short of saying there had been a complete abandonment of the 1968 decision to stop full-scale bombing, and left open the question of how deep into North Vietnam U.S. bombers would operate.

Hundreds of American planes —Air Force and Navy jets — were out today over North Vietnam. Air raid sirens even sounded in Hanoi, according to some Communist reports in European newspapers, but U.S. officials have given no indication the planes will range that far north.

In response to repeated questions whether the bombing halt was off,Laird would only say: "We are bombing north of the DMZ. We are bombing military targets south of the DMZ, in the DMZ, and north of the DMZ at this time."

But he reaffirmed the U.S. intention to keep withdrawing its ground troops from Vietnam.

Laird said U.S. support to the South Vietnamese forces battling the Communists would be limited to aircraft and naval gunfire.

Laird said the South Vietnamese "have the knowhow, they have the equipment and they have tha capability to pursue an effective ground campaign in their country."

BUDGET

warned they were giving "no commitments" to endorse it after a final compromise version is written by an Assembly-Senate conference committee.

(Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, was listed as either absent or not voting.)

Sen. Randolph Collier, Democratic chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he believes a finished budget will be sent to Reagan by May 1, two months earlier than usual.

During Assembly debate everyone, including its Democratic sponsor Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr. of San Francisco, disavowed the budget but urged it be approved to hasten a final compromise.

The proposal represents a billion-dollar increase over the state's current spending level and would take effect July 1. The largest single expenditure, constituting 26.2 per cent of the total, would go for "human relations"—a vast classification ranging from welfare and public health to prisons.

Local public schools would receive 25.5 per cent while state colleges and the University of California would get another 9.5 per cent.

Brown said if he were not the legal author of the bill, which Reagan disowned on Wednesday, "I would have considerable difficulty supporting this document which leaves so many unmet needs."

Major highlights of the budget included these:

Schools—An extra $165 million in state aid to local schools over the current level, pushing total state school support to just over $2 billion. Reagan asked for $65 million but the Ways and Means Committee upped the ante another $100 million. The committee earmarked Reagan's sum generally for urban schools while the additional $100 million would be spent for hiring new teachers.

Salary—A $164 million cost-of-living pay raise for state civil servants and higher education faculties. Reagan called for a 5 per cent raise for state workers and 7.5 per cent for the faculties. The committee kicked it up to 7.5 per cent and 12.5 per cent, respectively.

Cuts—A transfer to other agencies of 34 direct and indirect employes of Reinecke. Also, 37 Department of Finance auditors would be shifted to state Controller Houston Flournoy. A battery of attorneys and appeal hearing officers would be taken from the welfare department and moved to the attorney general's office and the state Office of Administrative Procedure. Republicans denounced the cuts as "political."

Smog—A $10.4 million experimental smog control program for the Los Angeles air basin requiring motorists to submit to annual inspections at roadside and the disconnecting of their vehicle's vacuum spark advance. Brown said he was "not optimistic" that program would remain in the budget.

Education —An additional $11.5 million for UC and the state colleges over what Reagan sought, including $6.3 million for the University. Total higher education expenditures were estimated at $749.8 million.

Two Projects

CANDIDATE MAILS OUT FREE COFFEE

Ruegg has sent out a letter containing a small packet with a single serving of instant coffee. He explained he wasn't sending along cream and sugar because he is conducting a "low budget campaign."

Court Hits Developer's House Plan

Yet another blow has been dealt developer Stanley W. Taylor in his seven-year battle to build nine homes over Richardson Bay in Strawberry.

A Marin Superior Court judge has refused to overturn the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission's unanimous denial of his plans to build in the 300 block of East Strawberry Drive.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson on Tuesday denied the contention of Taylor and nine coplaintives that the commission's decision was unsupported by evidence. "The determinations set forth in the staff recommendation are not only supported, but in my judgment, compelled by the evidence which was before the commission," Wilson said.

Before the rare unanimous decision Jan. 6, the commission was presented with the longest recommendations for denial in its history.

Taylor had argued the only way he could build on the lots was to construct the homes over the bay, but the commission told him he had created his own problem and suggested he resubdivide his land to move the dwellings inland.

Wilson also denied two other contentions: title compelled the commission to grant permission and the application was automatically approved because the commission failed to act within 90 days after receiving it.

Wilson ruled that Taylor had no privilege through ownership and title that other owners of bay land don't have and said the application was considered in time.

Taylor claimed the application was submitted Aug. 17, 1971, but Wilson said the commission didn't think it was complete enough to consider until Oct. 13.

The judge said he didn't think the application was ever completed. "The incompleteness and indefinite nature of the application was one of the reasons it failed to win approval," he said.

Group Formed To Fight Span

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Civic leaders formed an organization Wednesday to campaign against the proposed construction of another bridge across San Francisco Bay.

Cyril Magnin, speaking for the organization, said a so-called Southern Crossing would "divert many thousands of passengers" from the Bay Area Rapid Transit District."

The proposed bridge would run from a point south of San Francisco to Alameda and compete with rail service that BART hopes to start operating within a year.

Harrassment Testimony At Hearing For Deputy

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)—Joel Honey, then the commander of antiriot forces in the Isla Vista student quarter, grabbed a handcuffed prisoner by the hair and hit him in the face, a deputy sheriff testified Thursday.

The deputy, appearing at a Civil Service Commission hearing into Honey's dismissal from the sheriff's department, also said Honey made no objection to the use of slingshots against rioters.

Honey, a former sheriff's captain, was fired by Sheriff John Carpenter, on charges that included unprofessional behavior as commander of a seven-agency law enforcement group at the Isla Vista riots in 1970.

Sgt. John Da Foe testified he saw Honey approach a handcuffed young man, in the custody of two Los Angeles County deputies, near the Bank of America during the June riot.

"I observed Capt. Honey walk up, grab him by the hair, jerk his head up and strike him in the face," Da Foe said.

Da Foe said he did not report the incident right away because he thought the Los Angeles county deputies would, and he was afraid that Honey, a superior officer in his own department "would hold it against me" and harm his career.

He said he used the slingshot on a number of occasions, buying marbles for ammunition. Other Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo County deputies also carried and used them, he said.

The slingshots were used openly, he indicated, and niether Honey nor any other officer issued any orders against them.

The slingshots were used to keep demonstrators "out of effective throwing disance" when deputies were besieged by rioters hurling rocks, bottles and firebombs, he said.

Socialite's Home Hit; Valuable Art Is Taken

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two men invaded the fashionable Pacific Heights home of socialite Maryon Davies Lewis Thursday night and took loot worth thousands of dollars after one of them raped the maid.

Mrs. Lewis told police she, her 15-year-old daughter and the blonde maid were forced to undress by the men. One of the men then insisted on a tour of the home to fin a non-existent "safe."

Mrs. Lewis, daughter of the late Ralph K. Davies, who was chairman of the board of American President Lines, said that during the naked tour the man alternately told her she was beautiful and a "fascist pig."

She said the man was armed with a pistol and said he had a $150-a-day heroin habit.

The gunman was black and the other robber was a white man with hippie-length hair. They were accompanied by an attractice brown-haired woman they called "Leslie."

The victims were bound with nylon stockings and freed themselves in about 15 minutes. Police said there was no trace of the assailants in the swank neighborhood.

Officer Paul Coupland said the loot included several art objects, including an 18-inch jade alligator. Mrs. Lewis said the alligator was one of two in the world and the other was at the M. H. de Young Memorial Museum in Golden Gate Park.

"It was likeR&a dream...everything was in slow motion," Mrs. Lewis later told police.

Dash Of Water Causes Wreck

Joan Lela Weiss, 36, of 375 Molino Avenue, Mill Valley, has been treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael for possible whiplash suffered in a two-car crash on Highway 101.

Her car was northbound on the Irwin Street on-ramp in San Rafael at 9:10 a.m. Wednesday when a passing car threw water on the windshield, cutting off her vision, the California Highway Patrol reported. Her auto then hit a car belonging to Jean Palley Tipper, 26, of San Francisco, according to patrolmen.

Assembly Stalls On Equal Rights

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A women's lib group has accused an Assembly committee of "evading the whole question" after the panel shuffled off to another committee a proposal to ratify the "equal rights" amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Kathleen Green, legislative "chairperson" for the Sacramento chapter of the National Organization for Women, described the unanimous action by the Assembly Rules Committee as a "setback" for the measure by Assemblyman Walter Karabian, R-Monterey Park.

"They're evading the whole question," she declared.

The committee sent the measure to the Judiciary Committee Thursday after Assemblyman Ray Johnson, R-Chico, acting chairman of Rules, said the panel wanted to "know more about" the resolution.

He said the Judiciary Committee should conduct a full hearing into the matter to assure that there is nothing in it to cause "embarrassment" to the legislature.

It was the second legislative action in as many days on the proposal. A similar resolution by Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, was defeated Wednesday by the Senate Rules Committee on a 2-2 vote after one lawmaker called it a "Minnie Mouse" amendment.

A delegation of 20 to 30 women activists attending the brief hearing Thursday were upset by the Assembly committee's action. One woman said it was proof women were discriminated against.

Karabian, however, disagreed with the women's lib group, saying that the action was not a setback for the measure and would focus more public attention on the women's rights issue.

He said a hearing by the Judiciary Committee would provide an opportunity "to put to rest suspicions and concern" about the legislation and predicted the panel would approve the legislation.

The measure would approve the proposed 27th amendment to the U.S. Constitution, guaranteeing women equal rights with men. Three-fourths of the 50 states must ratify it to become law. Karabian said 11 states have done so already.

In addition to Johnson, Assemblymen Larry E. Townsend, D-Torrance, Leo J. Ryan, D-Burlingame, Robert H. Burke, R-Huntington Beach, and Ernest N. Mobley, R-San ger, voted to send the measure to the Judiciary Committee. Assemblymen John Burton, D-San Francisco, committee chairman, and John Quimby, D-San Bernardino, were absent.

Connecticut Turns Down Rights Bill

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Connecticut Thursday became the second state to reject the U.S. constitutional amendment to grant women equal rights.

The action came when the House of Representatives voted 83-77 against ratification. A minimum of 89 votes, a majority of the 177-member chamber, was necessary for passage.

"The male chauvinist pigs win again," Rep. Addo E. Bonetti, a Democrat from Torrington, said as he left the chamber.

"Sex discrimination started when Eve conned Adam into biting the apple and man has had to pay ever since," said Rep. John V. Cassidento, New Haven Democrat. "Only a darn fool would vote for this thing."

Most of those arguing against ratification, including 10 of the 18 women in the House, said they felt the voters of Connecticut should have a chance to express their views on the amendment in a referendum before legislators are called upon to vote.

Thus far, 10 states have ratified the amendment. Oklahoma previously rejected it.

New Sterilization Methods Revealed

DETROIT (UPI)—The failure of voluntary birth control to reduce world population growth could result in compulsory sterilization programs or other extremes, the president of the American Association of Planned Parenthood physicians said Thursday.

"We hope that the restraint of population growth can come about through voluntary means; but if it does not, involuntary methods will be used," Dr. Donald Minkler told an interviewer at the Association's 10th annual meeting.

He said governments may force mandatory sterilization or impose tax systems that reward small families and penalize large ones.

Many doctors believe it will be necessary to have compulsory sterilization in parts of the world where the population already is unmanageable and where voluntary birth control has been unsuccessful, Minkler said.

In papers presented at the meeting, attended by 300 physicians from the United States, Canada, Mexico and India, doctors described new methods of sterilizing men and women.

Dr. Joseph E. Davis of New York, president of the Association for Voluntary Sterilization, revealed the development of a mechanical "on-and-off" faucetlike male sterilization device.

Davis said a miniscule faucet-type valve, made of gold and stainless steel, could be implanted in the sperm-carrying tubes either in the "off" or "on" position. The switch could be reversed without difficulty at any future time, he said.

Dr. Clifford R. Wheeless Jr., associate professor of gynecology-obstetrics of the Woman's Clinic at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, described a new method of female sterilization involving the sealing of the fallopian tubes under one small abdominal incision. He said the operation could be performed under local anesthesia in just 15 minutes at a cost of only $125.

Rohnert Park's Population Up

The Rohnert Park population has increased by 16 per cent in 10 months to a total of 7,450 persons as of Feb. 1.

A ROMANTIC SETTING

Russ Trip A Different Ballgame

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — By all visible signs, the State Department is right in the middle of the action in preparations for the U.S.-Moscow summit.

Just how much this stems from a deliberate White House effort to compensate the department for its less than central role in the Peking trip and just how much its involvement results from the logical course of events under different circumstances is debatable.

Through the secretary of state, the President has directed Martin Hillenbrand, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, to assemble the necessary briefing papers and coordinate preparations within the National Security Council system. Both Hillenbrand and Secretary of State William P. Rogers have met at least twice each with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin specifically to discuss the May 22 Moscow trip.

Also, upon presidential directive, Hillenbrand last week consulted with the permanent members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels. There will be at least one other presummit consultation effort with European allies by State Department officials, and immediately after the trip, on May 30-31, Secretary of State Rogers will attend the NATO ministerial meeting in Bonn to give his colleagues postcript details of the visit.

State also prepared the briefing materials for the Peking Trip, although the fact was kept relatively quiet because of the administration's concern for secrecy and leaks on that particular trip.

However, it was not Rogers but presidential aide Dr. Henry Kissinger who made the crucial advance trips to Peking and sat in on virtually every important meeting that took place during the seven day visit.

In many ways the Moscow trip constitutes an entirely different ball game. There is much less need for secrecy. Diplomatic relations are long standing and ambassadorial chats here and in Moscow are easily arranged. There are a number of ongoing negotiations in such areas as arms control, trade, incidents at sea, space, and health.

While many of these involve other departments, such as defense and commerce, it is state which is charged with working out a negotiating plan and the modalities and which has the files and apparatus to do the coordinating.

This latter task leads one State Department official to comment wryly that the "worst problem in a democracy is not so much negotiating with the other side as reconciling views within our own government."

In any case while the Peking trip essentially focused on one issue, making it more easily a one-man job, the Moscow trip involves too many subjects and departments and technicalities to do without the machinery of the State Department. In the White House the National Security Council has only three or four staff specialists in European affairs.

"I just don't think there was any choice on this trip," comments one senior State Department official.

"Peking was about as aznormal as landing on the moon," says another. "We're back into the normal pattern — that's all."

State had been working on preparations for the Moscow trip long before specific requests began to flow in from the White House — "As we would normally for any high level meeting," says one official matter of factly.

Investment Executive Will Fight Injunction

Robert W. Pollack of Black Point, president of United Financial Group Inc., an overseas investment firm, said yesterday he is readying an appeal of a federal injunction halting the corporation's dealings.

Pollack said a brief is expected to be filed in the Ninth District Court of Appeals in San Francisco within the next two weeks and a decision is expected within 90 days.

The injunction, granted in February by U.S. District Court Judge Robert C. Belloni in Portland, stemmed from a complaint filed by the Securities and Exchange Commission charging Pollock's firm several subsidiary organizations and company officers of fraud and deceit in the sale of stocks and other securities.

A bid by Pollock to stay receivership of the company was denied in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals last month, and attorney William E. Tassock of Portland was appointed receiver.

Pollock also faces suits totaling $1.5 million filed by European investors who claimed their investments weren't being properly handled.

THE DRIVER SURVIVES

Mrs. Phyllis A. Britt of Raleigh, N.C. has a lot to be thankful for today. She escaped serious injury yesterday when the large truck rig loaded with sand overturned on her car in Raleigh. Brooklyn Mobster Assassinated While Celebrating His Birthday

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joseph (Crazy Joe) Gallo who led a bloody war in the 1960s for control of the Brooklyn rackets, was slain early today in gangland-style as he celebrated his 43rd birthday with his family.

Gallo was shot three times, in the back, buttocks and elbow, before the eyes of his wife of less than a month, sister and an 11-year-old daughter by an earlier marriage as they sat in a crowded dining room at Umberto's Clam House in lower Manhattan.

Police Sgt. Henry Colin said Gallo's bodyguard, Peter (The Greek) Diapioulis, was also shot. He was reported in fair condition at Beekman Downtown Hospital.

Colin said a lone assassin entered the restaurant at about 5:20 a.m., walked to Gallo's table and began shooting. Gallo, mortally wounded, staggered up from his chair and out to Hester Street where he collapsed.

A revolver believed to be the murder weapon was found in the street, Colin said.

Gallo was one of three brothers who challenged the supremacy of the "family" of Joseph Profaci over the Brooklyn underworld and sparked a three-year gang war which left 14 dead, four injured and four missing.

The feud ended after Profaci died of cancer in 1962 when the Gallo and Profaci families were absorbed into the family reputedly headed by Joseph Colombo Sr.

Gallo was known to be a rival of Colombo and was questioned after Colombo was shot and critically wounded at an Italian-American Unity Day Rally last summer by a Negro assassain.

The slain mobster was released from prison last year after serving nine years of a 7 1-2 to 14 1-2 year sentence for attempted extortion. When he was sentenced in 1961, the judge termed him "a menace to society."

Gallo was married to brunette dental assistant Sina Essary last month at the Manhattan townhouse of actor Jerry Grbach, whose wife was helping the racketeer write his autobiography. He had been divorced by his first wife, who bore him his daughter, Lisa, while he was in prison.

When he was shot, Gallo was sitting with Lisa, his wife, his sister Camelia Fiorella, Diapioulis and a friend, Edith Russo. Only Diapioulis and Gallo were hit, but patrons scattered, knocking over tables and chairs, when the shots rang out.

Gallo had been on parole since his release from the Ossining Correction Facility (formerly Sing Sing Prison). Prior to his 1961 conviction, he had been arrested 23 times, convicted four, but had spent only 20 days behind bars.

Gallo had also been imprisoned in a penitentiary in Auburn, N.Y. where he became friendly with black inmates and in 1963 led a protest when a white barber refused to cut a Negro's hair.

After his release he reportedly urged that blacks be taken into organized crime families. His close rapport with blacks made Gallo a prime suspect in the wounding of Colombo, whose assailant was a black man who was shot and killed by an unidentified person minutes after he gunned down Colombo.

After Gallo's release, he told newsmen he had retired from the mob and was wriing his memoirs, but police sources said he still was active in south Brooklyn rackets to some degree.

Big Food Chains' Prices Probed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The Cost of Living Council has launched pricing investigations of 11 major food chains, several large meat packers and 25 manufacturing companies, the deputy director of operations for the council in Washington said today.

The investigations were initiated in a search for "economic stabilization program violators," Bert M. Concklin said in remarks prepared for delivery to a seminar sponsored by the Kansas City Bar Association, the University of Kansas Law School and the Internal Revenue Service.

"We are directing compliance checks in industry sectors that are exerting the greatest inflationary pressures as evidenced by the wholesale and consumer price indices and other indicators," Concklin said. "These include retail food, wholesale meat, lumber, metals, machinery and equipment, and health services."

Without specifying the names of the potential violators, Concklin said the investigations being conducted by IRS compliance officials included:

Audits of 11 food retailers with annual sales of over $50 million who exceeded their allowable profit margins, according to the first quarterly reports submitted to the price commission.

Examinations or pricing practices of several large meat packers and a restudy of the structure of the meat delivery chain from on-the-hoof to the retail level.

Study of the pricing actions taken by 25 manufacturing companies with annual revenues over $100 million which fail to seek price approvals or to file quarterly reports with the Price Commission.

Concklin said more than 500 reports from companies are being screened to determine if they have increased profit margins illegally.

Innocent Plea To Car Theft

John Martin Green, 21, of San Anselmo has pleaded innocent to charges of car theft and carrying a concealed weapon, a misdemeanor.

He was ordered to return to Marin Superior Court on June 5 for a jury trial.

Green is accused of taking an Austin-Healy parked in Fairfax March 6. He reportedly drove to Kentfield where he parked in a residential driveway and was seen placing a gun in his waistband.

Driver Hurt

Patricia Gail Hall, 34, of 9 Mesa Road, Point Reyes Station, was treated at West Marin Medical Center for facial cuts and a broken collarbone suffered when her car left Sir Francis Drake Boulevard west of Inverness at 5:35 p.m. Wednesday and skidded into a ditch, the California Highway Patrol reported.

New Mintkeeper Is A Remodeler

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—There is a new housekeeper in the Old Mint and she wants to remodel—to the tune of about $4 million over the next five years.

Mary Brooks, director of the United States Mint, took over the century-old historical building Wednesday from Thomas Hannon of the General Services Administration.

"I've remodeled everything that I've ever gotten my hands on," Mrs. Brooks said.

When she is finished with the building Mrs. Brooks hopes to have a restored facility housing both an education attraction — a museum dedicated to western silver and gold — and the center of the Treasury Department's numismatic services.

Garden Planting Urged By Senator

WASHINGTON (UPI) —One way to fight inflation, according to Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., is for every American family which is able to plant a vegetable garden this summer.

Allen offered a resolution in the Senate urging such action, saying such gardens "can not only help the American family fight inflation, but also can insure the family better nutrition and the benefits of healthful exercise."

School Budget Cuts Proposed

An advisory "supercommittee' of citizens has told the San Anselmo School District board how it can avoid a projected $130,000 budget deficit for 1972-73: instigate sweeping personnel cutbacks and a salary freeze.

The supercommittee — composed of chairmen of six study committees appointed last December to study district operation — submitted its final list of possible solutions to the financial dilemma, including among other things, freezing salaries for a year, firing 11 teachers and eliminating the position of assistant superintendent.

In all, the report allows for about $190,000 in "priority recommendation" cuts. But, the report notes, "as many items as possible (were listed) to give the board the greatest number of options for its consideration."

The report estimated that $45,000 could be saved by the district through freezing salary step increases for a year; $88,000 by cutting 11 teachers; $8,000 by replacing the assistant superintendent job with a "fiscal clerk" and $21,000 by cutting the head librarian and two assistants.

The report urged only one principal for the district's two junior high schools, Red Hill and Hidden Valley. This move would save the district $15,400, a figure which allows "for extra clerical help."

The supercommittee report also suggested parent, teacher and student involvement in school decision-making; continued support of special education programs, and establishment of a permanent citizens advisory committee.

As a "second priority recommendation," the report urged sale of Isabel Cook School — distributing those pupils to other district schools — and the consideration of Yolansdale School closure.

These are second-priority suggestions, the report said, because "their net immediate fiscal advantage is ... small and cannot be predicted accurately, and because they could probably not be implemented in an effective way by September 1972."

The six committee chairmen voted unanimously on all but two issues. One opposed and another abstained on the question of cutting the head librarian, and the chairman split on the question of eliminating the library aides, the report noted.

The six committees were composed of district residents, staff and teachers.

No Recreation Money, Gallinas District Told

The Gallinas Village Community Services District board last night was told not to expect much financial assistance from the county in purchasing local recreation facilities and open space.

Jim Vande Weg, assistant director of Marin County Parks and Recreation Department, informed the board that most of the department's money was being spent on countywide acquisition rather than joint ventures with local communities.

The county parks and recreation department will be able to help local communities develop their own ideas, said Vande Weg, through informational symposia and staff assistance. But direct financial aid to local areas will not be available.

The board also interviewed two applicants for the district's summer recreation director: Becky Preble and Diane Belben, who presented the board with their suggestions for the summer program. The director will be picked at an adjourned meeting Thursday.

New Horse Ordinance Proposed

The Tiburon Planning Commission has recommended to the city council that it approve an ordinance setting up a licensing system for horses, and permitting them to be kept at single family residences in the city.

The council probably will take up the question at its first meeting in May, said Richard G. Arjo, director of community development.

He said the council has considered the keeping of horses in the city before, but referred a proposed ordinance back to the planning commission for revisions.

The recommendations call for licensing all horses, then having owners go through the normal procedure for obtaining a conditional use permit before allowing any animal to be kept within the city.

No fee for the license was recommended, Arjo said.

The commission also urged the council to impose a moratorium on building in the R-3 Zone, multiple family residences, until changes in city ordinances are made.

The council, at its Monday night meeting, asked Arjo and the city attorney to draft changes in the zoning ordinances altering both development standards and design review procedures.

A hearing on possible rezoning of 16 acres on Avenida Mira-Flores and Hacienda Drive was postponed until April 19, a planed second meeting date this month for the commission.

Practice Bombs Being Recovered

Navy and Air Force disposal crews have recovered more than 950 practice bombs from an abandoned target range in mudflats south of Hamilton Air Force Base, according to the base information office.

Although one of the first bombs recovered was live, all the others since recovered have been sand-filled, the recovery crews reported. The bombs were dropped in pre-World War II training sessions.

The search which started in January has been sporadic, depending on the tides. Officials estimated the bomb total will reach 1,500.

Accident Victim's Condition Improves

The most seriously injured of three persons hospitalized after a chain-reaction crash on Highway 101 Wednesday morning has been removed from the critical list, Marin General Hospital spokesmen reported today.

Purchase Of Land Is Wanted

Directors of the Alto-Richardson Bay Fire District board voted last night to negotiate with the Golden Gate Baptist Seminary for purchase of land at 308 Reed Boulevard now being leased for a district fire station.

Negotiation should be held next week with the seminary board, said Fire Chief Carl O. Heyman. He declined to estimate the purchase price. The property will be used for future expansion of the station, he said.

The board also told Heynan to shift the schedules of his men in some cases, and cut down the number of hours which some work. At the same time, the board voted in principle to raise salaries of some of the firemen.

Money for both the purchase of the land and the salary increases has been set aside from tax revenues in past years, said Heynan, and there will be no increase in the district's tax rate because of the changes.

Shotgun Robbery Sentence Given

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Anthony Bottom, one of five persons accused of slaying two New York policemen, has been sentenced to 25 years in federal prison for the shotgun robbery of a savings and loan office.

"Only by the grace of God somebody was not killed" during the July holdup, U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti said in imposing the maximum sentence Thursday.

Bottom, 20, is serving a five year to life sentence from a California court for the attempted murder of a San Francisco police sergeant.

He is accused in the slayings last May of New York police officers Waverly Jones and Joseph Piagentini.

An Appeal For Heart Research

GENEVA (UPI)—The World Health Organization (WHO) marked World Health Day 1972 today with an urgent appeal for action against heart diseases, the major cause of death in both rich and poor countries.

WHO Director-General Dr. Marcelino Candau of Brazil said the theme "Your Heart is Your Health" was chosen this year because despite economic achievements the future of civilization depends to a large extent on the prevention of heart diseases.

The affluent countries have a high ratio of coronary ailments but the less-developed nations are inflicted with rheumatic heart disease because of crowded conditions and poor hygiene, Candau said.

Woodacre Child Injured By Car

An 8-year-old Woodacre boy, hit by a car while riding his bicycle yesterday, was treated at Kaiser Hospital for bruises and scrapes, according to hospital officials.

Daniel E. Shiffman, of 29 Madrone Avenue was riding on Rockledge Road west of Carson Road about 4:15 p.m. when the accident occurred, according to the California Highway Patrol. Driver of the car, David H. Foust, 24, of Colorado, was not hurt, officers said.

Toss The Old Rules Out When Choosing The Best Of Leads

In the early days of the game you always led the fourth-highest card of your longest and strongest suit against a no-trump contract. If you led anything else, your friends would make excuses for you until you came to your senses. The situation is, however, quite different today.

South	West	North	East

Opening lead — ♡ Q

OLD FASHIONED

The old-fashioned lead for West would be the deuce of diamonds. This would give South the contract without a struggle.

No modern expert would dream of leading the deuce of diamonds. Some might lead a spade, but most would vote for the queen of hearts.

THE UNBID MAJOR

Part of the reason for this choice is the value of leading an unbid major suit against a no-trump contract. Players who have major suits bid them; if they don't bid them, they don't have them.

An additional factor is the advantage of leading a suit that can be set up with very little help from your partner. When you have Q-J-7 of a suit, you will do well if your partner has any length headed by even a single honor. You need far more help from your partner when you lead from J-x-x-x.

SINKS SOUTH

In this case, the heart lead sinks South without a trace. His best chance is to win the first trick and lead a low club. West can step right up with the ace of clubs and continue the hearts, giving the defenders four hearts and a club. But even if West ducks the first club, South can take only eight tricks before he runs out of gas.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - A Q J
♥ - 7 4 3
♦ - Q 8 5 4
♣ - Q 6 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You don't want to raise hearts with three small trumps, you are too strong for a response of one no-trump, not strong enough for two no-trump, and it is dangerous to bid spades with only three cards in the suit. The unorthodox response of two diamonds is the least of evils.

Sets Referendum

PARIS (UPI) — President Georges Pompidou Wednesday set April 23 as the date for a nationwide referendum on Britain's entry into the European Common Market. He said European unification was "an ambition worthy of France."

New Shredding Device Arrives

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke has a new paper shredding machine to destroy confidential documents, but he says the idea for obtaining the device had nothing to do with the ITT controversy.

"We just felt there was confidential material that should be destroyed," Reinecke said Tuesday.

Magee Asks For Jury Trial Now

After having several times waived his right to a speedy trial and agreeing to be tried after Miss Davis, the convict this week sent a petition in familiar-looking handwriting to the court asking that he be tried immediately.

"Jury trial now," Magee demanded in his petition, similar in appearance to the hundreds he has fired off to courts in the past several years.

He claimed he is being held in an "incommunicado position" and denied the right to see news reporters because of an illegal state court gagg (sic) rule . . ."

Meanwhile, Magee wrote, apparently referring to Miss Davis' trial, "the state agents puts on a news media trial, building up a case against defendant (Magee), holding him up to public ridicule in a flagrant racism slave case . . ."

Magee charged that the state has put him into a position where he can only see state agents. He even accused the people whom he asked be appointed as his investigators of being state agents.

"The state agents are using black and white people to run psuedo Rucell defense committees to feed the people lies," he said.

Magee fired off another letter yesterday to Judge Leonard Ginsburg of Tulare County, who has been assigned to his case, asking an immediate decision on his request for a speedy trial.

Magee, who is charged with murder, conspiracy and kidnapping, alocg with Miss Davis, had his case severed from hers last year, mainly because his delaying tactics were not the same strategy which her lawyers wanted to use.

During testimony at Miss Davis's trial about the August 1970 shoot-out at the Marin Civic Center, Magee's name has figured provinently and he has been identified as the man holding the shotgun which killed Judge Harold J. Haley.

New Growth Committee Is Approved

The Cotati City Council last night joined the Rohnert Park city council and Cotati School District board in agreeing to a joint city-school coordinating committee.

The committee, which will meet monthly, will include representatives of the school board, both city councils and their planning commissions.

School board member Anthony Carbone told the council the committee could coordinate residential growth with school building programs and perhaps avoid crowded conditions and double session schools.

The Cotati City Council also:

PLANNING — Reaffirmed its decision not to pay the $2,000 per year requested for planning services by Sonoma County. The council held that services should remain free.

EMPLOYEES — Recognized the Cotati City Employees Association as members of the Sonoma County Employees Association and named City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen as the employee relations officer.

ZONING — Adopted the zoning ordinance.

WARRANTS — Agreed to join the Sonoma County Central Warrant System at an annual cost of $224 per year.

FUND — Agreed to donate $100 to the scholarship fund in memory of Ralph E. McGinnis, Cotati fire chief who died last month.

BUSES — Approved a resolution endorsing applications by the Golden Gate Bridge Highway and Transportation District for expansion of bus and ferry systems.

PERSONNEL — Adjourned to a closed session Monday at 7 p.m. to consider hiring a new public works foreman.

Circulars Fail To Note Political Ad

Copies of the Independent-Journal distributed in San Anselmo yesterday contained single-page inserts supporting the candidacy of Sarah Nome in Tuesday's city council election.

Although the flyers were political advertisement paid for by the Nome campaign, the Independent-Journal inadvertently failed to note this on the circulars.

More of the flyers contained in today's issues will be probably identified as paid political advertising.

Apricots Damaged

BERKELEY (UPI) — The Apricot Producers of California today estimated damage to the state apricot crop at between 40 to 50 per cent because of the late March frost.

Signed for Role

Homeowners Group Ignores Politics

Marin Estates Homeowners' Association last night turned its back on political activity of three of its members, although it elected one of them vice-president.

The three, John E. Irvine, the new vice president, James D. Bell, and Ernest J. Russo, have written to the Corte Madera Town Council, promising a referendum campaign against the zoning for a proposed townhouse development.

Seventy-five unincorporated acres were prezoned R-2, then annexed to Corte Madera for the Madera del Presidio 530-unit development, next to the H. Koch and Sons Luggage plant on Highway 101.

Irvine, Bell and Russo claimed objecting residents had no real chance to voice opinions on the matter, questioned the density of the project and its lack of concern for open space.

During discussion at last night's meeting, according to Anne Weingarth, wife of the association's new president, the association members affirmed their interest in social activity and neighborhood improvement, excluding political activity. She said no formal vote was taken.

Four new officers were elected last night, she said: L. P. Weingarth, president; Irvine; Jan Hogan, secretary and Chris MacDonough, treasurer.

Youth Released From Hospital

A 16-year-old Mill Valley youth, injured when his motorcycle and a car collided llided yesterday on Laverne Avenue north of Homestead Boulevard in Homestead Valley, was released from the hospital today after treatment of his injuries.

Francis D. Pissio, of 114 Lomita Drive, Mill Valley, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised right knee, ucraped left hand and a concussion suffered in the accident which occurred about 10:30 a.m., according to hospital authorities.

Driver of the car, Kenneth S. Brown, 19, of 21 Midway Avenue, Mill Valley, was uninjured, according to officers. John Olds, a passenger on the motorcycle, was also injured in the accident, according to officers, but said he would see his own doctor. His age and address were not available.

To Superior Court On Burglary

Richard Warren Lacaze, 20, a Stinson Beach garbageman charged in connection with three burglaries, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court to appear April 16.

Lacaze is accused of burglarizing two Stinson Beach homes as well as receiving stolen property and grand theft.

Lacaze and Dennis Michael Murphy, 22, a fellow garbageman, were arrested in mid-March by a sheriff's officer who said they were responsible for burglaries in Tamalpais Valley and Stinson Beach —the two areas served by the garbage company.

Did Wisconsin Capture National Mood?

By GUY HALVERSON
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

MILWAUKEE — The big question emerging from the Wisconsin primary is whether the evident surge toward populism here — reflected in deep voter discontent and a boost for political mavericks and independents —captures the mood of the United States as a whole.

For the Wisconsin primary indicates that at the least a substantial segment of the electorate of this important midwestern industrial-agricultural state feels increasingly isolated and cut off from government.

In the last weeks of the campaign here all the major candidates were hammering hard at the alleged inequalities of the American tax system as well as soaring consumer prices and alleged governmental waste and mismanagement.

Significantly, polls taken here by the staff of winner Sen. George McGovern suggested that many voters favored Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace or McGovern as their first or second candidate.

Together the two men —both running outside the mainstream with strong independent campaigns — won more than 52 per cent of the primary vote.

To some observers, this reinforces the view that a sizable "populist" vote does now exist within the electorate.

In the recent Illinois primary, it is recalled, voters there — including the sizable Republican crossover nominated an insurgent antimachine Democrat as the gubernatorial candidate as well as renominating a local Cook County state's attorney opposed by organization regulars.

For South Dakota McGovern, who won in a field of 12 with about 30 per cent of the vote, the Wisconsin primary is viewed as an important victory. It clearly establishes him as a serious presidential contender.

"After a year of adversity, I think we can stand one night of prosperity," the senator — beaming and relaxed, his wife by his side —told cheering supporters at the Pfister Hotel. The first candidate to enter the Democratic presidential contest, he snapped up significant voter support from virtually every segment of the Wisconsin electorate, including a large student-youth vote. He gained 54 of the state's 67 convention delegate votes.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who finished third here behind Wallace, won two districts, picking up 13 convention delegates.

The big Wallace vote — the Alabama governor won 22 per cent of the vote —was much larger than recent polls had suggested. Initial examination of the balloting suggests a heavy Republican crossover for Wallace, though he also ran well in blue-collar areas, repeating —but not equaling —his performance in the 1964 primary when he won 34 per cent of the vote.

In the 1968 presidential balloting, Wallace wrested only about 8 per cent of the vote.

The fourth-place showing here by Maine Sen. Edmund S. Muskie is considered a serious setback in his drive for the nomination. Muskie staffers, however, argue that the senator will be on much stronger grounds in the upcoming April 25 Massachusetts and Pennsylvania primaries. Together the two states have 284 delegates.

In many ways the McGovern campaign here the past few weeks was of blitzkrieg proportions. "They (the McGovern people) were everywhere," one stunned supporter of New York Mayor John V. Lindsay told this reporter. "I've never seen anything like it. It was impressive."

Humphrey, second with about 21 per cent of the primary vote, also won across-the-board support from most voting segments. He did especially well in Milwaukee's black wards. (Only about 4 per cent of the population here is nonwhite, and busing never became the heated issue here as elsewhere.)

Still, Humphrey backers were obviously shaken by the senator's poor showing from organized labor. In Milwaukee's south side, heavily blue-collar Fourth District (which has a large Polish vote) McGovern came in well ahead of Humphrey, who was expected to do well.

Again, in Milwaukee's Fifth District — which includes virtually all segments of the population and may more clearly reflect typical urban voter districts around the nation than any other Wisconsin district — McGovern ran extremely well even though the district finally went to Humphrey.

The poor showing —and eventual withdrawal of Lindsay — was not totally unexpected, even by many of his supporters. The mood at Lindsay headquarters in the large Sheraton Schroeder Hotel was one of unrelieved depression and gloom. Some Lindsay supporters — most of them were young college students — were quick to indicate support for McGovern, though some of them also told this reporter that they believed Humphrey or Sen. Edward Kennedy would likely emerge as the candidate come July.

"We lost in part because we had real organizational difficulties," says Debbie Melton, a long-haired, pretty University of Wisconsin student who did graphics work for the Lindsay campaign. Tom Bourgeois, a political-science major at Marquette University, from Franklin Lakes, N.J., says he'll work for the McGovern campaign but expects someone else to emerge as the final candidate.

Indeed, as campaign workers headed back to their hotels Wednesday, thoughts kept returning to Kennedy. In 1968, many recalled, Vice-President Humphrey didn't carry one primary and yet went on to win the nomination in Chicago.

Given the large slate of candidates this year, it is felt — plus an increasing fragmentation of voter and delegate support — many people here are wondering if a consensus, dark-horse candidate may not yet emerge. The name most heard here is that of Kennedy.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who waged a heavy media television campaign here, did less than many had expected, winning about 8 per cent of the vote. Early analysis indicated that at least part of the vote was a Republican cross-over and reflected the senator's vehement strong opposition to busing solely for the purpose of racial balance.

Rescued Youth Reported Fair

I-J Special Report

BODEGA BAY — A 19-year-old Sonoma youth who fell from a cliff at Salmon Creek near here yesterday was rescued and flown to San Francisco by Coast Guard crewmen with the aid of a doctor from Hamilton Air Force Base.

David Harden suffered back injuries in the fall at 1:45 p.m. Crewmen from a Coast Guard cutter reached him at 2:20 p.m. and loaded him into a helicopter 10 minutes later.

The aircraft stopped briefly at Hamilton to pick up a doctor, then landed at Crissy Field in the San Francisco Presidio. Harden was treated first at Letterman General Hospital then transferred to Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco, where his condition was reported fair today.

AN OPEN DOOR

"I Was Scared First," Says Sausalito Jesus Minister

By PAT BALMES

"I was scared to death the first few nights I walked up and down Bridgeway. I sat in coffee shops and bars, wherever things were happening, talking to kids about Jesus.

"Sometimes we ended up sitting on the curb," said street minister Judy Beane, who is hostess at Sausalito's the Open Door Coffee House.

The mission is visited by about 130 street people a week.

Miss Beane, of Strawberry, a student at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, studies and naps each afternoon before opening The Open Door at 8 p.m. for coffee and conversation.

"The Open Door gives off good vibes. Street people seem to say, 'What's this place?' and come in," said Judy. In southern accent she talks with visitors gently, in intentional contrast to hard-sell tactics of dogmaticists and fanaticism of Jesus Freaks.

Judy learned to rap this way from the Rev. Lars Williamson, host at The Open Door, first minister-on-the-street in Sausalito. He began his unsponsored street ministry in Sausalito in 1967. A television technician for a San Francisco station, Williamson married and has two sons.

"When he first started, he worked hard, watched and listened. I spent several months with Lars just listening to him talk to street people. It was like learning a new language," said Judy.

By then street people associated her with Williamson and they could begin to walk separately. Williamson wears a clerical collar for easy identification, so Judy made herself a cape with a peace symbol crowned with a cross. She wears a long flowered pants-dress underneath. Since 1969 Judy has walked the street almost nightly "to help people and tell them about Christianity".

"I FEEL a certain closeness with street people. The kids protect me and have stopped a few bad situations," she said.

Their ministering has been totally in the street and at their own homes. Judy shared her apartment iwth a disturbed girl for months until she was able to persuade her to seek professional help. Williamson answered a call from Marin Suicide Prevention Center recently and took the person threatening suicide into his home in the middle of the night.

Last October Williamson and Judy located an empty fish and chips store next to Sausalito's heliport where about 150 people live in buses and on houseboats. It is also a favorite spot for hitchhikers and people stop in on their way to the Mill Valley crash pad.

Working hard to renovate the stripped building, the ministers furnished it with discarded rugs, stump tables, floor pillows, a second hand piano, blue ceiling lights and scented homemade candles.

"It's a living room for people who live in buses; they bring in pictures, coffee, tea and bread," she said. One man brought a handcarved wooden cross in Mill Valley to hang on the Open Door.

"All kinds of conversation are accepted. If it gets too rambunctious, we ask them to cool it — it should be a Christian atmosphere. The road to Christ is a long one; you have to find where a person is on that road. You find out by listening to them," said Judy.

"I find I am not shocked anymore. They do not feel that they are going to be put down. Sometimes you just listen the whole time; sometimes I can interweave Christian principles by finding parallels with their concepts," she said.

MANY STREET people are highly educated and sincerely interested in the metaphysical and Eastern religions. Judy said her seminary classes in theology and philosophy apply in the Open Door conversations.

Average nightly attendance has increased from five to 20. Street people's attitude has changed. At first they called Williamson and Judy Jesus Freaks, now they're Christians.

"We find all kinds. Some with problems they want to talk about. We do not have to preach; they would ask us," said Judy. If the troubles are serious she directs them to an agency. Some are problems she can handle herself such as hunger, where to sleep tonight and where to get clothes.

Understanding street people better now, Judy says she feels concern for them, not pity. Their life style is their choice. Street people are very generous. They put value on the person, earn just enough to live and don't care about externals. In talking to street people she does not attempt to change their life style but tries to "get their heads together" to be productive and useful, not parasites.

"I don't want to live like the street people. When I get through the seminary, I'll work," said Judy.

Street people have a hard time separating themselves from what they are doing. If you preach against drugs they take it you are against them, according to Judy. If they want to talk about drugs she uses gentle guidance, "That's not too cool", she'll say, not "you'll go to hell if you use it!"

When asked if she uses drugs Judy replies, "No. I do not need them. I'm high enough on religion." Drug users are supersensitive to others' emotions and can tell if you are being truthful, she said.

"The first bummer I saw freaked me out. He thought he was dying. People have been known to go out a window. You want so much to help that it's emotionally draining. You have to remind yourself that it is not him talking, but the drug through his mind," said Judy.

Some addicts come to the Open Door because they want to give up drugs, and Judy directs them to an agency.

NEITHER DRUGS nor alcohol are allowed in The Open Door. Alcohol is prohibited because of the youngsters who come there. She tells those who want to use drugs there "we do not want the police running in here and spoiling the atmosphere."

A large sign reads,

"We do not dig rules, but if we get ripped off for using drugs or alcohol, we will get closed down. We think we have a good thing. Please do not bring the man down on us."

When an infringement threatens, Williamson "intentionally fumbles around" to allow time for the street people themselves to enforce the rule.

Three years of experience with street people has changed Judy's attitude toward religion although her basic principles are the same.

"I was always told you had to come to church to hear about Christ," she said. Now she realizes that religion is a way of life, not just a Sunday thing. "Now it is a worship experience just talking to people. Sometimes I need to worship in the fellowship of other Christians in a church building. It gets pretty noisy at the Open Door," said Judy. She added that she is no longer so concerned with externals.

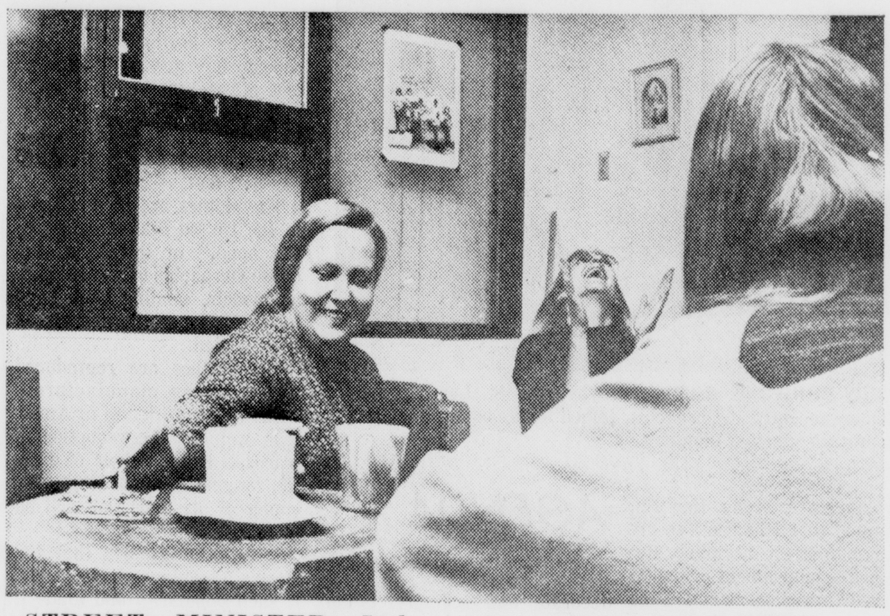
In 1968 Judy was one of 25 national appointments by the Baptist Church to two years of missionary work "like Vista." Although she spoke no Spanish she worked for 13 months in New Mexico with Spanish-speaking people and then came to a San Francisco Spanish-speaking congregation.

NEXT SHE was appointed to street walk in Sausalito for the first Baptist Church's new coffee house which had a strict approach, according to Judy. She was planning to return to Virginia and attend a Louisville, Ky. seminary when she met Williamson and "become hooked" on working with street people.

"This kind of ministry is slow; it's not geared to numbers, like how many baptisms. You do not have many decisions for Christ. But when street people find out that Christianity is real, they will try it," she said.

The rent and telephone of the Open Door are paid for by churches and individuals. Seminarians volunteer to help keep the door open every night between 8 p.m. and midnight. But because needs and problems are not confined to those hours, Williamson and Judy are praying for funds to provide around-the-clock service.

THE OPEN DOOR, a mission for street people at the Sausalito heliport, was opened in November by two young street ministers who have had several years of experience walking along Bridgeway in Sausalito "to help people and tell them about Christianity." Renovated by the Rev. Lars Williamson and Judy Beane, the former store is central to some 150 people living in buses and houseboats near the heliport. A frequent visitor is the St. Bernard who belongs to a neighboring undertaker.



STREET MINISTER Judy Beane, a student at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, welcomes street people nightly to the Open Door Mission in Sausalito where they can sit on floor pillows, drink coffee and talk in an atmosphere of blue lights and homemade scented candles. Conversation leads to mutual understanding, practical help for problems and information on Christianity. Here they share a laugh. (Independent-Journal photos by Alfred Arn)

A Four-Generation Party Marks Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alfsnes have lived more than 40 of their 50 years of married life in San Anselmo. Following their wedding April 5, 1922, at the home of Pearl Alfnes' aunt in San Francisco the couple lived for a few years in San Francisco.

The anniversary was celebrated Saturday night at a cocktail buffet at the home of the Alfsnes' daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Strauss, in San Anselmo. The couple's grandchildren, Richard Strauss, a student at California Polytechnic College, who is being married this weekend; Mrs. Phylo Tobler (Patricia Strauss) of Fairfax, and Dana Strauss, a student at San Jose State College all attended the party. Their great-grandson, 1-year-old Christian Tobler, was also at the party, making it a four-generation celebration.

Also at the party were Mr. Alfsnes' sister and brother-in-law, the John Magnussens, who came from Bremerton, Wash., and Ida Johanson of San Francisco, who was maid of honor at the Alfsnes' wedding.

The Alfsneses are both natives of Norway. She came to San Francisco in 1913, and he arrived shortly before their meeting at the Norwegian Club in San Francisco in 1920.

Mr. Alfsnes is a retired graphic artist. His hobbies are stamp and coin collecting. Mrs. Alfsnes enjoys knitting, sewing and reading and has been active in community and church work. She has served as an elder and a deacon at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Alfsnes have relatives in Norway and have made several trips through the years to Scandinavian countries to visit.

Summer Fashions Are Sparked With White

Ever-flattering white runs throughout the summer fashion collection. Stiff white linen with a slightly glazed surface ran through collections from Paris.

White jackets were worn with printed dresses, trousers of pleated skirts.

In Cool Suds

Empty Coffee Cans Are Handy Helpers

Empty coffee cans with plastic lids make excellent canisters for storing raisins, nuts, rice, tea, matches and other household items. Paint them to match the kitchen color scheme if you wish. Glue on a label and varnish the label to make it waterproof. Decorate the decals if you wish.

To Get Degree

Diane Buttner of San Rafael will receive her nursing cap at a ceremony at Samuel Merritt Hospital School of Nursing in Oakland on April 14. Diane, a graduate of Terra Linda High School, entered the nursing school last September. She is the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Patrick E. Buttner of San Rafael.

Safety Tips To Prevent Poisoning

What is the first thing a parent should do when a child swallows something that may be poisonous?

"Keep the remains of the contents of the bottle or box in order to identify the poison and estimate the dosage — as you call your doctor immediately," advises poison control authority Dr. Joseph Greensher.

A good precautionary move, according to Dr. Greensher, is to keep at home an ounce bottle of syrup of ipecac — to induce vomiting, if that is what the doctor orders. Another useful item to keep on the first-aid shelf is activated charcoal for dilution.

When storing potentially dangerous items — keep them high out of a child's reach and also under lock and key. Children often climb on a chair or box to get at a wall cabinet.

Never put dangerous products in containers used for eating or drinking.

HELEN HELP US!

DEAR HELEN:

I went shopping. When I came out of the store my newly painted car had a big dent in the fender. Some 'stinker had backed into it on the parking lot and didn't have the decency to leave a note giving his name and address.

This happens to a lot of people — it's already been done to me twice! I have $100-deductible insurance, so the deep scratches and dent will just stay there: a student can't put out that kind of money.

Most insurance policies pay for the damage a driver does to another car. So why do people feel they have to hit and run? — HIT AND MAD

DEAR H AND M:

... Because of these hard facts: insurance companies may cancel or raise the premiums if the insured proves himself "accident-prone."

It's a low-down dirty trick — this type of hit and run. But I'm stumped for suggestions on how to stop it. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Excuse this stationery. I've been banned from the rest of the house so must use what's available in my den.

My problem is my two spoiled daughters, aged 15 and 12, and a wife who thinks she is supposed to be their "pal." She has raised them by the psychology books. When I felt they needed a spanking, I was told to paddle a pillow instead. You know — the old "relieve your frustrations" bit, then be sweet and gentle, letting them get away with everything — and I mean EVERYTHING!

I grounded our daughters for two weeks for hitchhiking, and my wife was furious. Naturally they were back thumbing immediately. I point out the dangers of an accident, rape, possible murder if you meet a maniac, but my wife says I don't understand — this is the new way to meet people. I only understand they're incorrigible.

Last week my two brats were picked up by a state trooper and I had to get them at the barracks. Once home, I said to hell with the pillow! They got the spankings they deserved. My wife went hysterical and called the police — who ruled in my favor. Which is why I'm in the dog house.

She refuses to cook for or speak to me until I apologize and raise the girls' allowances. Was I wrong in spanking them? What do others think? — UNSURE SPANKER

DEAR U.S.:

Let's say your spankings weren't wrong — just misguided. First you paddled a pillow, then your two daughters —when the person who really deserves a big fat forceful put-down is: your wife!

These girls will continue incorrigible until your house is no longer divided against itself. I hope it doesn't take a tragic hitchhiking incident to effect that change! — H.

P.S. Discipline only helps when both mother and father agree on the need. Then it can do wonders. Read on:

DEAR HELEN:

We have always been a close-knit, warm family. Our children are by no means angels but my husband and I agreed on loving discipline, and could reason with them. Neither of us believes in corporal punishment. Thaty's why we're feeling so guilty.

Last year our 10-year-old son's behavior gradually changed from good to bad to intolerable. He complained, lied, was abusive to us and his grandparents, and became stubbornly disobedient. All our patience only made him worse.

Things came to a head about six weeks ago. He hit the roof because I gave him a sandwich for lunch instead of a pizza. I explained I couldn't get to the store, but would have his pizza ready for him the next day. He shoved his plate across the table, spilling his milk, then swore at me.

That was the end! All my kind patience went up in smoke, and I spanked him so hard he hollered. I must admit it DIDN'T hurt me more than it hurt him.

Literally overnight, our boy's behavior changed from hateful to happy. He's cheerful and loving once again — even the teachers remark on his transformation.

Only once since has he been fresh with me, and all I did was reach for the ruler. He smiled, apologized, and that was that. My husband smiled, too.

Helen, psychologists say spankings are wrong, thus I'm ashamed that I had to lose my temper to effect discipline. But when this punishment evidently worked miracles, could I be such a — BRUTE?

DEAR BRUTE:

Of course you're not a brute! Somewhere along the line, your son confused patience with "not caring." The kinder you were, the more he tried to test your love.

That ruler episode proved he had parents, not a couple of push-over caretakers he could manipulate because they weren't really concerned about him.

He asked for a showdown. Luckily he got it. I doubt he'll need another. — H.

COUTURE BARGAINS

Women Race To Ohrbach's

By DIANA LOERCHER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — You don't have to go to the basement to find bargains, as Ohrbach's proves with stunning force year after year at its semiannual European couture fashions shows.

You also don't have to be poor to want bargains, as illustrated by this spring's roster of prominent women, who united on the store's sixth floor with the common goal of getting something, if not for nothing, at least for considerably less.

Among those in attendance were wives of United Nations ambassadors and celebrities Helen Hayes, Hermione Gingold, Dina Merrill, Diana Sands, Celeste Holm, Alexis Smith and Anita Loos.

Major purchasers from this season's line of nearly 50 items included Mrs. David Bruce, Mrs. Joseph Alsop, Mrs. William Paley, Doris Duke, Mrs. Melpo Niarchos, Mrs. Ed Sullivan, and Mrs. Joseph E. Levine.

While other New York stores make line-for-line copies of couture originals, Ohrbach's is the only one that uses the original fabrics, a policy it has followed for more than 20 years.

EVERY YEAR buyers from Ohrbach's hustle over to Europe to buy at the going price one of each item they would like to copy and its fabric. The average purchase price for originals this year was $3,200 per garment.

The clothes are then shipped to the United States and enter "in bond," or duty free, because Ohrbach's uses them only as models, sending them back to Europe once the design has been copied.

The clothes are reproduced by American manufacturers with sizes modified to fit American women. The reduction in prices is nothing short of drastic, ranging from $75 to $300 for copies of originals that sell up to $5,000.

It is little wonder that the store's advantages have gained it such popularity and made it something of an arbiter of taste in the foreign fashion sweepstakes.

The coveted honors this year went to Saint-Laurent, Givenchy, Ricci, Chanel, Venet, and Monsieur X (for Dior), all from Paris, and Valentino, Fabiani, Lancetti, and Tiziani from Rome.

IN THE SHOW two look-alike models glide down parallel runways, one wearing an original and the other an imperceptibly different copy. Leading the race in sheer numbers was Valentino with 11, followed by Monsieur X, Givenchy, and Saint-Laurent with about eight apiece.

One of the biggest sellers was a dashing navy cashmere wrap coat by Ricci — loose, lush, and full enough for Mata Hari to hide in. Saint-Laurent still brings 'em back alive with his safari styles.

So far a green linen three-piece belted suit is this season's favorite from his line. Oddly enough, he has paired the mannish, no nonsense cut of these suits with four-inch stacked heels on which the models tottered precariously down the runway.

Other winners were Givenchy's multistripe wool and nylon stretch gabardine coat and his navy jersey peekaboo back dress that are astonishing in their demure banality and reflect the new penchant for "pretty" clothing. All Valentino's "toppers," most in cashmere with dolman sleeves for both day and evening, topped purchase lists, and his softly alluring evening dresses in incongruous combinations of black, white, and pink sent the ladies scrambling for their charge plates.

Also on hand were immutably wearable Chanel suits, and a sprinkling of prints, the star of which was Monsieur X's pansy floral silk crepe de chine that splashed color on a fashion canvas of predominantly white, white, white.

Charmingly enough, the highlight of the show was not a design or a designer but an impromptu performance by Miss Hayes. Arriving late and dutifully taking cognizance of the fact that her assigned seat was on the other side of the runway, she gamely vaulted aboard, did a little turn for the applauding audience, and like a real trouper, landed in the right place without missing a step.

'Need Was There' For Ireland Remedial Clinic

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The need was there...just crying out," says Lady Valerie Goulding of Dublin, Ireland.

Similar words must have been said, similar thoughts thought by every person who ever worked as a volunteer.

Valerie Goulding, a lively brown-eyed woman, has spent 21 years fulltime volunteering in the rehabilitation field, helping back to activity (although often limited activity) the young, the middle-aged, the elderly who otherwise might never fit into society.

A TRAINER physiotherapist, she is co-founder with Kathleen O'Rourke, also a physiotherapist, of Ireland's Central Remedial Clinic. She said it is unusual among clinics because it takes all ages from five weeks to 85 years.

The clinic provides full medical rehabilitation facilities including speech therapy and hydrotherapy, education services, employment, day care for the chronic disabled, and transport so that they can go home to be with the family at night.

Lady Goulding, now chairman and managing director of the center, said the clinic began in a small apartment in central Dublin, growing out of the vast number of persons left handicapped in the series of polio epidemics that swept Ireland in the 1940s and '50s.

TODAY, IT'S grown into an ultramodern plan at Clontarf on the northern outskirts of Dublin, capable of treating 500 patients, many of whom come from the United States and some Western European countries.

What To Do, What To Do

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

"What was so weird and frightening was I knew a strange man was in my bedroom and what he was there for —even before I. opened my eyes. It was like my mind had tuned me into what was happening while I was still asleep." Nan's dark eyes were still wide with disbelief.

"When you live in this neighborhood — high crime rate area number one — you are always hearing about this happening, and it's no big thing when it happens to someone else. But, when it's you. . .

"Anyway, I thought about screaming, but I didn't want to wake up the children. I knew that would only make a bad situation worse; frightened and screaming children mixed in with this wild-looking nut who stood over my bed. He placed a hunting knife on the bedside table and said quietly, 'Don't make me use it. I know what I'm going to do —what I will do. You don't.'

"That's for sure," I'm thinking. My mind grasped for one of those great self-protection tactics that women who stay alone are always talking about. But, it was obvious I was no physical match for him.

"TALK, I thought, maybe I can talk him out of it. My mouth was dry and no words came. No big thing, from the get-go, he didn't come for conversation," said Nan, displaying her down-to-earth sense of humor.

"Even though I was frightened out of my mind, for a moment I became very angry and indignant. I wanted to fight back — to hurt him in some way. My mind screamed at him sarcastically: What kind of a man are you to force yourself on a woman? Don't you have enough on the ball to attract and have your own woman on an honest and voluntary basis? Not only that, you're lousy in bed! That was my mind screaming, understand. Outwardly, I said nothing.

"When he left, I called the police and they discovered he had broken the lock on the back door. I didn't appreciate their line of questioning either. They insinuated I invited that psycho into my house.

"I've been told that this happens to women all over the city — not only in this neighborhood. So, I guess moving is not the answer. Anyway, I can't afford it. I don't think there is a 'safe' place.

"I'm still not sure what I should have done. A gun? Someone (probably me) would have been killed. After locking the doors and windows, what more can you do?"

PROBABLY ALL women have asked themselves how they would handle such a situation if they were faced with it. Their responses reside at either extreme of the spectrum:

"I'd fight like a tiger. He'd have to kill me. I'm not givin' up nothin' for nothin'!"

"I'd say help yourself! I'm not about to die over that!"

Even though the rapist is ever present in the inner city (and the outer city, too), there are some basic precautions women should take. Locks on doors and windows are elementary. Draw your window shades so you cannot be observed from the street. Keep doorways and driveways lighted. Keep shrubs and bushes trimmed so they do not provide cover for a wandering nut. Try not to travel alone at night. Have your key ready so as to expedite your entrance into your apartment or house.

THE BIGGEST consideration still appears to be how a woman carries herself in public. According to a convicted rapist: "Most women I approached were asking for it by the way they dressed, walked or acted in a public place. I'd just follow them home. Not only that, most women don't really complain much."

Well, in that respect, times have changed. Women are complaining — to the tune of setting aside public opinion and ridicule and identifying and testifying — in court.

More Space For Display By Women

After meeting with the Women's Coalition, a group of Bay Area women artists and feminist groups, the University Art Museum of Berkeley agreed to give more space to work by women artists.

The museum will take part in a celebration of women artists this summer and to make gallery space more available to women's work.

The museum staff said it was interested in exhibiting the works of women artists of the past as well as contemporary work by women artists.

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

I went shopping. When I came out of the store my newly painted car had a big dent in the fender. Some 'stinker had backed into it on the parking lot and didn't have the decency to leave a note giving his name and address.

This happens to a lot of people — it's already been done to me twice! I have $100-deductible insurance, so the deep scratches and dent will just stay there: a student can't put out that kind of money.

Most insurance policies pay for the damage a driver does to another car. So why do people feel they have to hit and run? — HIT AND MAD

DEAR H AND M:

... Because of these hard facts: insurance companies may cancel or raise the premiums if the insured proves himself "accident-prone."

It's a low-down dirty trick — this type of hit and run. But I'm stumped for suggestions on how to stop it. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Excuse this stationery. I've been banned from the rest of the house so must use what's available in my den.

My problem is my two spoiled daughters, aged 15 and 12, and a wife who thinks she is supposed to be their "pal." She has raised them by the psychology books. When I felt they needed a spanking, I was told to paddle a pillow instead. You know — the old "relieve your frustrations" bit, then be sweet and gentle, letting them get away with everything — and I mean EVERYTHING!

I grounded our daughters for two weeks for hitchhiking, and my wife was furious. Naturally they were back thumbing immediately. I point out the dangers of an accident, rape, possible murder if you meet a maniac, but my wife says I don't understand — this is the new way to meet people. I only understand they're incorrigible.

Last week my two brats were picked up by a state trooper and I had to get them at the barracks. Once home, I said to hell with the pillow! They got the spankings they deserved. My wife went hysterical and called the police — who ruled in my favor. Which is why I'm in the dog house.

She refuses to cook for or speak to me until I apologize and raise the girls' allowances. Was I wrong in spanking them? What do others think? — UNSURE SPANKER

DEAR U.S.:

Let's say your spankings weren't wrong — just misguided. First you paddled a pillow, then your two daughters —when the person who really deserves a big fat forceful put-down is: your wife!

These girls will continue incorrigible until your house is no longer divided against itself. I hope it doesn't take a tragic hitchhiking incident to effect that change! — H.

P.S. Discipline only helps when both mother and father agree on the need. Then it can do wonders. Read on:

DEAR HELEN:

We have always been a close-knit, warm family. Our children are by no means angels but my husband and I agreed on loving discipline, and could reason with them. Neither of us believes in corporal punishment. Thaty's why we're feeling so guilty.

Last year our 10-year-old son's behavior gradually changed from good to bad to intolerable. He complained, lied, was abusive to us and his grandparents, and became stubbornly disobedient. All our patience only made him worse.

Things came to a head about six weeks ago. He hit the roof because I gave him a sandwich for lunch instead of a pizza. I explained I couldn't get to the store, but would have his pizza ready for him the next day. He shoved his plate across the table, spilling his milk, then swore at me.

That was the end! All my kind patience went up in smoke, and I spanked him so hard he hollered. I must admit it DIDN'T hurt me more than it hurt him.

Literally overnight, our boy's behavior changed from hateful to happy. He's cheerful and loving once again — even the teachers remark on his transformation.

Only once since has he been fresh with me, and all I did was reach for the ruler. He smiled, apologized, and that was that. My husband smiled, too.

Helen, psychologists say spankings are wrong, thus I'm ashamed that I had to lose my temper to effect discipline. But when this punishment evidently worked miracles, could I be such a — BRUTE?

DEAR BRUTE:

Of course you're not a brute! Somewhere along the line, your son confused patience with "not caring." The kinder you were, the more he tried to test your love.

That ruler episode proved he had parents, not a couple of push-over caretakers he could manipulate because they weren't really concerned about him.

He asked for a showdown. Luckily he got it. I doubt he'll need another. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Write to Helen Bottel care of the Independent-Journal.

COUTURE BARGAINS

By DIANA LOERCHER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — You don't have to go to the basement to find bargains, as Ohrbach's proves with stunning force year after year at its semiannual European couture fashions shows.

You also don't have to be poor to want bargains, as illustrated by this spring's roster of prominent women, who united on the store's sixth floor with the common goal of getting something, if not for nothing, at least for considerably less.

Among those in attendance were wives of United Nations ambassadors and celebrities Helen Hayes, Hermione Gingold, Dina Merrill, Diana Sands, Celeste Holm, Alexis Smith and Anita Loos.

Major purchasers from this season's line of nearly 50 items included Mrs. David Bruce, Mrs. Joseph Alsop, Mrs. William Paley, Doris Duke, Mrs. Melpo Niarchos, Mrs. Ed Sullivan, and Mrs. Joseph E. Levine.

While other New York stores make line-for-line copies of couture originals, Ohrbach's is the only one that uses the original fabrics, a policy it has followed for more than 20 years.

EVERY YEAR buyers from Ohrbach's hustle over to Europe to buy at the going price one of each item they would like to copy and its fabric. The average purchase price for originals this year was $3,200 per garment.

The clothes are then shipped to the United States and enter "in bond," or duty free, because Ohrbach's uses them only as models, sending them back to Europe once the design has been copied.

The clothes are reproduced by American manufacturers with sizes modified to fit American women. The reduction in prices is nothing short of drastic, ranging from $75 to $300 for copies of originals that sell up to $5,000.

It is little wonder that the store's advantages have gained it such popularity and made it something of an arbiter of taste in the foreign fashion sweepstakes.

The coveted honors this year went to Saint-Laurent, Givenchy, Ricci, Chanel, Venet, and Monsieur X (for Dior), all from Paris, and Valentino, Fabiani, Lancetti, and Tiziani from Rome.

IN THE SHOW two look-alike models glide down parallel runways, one wearing an original and the other an imperceptibly different copy. Leading the race in sheer numbers was Valentino with 11, followed by Monsieur X, Givenchy, and Saint-Laurent with about eight apiece.

One of the biggest sellers was a dashing navy cashmere wrap coat by Ricci — loose, lush, and full enough for Mata Hari to hide in. Saint-Laurent still brings 'em back alive with his safari styles.

So far a green linen three-piece belted suit is this season's favorite from his line. Oddly enough, he has paired the mannish, no nonsense cut of these suits with four-inch stacked heels on which the models tottered precariously down the runway.

Other winners were Givenchy's multistripe wool and nylon stretch gabardine coat and his navy jersey peekaboo back dress that are astonishing in their demure banality and reflect the new penchant for "pretty" clothing. All Valentino's "toppers," most in cashmere with dolman sleeves for both day and evening, topped purchase lists, and his softly alluring evening dresses in incongruous combinations of black, white, and pink sent the ladies scrambling for their charge plates.

Also on hand were immutably wearable Chanel suits, and a sprinkling of prints, the star of which was Monsieur X's pansy floral silk crepe de chine that splashed color on a fashion canvas of predominantly white, white, white.

Charmingly enough, the highlight of the show was not a design or a designer but an impromptu performance by Miss Hayes. Arriving late and dutifully taking cognizance of the fact that her assigned seat was on the other side of the runway, she gamely vaulted aboard, did a little turn for the applauding audience, and like a real trouper, landed in the right place without missing a step.

'Need Was There' For Ireland Remedial Clinic

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The need was there...just crying out," says Lady Valerie Goulding of Dublin, Ireland.

Similar words must have been said, similar thoughts thought by every person who ever worked as a volunteer.

Valerie Goulding, a lively brown-eyed woman, has spent 21 years fulltime volunteering in the rehabilitation field, helping back to activity (although often limited activity) the young, the middle-aged, the elderly who otherwise might never fit into society.

A TRAINER physiotherapist, she is co-founder with Kathleen O'Rourke, also a physiotherapist, of Ireland's Central Remedial Clinic. She said it is unusual among clinics because it takes all ages from five weeks to 85 years.

The clinic provides full medical rehabilitation facilities including speech therapy and hydrotherapy, education services, employment, day care for the chronic disabled, and transport so that they can go home to be with the family at night.

Lady Goulding, now chairman and managing director of the center, said the clinic began in a small apartment in central Dublin, growing out of the vast number of persons left handicapped in the series of polio epidemics that swept Ireland in the 1940s and '50s.

TODAY, IT'S grown into an ultramodern plan at Clontarf on the northern outskirts of Dublin, capable of treating 500 patients, many of whom come from the United States and some Western European countries.

What To Do, What To Do

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

"What was so weird and frightening was I knew a strange man was in my bedroom and what he was there for —even before I opened my eyes. It was like my mind had tuned me into what was happening while I was still asleep." Nan's dark eyes were still wide with disbelief.

"When you live in this neighborhood — high crime rate area number one — you are always hearing about this happening, and it's no big thing when it happens to someone else. But, when it's you. . .

"Anyway, I thought about screaming, but I didn't want to wake up the children. I knew that would only make a bad situation worse; frightened and screaming children mixed in with this wild-looking nut who stood over my bed. He placed a hunting knife on the bedside table and said quietly, 'Don't make me use it. I know what I'm going to do —what I will do. You don't.'

"That's for sure," I'm thinking. My mind grasped for one of those great self-protection tactics that women who stay alone are always talking about. But, it was obvious I was no physical match for him.

"TALK, I thought, maybe I can talk him out of it. My mouth was dry and no words came. No big thing, from the get-go, he didn't come for conversation," said Nan, displaying her down-to-earth sense of humor.

"Even though I was frightened out of my mind, for a moment I became very angry and indignant. I wanted to fight back — to hurt him in some way. My mind screamed at him sarcastically: What kind of a man are you to force yourself on a woman? Don't you have enough on the ball to attract and have your own woman on an honest and voluntary basis? Not only that, you're lousy in bed! That was my mind screaming, understand. Outwardly, I said nothing.

"When he left, I called the police and they discovered he had broken the lock on the back door. I didn't appreciate their line of questioning either. They insinuated I invited that psycho into my house.

"I've been told that this happens to women all over the city — not only in this neighborhood. So, I guess moving is not the answer. Anyway, I can't afford it. I don't think there is a 'safe' place.

"I'm still not sure what I should have done. A gun? Someone (probably me) would have been killed. After locking the doors and windows, what more can you do?"

PROBABLY ALL women have asked themselves how they would handle such a situation if they were faced with it. Their responses reside at either extreme of the spectrum:

"I'd fight like a tiger. He'd have to kill me. I'm not givin' up nothin' for nothin'!"

"I'd say help yourself! I'm not about to die over that!"

Even though the rapist is ever present in the inner city (and the outer city, too), there are some basic precautions women should take. Locks on doors and windows are elementary. Draw your window shades so you cannot be observed from the street. Keep doorways and driveways lighted. Keep shrubs and bushes trimmed so they do not provide cover for a wandering nut. Try not to travel alone at night. Have your key ready so as to expedite your entrance into your apartment or house.

THE BIGGEST consideration still appears to be how a woman carries herself in public. According to a convicted rapist: "Most women I approached were asking for it by the way they dressed, walked or acted in a public place. I'd just follow them home. Not only that, most women don't really complain much."

Well, in that respect, times have changed. Women are complaining — to the tune of setting aside public opinion and ridicule and identifying and testifying — in court.

Laos Glance

By GORDON N. CONVERSE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

All roads north to Luang Prabang, Laos, were cut by the Communists, so I reached the royal capital by flying in with a cargo of rice. With a population of 30,000, the mountainous town is closer to the borders of Communist China and North Vietnam than to Vientiane, Laos's administrative capital 130 miles to the south.

Although surrounded by war, Luang Prabang has remained free of bombings, mostly due to the presence of King Savang Vatthana, who has refused to leave. But from an airfield not far from the center of town there are reminders of war as planes come and go, carrying loads of rice and rockets.

U.S., Canada Talk Stalls

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Canadians were disturbed to hear President Nixon say — in reference to Canada at a news conference — that it sometimes seemed harder for the United States to negotiate trade problems with its close friends than with its distant adversaries.

Americans, it is supposed here, were equally surprised to hear Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau say that Canada needs no foreign enemies when it has friends like U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr.

These simultaneous complaints across the border provided a strange overture to Nixon's arrival in Ottawa, on April 13, as Trudeau's guest. But the practical Canadian politics behind them were clear enough.

As explained on television by Jean-Luc Pepin, minister of trade, the Canadian government entered negotiations with the United States, more than a year ago, on relatively minor commercial "irritants."

Then, to Canada's amazement, the Nixon administration lowered the currency and tariff boom on Aug. 15 last year and insisted on negotiating disputes of major substance, including the controversial automotive pact.

Canada's reply was to offer a package of trade concessions which has never been publicly disclosed and which the United States has rejected as quite inadequate.

Since neither country has changed its basic attitude, Pepin said, negotiations between the world's two largest trade partners are at a standstill, though friendly official contacts continue.

Asked how and when real negotiations can be resumed, Mr. Pepin declined to make any forecast but added that the argument would remain "difficult."

He flatly denied, however, the report that American customs officials are "harassing" imports from Canada or breaking the present tariff contracts in any way.

Latest figures, he said, showed that in the first two months of this year Canada's sales in the U.S. had risen by 22 per cent while the flow of American goods northward increased by 26 per cent.

The background of tha stalemate may not be understood by Americans but is obvious to Canadians.

Facing an uncertain election next summer or autumn, the Trudeau government knows that it will be decided mainly in Ontario, the largest province, Quebec being considered safe Liberal territory.

Since Ontario is the center of the nation's manufacturing industries, the government cannot risk the charge that it is planning excessive tariff concessions to the United States.

This is particularly true of the automotive pact which has provided large scale employment for Ontario workers. Cancellation of the Canadian tariff on American cars privately imported, as demanded by Washington, would threaten a huge payroll, the government thinks, and perhaps cause the removal of some factories to the United States.

Apart from economic factors, such a concession in the stalled trade bargaining would be so dangerous politically before an election that the government has refused to consider it.

While the election date has not been announced, the government is campaigning vigorously as if it planned a poll before midsummer. The prime minister has been touring the more dubious Ontario constituencies where his comment on Connally was uttered, either in a moment of impatience or by calculated indiscretion.

After these curious preliminaries, it is not expected that the President and the prime minister will achieve any breakthrough in the trade deadlock at their conference.

Harrisburg 7 Demonstrate

"We will continue our antiwar work," Eqbal Ahmad, a Pakistani intellectual, said. "We have not been frightened by the government."

Ahmad, two other defendants —the Revs. Joseph Wenderoth and Neil McLaughlin — and about 40 other antiwar protesters held the demonstration Thursday in front of the American Machine & Foundry plant at nearby York, Pa. The plant produces casings for bombs used in Vietnam.

Deputy CIA Name To Senate Floor

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate Armed Services Committee has approved and sent to the Senate floor for confirmation the nomination of Maj. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, 55, as deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

Bond Pleads For Busing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)— Georgia state legislator Julian Bond says he was bused as a school child and no one complained about it then because the bus was going to a 100 per cent black school.

"Separate but equal never existed in this country and I don't believe it ever will," Bond said in a speech supporting busing at Ohio State University.

"Education in this country is not a function of how much money is poured into the system from the top, but it is a function of how much money is in the pockets of the parents of the children," he said.

COMIC OPERA — Larkspur's Tommie Sue Anderson feigns tears in the role of Vespetta to get a marriage proposal from Pimpinone, played by Richard Goodman of Berkeley, in the comic opera "Pimpinone." It will be presented along with another comic opera by Rossini at Sonoma State College April 12-16.

State College Plans Two Comic Operas

Two 18th Century comic operas, Rossini's "The Occasion Makes the Thief" or "The Mixed-Up Baggage" and Telemann's "Pimpinone," will be presented by the Sonoma State College Opera Workshop April 12-16.

Student matinee performances for the Rossini opera will be April 11 and 12 at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. and April 14 at 11 a.m. Both operas will be performed April 14 and 15 at 8 p.m. and April 16 at 2 p.m.

The Rossini opera features duets, trios and arias and has been compared to the work of Gilbert and Sullivan. "Pimpinone" premiered in 1725 and is the story of Vespetta, a conniving girl who finds employment with Pimpinone, a rich bachelor. She talks him into marriage and proceeds to make his life miserable.

The role of Vespetta will be sung by Tommie Sue Anderson of Larkspur and Pimpinone will be played by Richard Goodman, an engineering professor at University of California at Berkeley.

Among those appearing in the Rossini opera will be Rosemary Bock of Mill Valley, Bonnie Landfield of Ross, Marguerite Winkler of Larkspur and Robert Cullinen of Cotati.

Reservations must be made in advance by calling the Office of Instructional Services and Continuing Education at the college.

Barbecued chicken will be served starting at 11 a.m., according to Stanley R. Frederick, committee chairman.

There is no admission charge for the horse show or bazaar.

A free public concert of classical piano works will be presented at 2 p.m. Sunday by Richard A. Crabtree, Mill Valley pianist, at the Musical Barbershop in Fair-Anselm Shopping Center in Fairfax.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Assn. Magazines and Parent's Magazine unless otherwise noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"Bedknobs and Broomsticks" — An apprentice witch takes in three children during the 1940 blitz-krieg in England and together they search for the missing half of a spell which will help end the war. A delightful blend of action and animation song and dance, a fun film for everyone.

"LeMans" — This film will be of interest to those who are car racing fans. The annual 24 hours of the LeMans races in France are recreated with a trite story interwoven.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" — A legendary pair of bank robbers that never shot anyone and steal only from those that can afford it are forced to flee to Bolivia where they continue their trade till recognized. Very violent ending.

"Gunfight" — Interesting western drama about a retired gunman who arrives in a small town where another legendary gunman is living peaceably. The two men like each other immediately but are forced by townspeople into a confrontation. Audience is given a choice of endings.

"Hot Rock" — Set in Brooklyn, the hilarious experiences of four accident-prone thieves who steal a fabulous diamond from a museum provides many laughs.

"House That Dripped Blood" — A quartet of horror tales about a house that is inhabited by various tenants, each falls prey to a bloody supernatural fate. Skillful acting creates a thoroughly chilling mood.

"Mary, Queen of Scots" — A delightful way to learn history. The struggle between Mary Stuart and Queen Elizabeth who are cousins, when surrounded by corrupt men, plot to occupy the throne of England. Acting is exceptional.

"Omega Man" — The Omega man is supposed to be the last man to survive a world bacteriological war (1975), but a group of ghoulish psychotics outwit and thus outlive him.

"Reivers" — A bawdy nostalgic film based on a Faulkner novel about a week-end in a 12-year-old boy's life in 1905. The hired hand borrows the family car and introduces the boy to facts of life he was unaware of before. Scenes in brothel make it unsuitable for younger children.

"Snow Job" — Spectacular skiing sequences would have made a breathtaking documentary. Trite unethical story is about a trio of ski bums who pull off a robbery. Strong language.

"Tales From the Crypt" — A crypt keeper foretells the future to five people who have been lost in the catacombs while on a tour. Good cast makes horror stories highly engrossing shocker. (Box-office Magazine)

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only)

"French Connection" — An exciting suspense thriller about two relentless narcotics detectives trying to crack an international heroin smuggling ring. Much violence.

"Vanishing Point" — An ex-race driver in doing his "thing" decides to drive from Denver to San Francisco in 15 hours regardless of what stands in his path. A good deal of sex, nudity, violence and cursing.

ADULTS ONLY

"Baby Maker" —A happily married couple unable to have children hire a beautiful hippie to bear the husband's baby for them. Film treats entire sex subject very frankly.

"Boys In The Band" — Eight homosexuals hold a party in a New York apartment. They play a "truth game" which reveals the anguish and self loathing they feel. Exceedingly frank sex talk.

"Dirty Harry" — Police thriller is an exercise in violence. A case against the pampering of criminals and justification of sadistic illegal police techniques. Tension is excruciating and violence is shocking.

"Godfather" — A handsome production that meticulously re-creates New York in the 1940s. The gradual surrender of family affairs by the aging and unwell Italian gangster running one of the five Eastern units of the Mafia, to his sons and heirs. They have been well schooled in gang warfare as well as absolute loyalty among members of the clan. (Motion Picture Daily).

"The Hospital" — An aging doctor who postpones his suicide in order to investigate the mysterious deaths of two interns and a nurse. Scathing episodes are sometimes humorously presented. Strong language, sex, excellent cast.

"I Want What I Want" — This film explores the emotional conflict of a boy who finally decides to undergo a sex change operation.

"Stepmother" — Sex melodrama about an architect who kills his client during an argument. In concealing the crime other murders are committed.

Alibi Witness Bill Advances

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Senate has passed and sent to the Assembly a controversial bill allowing a district attorney to demand and receive in advance the names of witnesses who would provide an alibi for a defendant in a criminal trial.

The measure cleared the Senate Tuesday on a 25-8 vote. Similar legislation was passed by the Senate last year and killed in the Assembly.

The author, Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, said that by requiring the defense to supply the names of "alibi" witnesses 10 days in advance of the trial would enable the prosecutor to investigate them and challenge possible "fabricated testimony."

La Petite Auberge Marks Up 13th Anniversary On Happy Note

To my knowledge, no one ever makes much ado about a 13th anniversary, but it can hardly be ignored the way they leave out the 13th floor in a tall building.

However, the anniversary itself marks the transition into the 14th year - and there you're safe. La Petite Auberge in San Rafael is making that transition this week. All superstitions to the contrary, its 13th year was as good or maybe even better than those which preceded it. If there was ever a truism that applied to this restaurant, it's "The proof of the pudding is in the eating."

La Petite has always been a kind of measuring stick for some restaurant owners in the county, who have used it to judge their own accomplishments or whether current business is up or down. Just how they are able to arrive at that latter decision I am not sure. The Fourth Street restaurant's tables always seem well occupied to me. You'd probably have to total the night's receipts to tell the difference.

Paul Devaux was the original owner. He came in when the building was generally described as "a pile of crazy mixed up bricks." Roger Poli joined him about a year later and Pierre Grigaut a year after that.

Together they moved this and added that and suddenly you realized the place was quite attractive. And somehow they managed to gain half as much more space without appreciably changing the outward appearance, which is deceptive.

Inside, probably the best appraisal is that it's a "happy place." People seem to enjoy themselves thoroughly here, what with good food, good wine and music from Ken Judnick's accordion.

Paul, Roger and Pierre aren't making any changes at La Petite these days. They don't need to. They have a good thing going.

A NEW DINING HOUSE which promises to be one of the county's showplace food establishments will open this month.

Skip Sommer of Sommer and Ryan Enterprises hopes to have the Lark Creek Inn at Larkspur ready for private parties by next weekend and for the general public a week later. Give or take a few days, the schedule should be close to that. Although considerable finish-up work remains to be done, furnishings have already been purchased and are ready to move in.

Representing an investment of something like $250,000, the Lark Creek Inn is the result of many months of remodeling the home of the late Hil Probert, whose automotive showrooms on Magnolia Avenue have already been converted into a decorative little shopping complex by Sommer and Ryan. The restuarant adjoins the complex, occupying that beautifully wooded section of the property between the shops and Williams Avenue.

A large parking area in the rear of the shops will accommodate 60 cars and can be enlarged if the need arises. There will be two entrances, one for northbound traffic and the other for those who are southbound on Magnolia Avenue.

Sommer and Ryan started out with the large Victorian Probert house and the entire theme of their remodeling has been to develop its natural advantages. Many of the original Probert appointments were retained and others compatible with them have been added. A number of them are true collectors' items, from lighting fixtures to overhead fans and 19th century furnishings.

The only completely modern touch is in the kitchen, which glistens with stainless steel and up-to-date equipment.

The dining room is topped by a huge glass-domed roof. Ad adjoining cocktail lounge of ample proportions features a large bar of a bygone period which probably made its first appearance in California in a windjammer after a stormy journey around Cape Horn. Upstairs there are three small private dining rooms. A flat area outside, bordered by a creek which has its source somewhere up the Larkspur canyon, will have tables under the large redwoods and bay trees.

The inn will be open for lunches and dinners (closed Mondays). Dinners will feature a limited menu of prime ribs, steaks and specialty casseroles. Skip plans to supervise the cuisine himself and he has had the experience to do it.

MAYFLOWER INN at 1533 Fourth Street, San Rafael, has added some extra hours and is now open for lunch between 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Previously it open at 4 p.m.

Featured is a very English "Plowman's Lunch," which includes a large slice of ham, pickled onion, cole slaw, two cheeses (Cheshire and Monterey Jack) and roll, served on a wooden platter - all for $1.45.

Another Mayflower lunch favorite is the daily special - homemade soup du jour and a sandwich (ham, cheese, tuna or egg salad) on a soft French roll for 99 cents.

LE CHALET BASQUE in Santa Venetia has been singled out by a gourmet magazine for one of its recipes. It appears that someone at this publication heard about the restaurant's chicken cordon bleu and has requested the secret.

We'll tell you the name of the magazine when the recipe is published.

NEW OWNER Anthony Cirelli has already taken over the operation of the Villa Rafael Motel in San Rafael and was expected to occupy the restaurant and bar by today. Look for a possible temporary closing until a few changes are made.

Former owner Ed Hannagan and his wife are moving to Mendocino County where they have purchased Freddie's, a bar on Highway 1, about a mile south of the Noyo River Bridge near Fort Bragg - another pair of Marinites to take to the north coast. You remember, of course, that former Corte Madera restaurateur Gregory Seubert now runs Noyo River Inn on South Harbor Drive.

Ed and his wife will occupy Freddie's in about a month. The name will be changed to Ed and Marge Hannagan's. They're not serving any lunches or dinners, but if you get thirsty when you're up that way you might drop by and then move in on Gregory for food. Noyo River Inn has become real popular with Fort Bragg folks and with out of towners, including many from Marin.

CAFE AMBROSIA in San Anselmo is now open for dinners on Monday nights, serving the same menu as it does Wednesdays through Sundays. It's still closed on Tuesdays.

THE SERVING of prime rib at The Galley in San Rafael on Easter Sunday went over so well it has been decided to make a regular thing of this every Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

OUT AT RANCHO NICASIO, drummer Johnny Vindigni, who has been playing with The Buddies Friday and Saturday nights for the past five years, has decided to leave the group.

But Sam Franco and Don Wollery (playing accordion and sax respectively) have brought in Lou (Pappy) Vann to replace him. We are sorry to see Johnny go but pleased to learn of such a fine replacement.

Women's League Sponsoring Forum

A forum on sewage disposal and water resources, sponsored by the Southern and Central Marin Leagues of Women Voters, will be held Wednesday from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Strawberry Recreation Center.

Eugene Huggins of the Corps of Engineers will be opening speaker.

Clifford Hits Reagan, Aide

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The president of the San Francisco Bar Association Tuesday criticized Gov. Ronald Reagan and Attorney General Evelle Younger for taking swipes at the state Supreme Court for overturning the death penalty.

Charles H. Clifford, speaking for the association's Board of Directors, called their statements about the court decision "intemperate."

Their charges, Clifford added, "reflect a fundamental misconception or disregard of the responsibility of the judicial branch which the Supreme Court carried out in deciding the capital punishment issue."

Year In Jail For Heroin Sale

Gilbert M. Hennen, 37, of Sausalito, has been sentenced to a year in Marin County Jail and a suspended term in state prison for selling and possessing heroin.

He also was placed on four years' probation in Marin Superior Court.

The parolee from the Calfiornia Rehabilitation Center was found guilty in February of selling $30 worth of heroin to a state agent last October. More heroin was found in his boat when he was arrested there later.

Another man, John R. Gallagher, has been placed on probation for two years and sent to jail for 45 days for his involvement in the sale. He had pleaded guilty to the felonious sale.

Hearing Set

A preliminary hearing for Thomas Edward Umberger, 52, of Santa Venetia has been set for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court. He has been charged with committing unnatural sex acts with a young girl and has pleaded innocent.

IF CROW SWOOPS IN PLEASE CALL

Jazbo, who might surprise someone by swooping in for a landing on his head, has been missing since Sunday, Higbee said.

"She is very responsive to a gloved hand with wiggly fingers," he said.

He asked that anyone who has seen or heard of Jazbo notify him at 1442 South Novato Boulevard.

Bay Agency Is Against South Span

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Bay Conservation and Development Commission yesterday voted in opposition to the proposed Southern Crossing of the Bay.

The commission voted 16-4 with one abstention Thursday to recommend defeat of Measure A, which will be on the June 6 primary ballot in Bay Area counties.

The measure would permit the state Division of Toll Bridge Crossings to build the new bridge without further legislative approval. Defeat would force the engineers to get legislative backing for the unusual Y-shaped bridge between Hunters Point and both Bay Farm Island and San Leandro.

The BCDC had supported the bridge two years ago on grounds that it was outside its jurisdiction to oppose it.

It reversed its position Thursday after hearing conservationists argue that the bridge would generate increased traffic and smog, hurt land values at each end spoil boating and the quality of the bay.

Proponents said that the bridge would not hurt the Bay Area Rapid Transit by more than 10 per cent and would relieve Bay Bridge congestion.

Price Board Criticized At Hearing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Federal Price Commission came under a barrage of criticism from a parade of witnesses Thursday at a public hearing.

"We will have our answer in November," he said.

Edmund J. Flynn, president of the Pacific Maritime Association, warned that stevedoring firms would go out of business unless they can raise prices to meet increased labor costs.

Jane Lundin, representing the Consumers Cooperative of Berkeley, said that if food prices are to be controlled at the retail level, the commission "is going to have to control the costs that contribute to the retail price at every stage of food processing from the farmer up."

Walter E. Hoadley, executive vice president of the Bank of America, said that public support for controls is wavering as it becomes clear that "in and of themselves they cannot cure inflation."

"We do not believe that wage, price and other controls should become a permanent part of the U. S. economic system, because they will reduce our national well-being," he said.

Richard H. Holton, dean of the University of California School of Business and a former assistant commerce secretary, told the commission it was discriminating against manufacturers to the benefit of wholesalers and retailers.

Special Meeting For Fire District

The board will discuss salaries and personnel, the chief said.

Cultural Arts Budgets $3,000

The Rohnert Park Cultural Arts Commission last night adopted a proposed budget of $3,000 for 1972-73.

The request, an increase of $500 over the $2,500 received this year, will be sent to the city council for consideration. In approving the budget, the commission rejected the request of the Rohnert Park Ballet Guild for an outlay of $1,000. The commission said the request was too high since only 21 children are involved.

In other action, the commission elected Dorothy Schmidt as its new chairman and Jerry Snyder as vice chairman.

North Marin Water District Reveals Employees And Incomes

In 1970 and last year, the Independent-Journal published the payrolls of all but one local agency in Marin as a means of taxpayer comparison of public employee salaries.

Officials of the North Marin County Water District withheld that agency's salary list on grounds of invasion of privacy. The Independent-Journal filed suit to btain the payroll, and the state Court of Appeal yesterday upheld a lower court ruling that the district must make the list available.

District officials now have made the agency's payroll available to the public. The employees and their salaries follow·

The Decatur Experiment— One-Shot Recycling Fails

By MONTY HOYT

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Decatur, Ill. (pop: 91,000), set out to discover whether it was feasible to collect three basic household items of refuse on a citywide basis, then recycle them.

"Operation Recycle" did bridge the generation gap. It won support from conscientious kindergarteners and enthusiastic senior citizens alike; collections trucks rumbled through test neighborhoods.

But when it was all over, only 15 per cent of people in the test areas took part, despite the publicity campaign. The biggest deterrent was that Decatur people are already accustomed to having their garbage picked up twice a week by the city's private garbage company — without the effort of sorting and separating beforehand.

The test indicated that here, at least, a one-shot effort does not pay off economically: Despite volunteer workers, operating costs are expected to total some $1,500.

Environmental Protection Agency officials in Washington, asked for comment, said they were skeptical that enough people anywhere would voluntarily sort and separate cans and bottles to make such total recycling economically feasible

However, they said newspapers alone were being recycled profitably in several cities including Madison, Wis., and Cincinnati.

The EPA was also working on several demonstration projects which separate waste by machines. One drawback: the machines are expensive.

The real impetus for the Decatur project came about when the city received a $2.1 million federal grant last October under an emergency employment measure to hire unemployed workers.

"Among many other things, this grant gave us the opportunity to put people to work conducting a major recycling experiment. No city has ever tried door-to-door collection before," said Glenn F. Spachman, project coordinator and assistant to the city manager. He sees the biggest deterrent to recycling as having to depend upon the public to bring articles to a central collection point.

Costs could be brought down with certain modifications, Decatur promoters say.

"We purposely developed a method that was labor intensive because we wanted to create jobs," Spachman said.

Those who participated optimistically expressed hopes that recycling would be continued on a permanent basis and serve as a model for other cities.

Those who did not take part joined EPA's skepticism by maintaining it was too much trouble to clean out jars and cans and to store them.

"We think it's a fine idea," enthused one retired couple. "We can cut and flatten cans now and recycle them just like we did in the war."

Outside their attractive ranch house in a well-to-do section of town stood a dozen large bundles of newspapers neatly tied and ready for pickup. "We'll be able to put our car in the garage for the first time in months."

A recycle poster, one of many produced by school children in a contest publicizing the project and prominantly displayed in local business, showed the red handprints of one of Decatur's kindergarten classes and wistfully asked: "Our hands are helping to save glass, cans and newspapers. Are yours?"

A first grade class marched into the city council chambers to recite a specially prepared proclamation, "whereas recycling is good ..." and helped Mayor James H. Rupp to proclaim March 20-25 as "Operation Recycle Week" in Decatur.

For two weeks before the project, test neighborhoods involving 5,000 families, one-sixth of Decatur's population, received leaflets. Instructions were beamed by the news media: newspapers were to be bundled and put at the curb on the appointed collection day; cans were to be cleaned, labels removed, and flattened when possible; bottles were to be cleaned, assorted by colors, and placed in separate containers.

All last week two collection crews drove through designated neighborhoods — one collected newspapers, the other crew tossed cans into a refuse truck and sorted bottles on the spot into color coded bins in an attached trailer. A few bags of rejected rubbish were left on the curbing with a card explaining why the bundle was not acceptable.

Newspapers were hauled away to a local scrap dealer who paid $12 a ton. The glass was crushed at a central collection point and carted to a glass manufactuere 40 miles away for $20 a ton. Cans were stored for eventual shipment to a steel processor in Chicago for $14 a ton.

At the weekend, residents not involved in the test neighborhoods were given a chance to bring their recyclable trash to a collection depot in the downtown area. There, 125 volunteers worked in three three-hour shifts sorting materials and crushing glass.

Volunteer pickup service was offered to all would-be recyclers who did not have transportation downtown. One senior citizen entered the spirit of the effort by making her delivery in a taxicab.

Nearly 800 vehicles stopped at the recycling center on Saturday. Result: a modest 35½ tons of paper, 17½ tons of glass and 7 tons of cans.

By mid-April a final report and recommendation will be made to the city council whether to continue the effort for seven months on a full citywide basis, Spachman said.

San Anselmo Summer Teen Plan Approved

The San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Commission has approved a plan for a summer teen program and encouraged the city council to fund it with $2,300.

The plan, presented to the commission by Gary Howell, parks and recreation director, calls for a 10-week summer program at the student center of Sir Frances Drake High School.

Howell told the commission that too little money is being spent in San Anselmo for teen activities. He urged that commission members seek full funding of the program at upcoming city council budget hearings.

The commission shelved an offer to the city from Dr. Theodore Althansis to sell 10 acres for $35,000 and donate an adjoining 10 acres of extremely steep open land in the Hawthorne Hills area.

SPAN WIDENING JOB IS TRICKY

Construction crewmen used what they said was a new technique today to move in the 150-ton crane they need to help widen the Richardson Bay Bridge on Highway 101. Confronted with mud that "goes down forever," the Massman Construction Co. workers inched the crane along a series of floating pontoons, to where it was needed to lower huge steel caissons into place. The caissons, resting atop pilings earlier driven 70 to 160 feet into the bay mud, will be filled with concrete to support the additional lane on the west side of the span.

A Shakeup Of Smog District Is Sought

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation replacing the Bay Area's appointed smog officials with a directly elected board and calling for an investigation of their past performance, was introduced yesterday by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose.

The legislation was designed to "clear the air of a lack of public confidence" in the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, McAlister said.

"Many citizens are concerned that the district has not vigorously enforced the air pollution laws and regulations against the major industrial air polluters within the district," he said. McAlister's end of the district is known as the "sump of the Bay Area" because prevailing winds blow heavy concentrations of air pollution into the San Jose area.

McAlister's bill would create electoral districts for an 18-member board, the same number as serve on the current board.

Marin and Sonoma counties would be among smaller counties losing much of their disproportionate vote on the board. Each of the nine counties in the district now has two representatives, but in a one-man, one-vote reapportionment under McAlister's bill Marin and Sonoma would end up with half of the four votes they now have on the district board. Each is represented by a city councilman and a supervisor.

Heavily populated counties in the district long have argued that their voice on the district board should be proportionate to the taxes they pay to the district, and a suit challenging the present representation was filed recently in federal court.

Similar legislation was introduced two years ago in Sacramento, but district officials succeeded in having it killed. Parallel legislation making the board of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District directly elected is moving rapidly through the Legislature this year.

Ex-San Rafael Principal's Marriage Ends

The marriage of former San Rafael High School Principal Alan Ellsberg has been dissolved in Marin Superior Court.

His wife, Luella, won dissolution on grounds of irreconcilable differences and won custody of the couple's one minor child, Suzanne, 15. The Ellsbergs had three grown children, Robert, Patrick and Mary.

Ellsberg took over at San Rafael High School in 1966 after heading Emeryville High School, but resigned last year to take a post at the University of Michigan.

Christ Scientist Church Mower Gone

A lawn mower was stolen from the Second Christ Scientist Church at 901 Las Gallinas Avenue in San Rafael between 9 p.m. Wednesday and 4 p.m. Thursday.

According to police, the mower was removed from the garage of the converted residence after entry was made through a broken window.

Solution Seen To Air Noise

Benjamin R. Ostlind, San Rafael aviation enthusiast, expressed the belief yesterday that air corridors over Novato could be altered, alleviating the noise problem.

Speaking before the Novato Chamber of Commerce board, Ostlind said of eight departure routes from Hamilton Air Force Base, "four are right over the middle of Novato."

He said he believed the Federal Aviation Administration would alter the routes if asked.

Ostlind, an advocate of joint civilian-military aviation use at Hamilton, said opposition to commercial use at the base has been based on noise.

Persons opposing commercial use assume commercial planes will be noisier and assume the "same departure routes, and this isn't necessarily true," Ostlind said.

"The amount of noise irritation from civilian planes would be small, and 90 per cent of the poeple in the area will never see or hear the planes," he said.

In an attempt to illustrate his point, Ostlind showed a chart of the "noise corridor" at San Jose Airport overlaid on the Novato area. The corridor was narrower than that shown in an Association of Bay Area Governments study of what the noise problem might be from both civilian and military flights at Hamilton in 1985.

The narrower corridor, with civilian aircraft only, would mean that noise wouldn't be as close to Bel Marin Keys as previously indicated, he said.

A turn in the departure routes would keep planes from flying over the city hall area of Novato, he said.

Grass Sale Case To Higher Court

Donald E. Dilly, 20, of Novato, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of selling marijuana.

Dilly is to appear April 19 to face a charge that he sold $10 worth of marijuana to a narcotics agent Nov. 19.

Petaluma Schools Facing Crisis—Closures Possible

By BONNIE BARD

The Petaluma Board of Education faced the prospect yesterday of closing one or two elementary schools and putting students on double sessions as an economy move.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer told the board that reserve funds have been depleted in the elementary district and that $150,000 must be cut to balance the 1972-73 budget. A tax rate increase election in the district failed on March 21.

Meyer said about $158,000 could be saved by reducing teachers and supplies, but hoped other steps could be taken without harsh effect on students.

Cuts proposed by Meyer called for release of four teachers, reassignment of six teachers to the high school district and cutting district-supported reading and music teachers, leaving those subjects to regular classroom teachers.

Also proposed for reduction were supplies amounting to $30,430 and contracts with Sonoma County for library books and audio-visual equipment.

Meyer said the district also could consider closicg one or two schools to reduce operating expenses. Savings that would result from closing the various schools were given as: Grant, $3,579; McNear, $6,318; Valley Pista, $6,645; McDowell, $11,915; McKinley, $7,177; Penngrove, $6,793, and Cherry Valley, $9,166.

Meyer said another plan would be to close half of some schools and go to double sessions, while still another would be to cut all bus transportation at a saving of $15,000. Meyer said children in the large Penngrove School attendance area would be effected most by the lack of bus service.

Meyer also suggested that if one of the elementary schools is closed, San Antonio Continuation High School could relocate there to save the $6,000-per-year cost for renting a portion of the Sonoma-Marin Fairgrounds.

Meyer said the district — in a desperate move — also could save $4,000 per year by not maintaining lawns and shrubs at schools.

Business Mgr. George W. Castleberry recommended the closing of schools and double sessions as the most efficient means of saving money.

Board member Robert T. Stimson said he would oppose double sessions in fear the quality of education would suffer with a shorter school day.

Meyer said another plan would be calling a new tax rate election for July 25 in the hope voters have had a change of heart and realize that possible educational cuts mentioned before the last election were not idle threats.

Board member Arthur L. Lafranchi said he believed cuts should be made to emphasize the district's plight to voters.

Dr. William K. Kortum, board president, said decisions on cost-cutting and school closings would be made at the board meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. He said the board then would await comment from residents for consideration at a special meeting April 24 to consider another tax rate increase election.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

STORAGE ROOM — Approved construction of an 1,100-square-foot storage room adjacent to the Agricultural Educational Building at Petaluma Senior High School. Meyer said the $4,000 cost of materials would come from federal vocational education act funds and that summer school students in construction would build the addition at no cost. They will, however, receive academic credit.

SOCIAL SECURITY — Agreed to extend Social Security benefits to fulltime teachers who teach at summer school and night school.

ADVISERS — Appointed Louise Ebert to the Penngrove Citizens Advisory Committee and named Williams Evans to a second term on the group.

Ross House Raid Produces Narcotics

County narcotics agents and Ross police last night raided the home of a man suspected of being heroin dealer with a $9,000 a month business and seized more than $400 in narcotics, at least a dozen guns and numerous household articles traded by addicts for drugs.

Agents said they went to 9 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Ross with a search warrant, but had to kick in the doors to gain entry. They found Mark William Goldberg, 23, with a loaded luger.

He was arrested along with his wife, Gayle, also 23, and Robert Donald McClanahan, 30, of Gate 5 Sausalito, who, agents said, was at the home buying drugs.

All three were booked into Marin County Jail for investigation of possessing narcotics for sale, drug paraphernalia, dangerous drugs and marijuana to appear in Marin Municipal Court today. Agents said Goldberg had been dealing about half a pound of heroin a month for which he was paying $4,500. Cut in purity, it sells for twice that much on the streets, according to agents.

However, only $400 worth of heroin and $60 worth of methamphetamine were seized in the raid, agents said.

Much of the loot found in the house, including the weapons, is believed to have been taken in burglaries and traded for heroin, according to agents.

Driver Killed As Cycle Strikes Box On Freeway

A San Rafael man was killed and a passenger on his motorcycle severely injured when the vehicle struck a box on Highway 101 near Highway 17 in San Rafael about 2:30 a.m. today, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Gene R. Stetler, 32, of 4500 Redwood Highway, Apt. 9, was pronounced dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital at 3 a.m. His passenger, Lynn S. Ullner, 20, of 1135 Fourth Street, San Rafael, was still in surgery later this morning, according to a hospital spokesman. She was listed in poor condition.

She suffered a fractured left leg and ankle and right elbow and badly cut hands and face, the spokesman said. Stetler's death was the 11th on Marin roads this year, compared with five at this time last year.

Officers said Stetler was southbound on the freeway when he struck the box and both riders fell. He was an operator at the Richardson Bay Sanitary District and was a native of Pennsylvania.

Oakland Women Booked In Burglary

Two Oakland women were booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of burglary and attempted burglary, according to sheriff's deputies.

Mamie C. Spencer, 25, and Sharon Williams, 20, were arrested in Marin City, deputies said.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Rock Concert Medical Aspects —Casualties Are Non-Violent

A western college student who attended a pop-music festival wondered why an emergency medical care tent was needed. "There were doctors and nurses on duty, but I never saw them do anything. Young people usually are healthy, and the concerts don't last long enough for anyone to get sick."

Several professional journals have had articles on the need for medical facilities at rock festivals and other gatherings attended by thousands of persons. Not too long ago, I read a British report on a weekend gathering of young people given a total of 24 hours of pop music and all-night entertainment. About 40,000 were expected to attend.

A MARQUEE was set up some distance from the main area to take care of any health problems that might arise. Behind the stage, a first aid center was set up in a small tent. It was staffed by 10 physicians and 36 nonmedical personnel.

According to the report in the British Medical Journal, on the first morning there were only 20 casualties, but by afternoon the number increased. The physicians thought they would be deluged by drug-taking, orgy-making concert-goers. Most of the young men and women were excited, tired and in some cases hungry. In all, there were 493 casualties, but none from violence.

EIGHT WERE treated for drug intoxication and two for drunkenness. There were two cases each of bee stings, dog bites, nasal congestion, diabetes, and allergy. As might be expected, 12 were treated for blistered feet and 70 reported injuries or lacerations. Mre than 100 were given first aid for sunburn, eight for exhaustion and seven for toothache. Oddly, 228 had headaches including migraine. These may have been from hangovers, tension or excitement. Only a few wanted a cold remedy.

The authors had several recommendations relative to water supplies and lavatories. Above all, they wanted heat in the medical tents because it got cold during the night.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent Journal.)

WHITE AND NUMB

A reader writes: Every now and then my husband's toes turn white and lose all feeling. He is 67. Can anything be done for this condition?

REPLY

These symptoms may stem from a circulatory or a nervous disorder. Examination will be needed to find the cause before a remedy can be recommended.

SUBSTITUTE KIDNEY

A reader writes: I have to have one kidney removed. Are plastic kidneys available as substitutes?

REPLY

No, but the remaining kidney will do double duty. The artificial kidney (dialysis) is used for people with uremia who are seriously ill because both kidneys are not functioning. These devices are not put into the body.

BEER AND MILK

Mrs. T. N. writes: Will drinking beer increase the milk production of a nursing mother?

REPLY

I doubt it, even though this belief was common among mothers of a generation ago. The process of nursing (sucking) is the best stimulant.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Defense Made To Flooding

Paul owned a hillside home. One winter the heaviest rains in years fell, washing out the street in front of his house. The house was not damaged — but to get there Paul had to park his car on a street a block away, then walk through a neighbor's backyard.

Paul asked the city council to repair the street. The city did nothing for over a year. Paul then asked payment for loss of access, i.e., loss of his route into and out of the house. The city refused.

Paul sued the city for damages. The city made two defenses: (1) that the flood which washed out the road was an Act of God, and (2) that it did not have money to make repairs.

The court rejected both defenses. It held that a homeowner with property on a public street has a right of entry and exit. It said that the city must either restore the street, or condemn the house and buy the lot. It could not blame the loss on an Act of God.

What if the city changes the level of a street, so that the adjoining land is now five feet above the street, with a high curb which prevents the owner from getting onto the property?

A court ruled that such a change in the level of the street was a "taking" of the adjoining land, and that the city had to pay damages.

However, a property owner does not always have a right to collect damages from he city. One city planned to build a parkway. This required purchase of a number of private homes on the right-of-way. A few persons voluntarily sold their houses to the city. Others did not, and their houses soon became isolated. In the meantime, the parkway could not be built.

The isolated houses were often burglarized. Because of the parkway plans, the owners could not find buyers. A court held that the owners had no claim to damages from the city. It ruled that the decision to build the parkway was a matter for the city council. The court said that the rights of the homeowners were not infringed.

68 Dog Skins Found On Road

LONDON (UPI) — A pile of 68 dog skins found alongside a railway track indicates that a racket involving slaughter of dogs for their coats exists in Britain, according to an animal protection official.

A spokesman for the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (RSPCA) said Thursday the skins were found in February between Coventry and Rugby.

Disclosure of the incident came a day after the British press gave prominent display to a South African businessman's plans to breed and kill dogs for their skins.

A Purse In Booth Boosts Call Cost

A woman who paid a dime to make a phone call Monday lost $110 on the call, according to the Sheriff's department.

Pauline V. Chandler of Mill Valley told deputies she forgot her purse containing the cash in a phone booth in the ARCO service station at 251 Shoreline Highway about 10:49 p.m. and it was gone when she returned shortly afterward.

Church Council Aides Appointed

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)— The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) today announced the appointments of two assistants to the Council of Twelve and reorganization of the presiding bishopric.

The announcements were made by the first presidency during the opening session of the LDS General Conference.

Presiding Bishop John H. Vandenberg and his first counselor, Bishop Robert L. Simpson, were named assistants to the Council of Twelve. They bring the group of general authorities to 15 members.

Victor L. Brown, who served as second counselor to Vandenberg since 1961, was named new presiding bishop.

Other changes included the naming of H. Burke Peterson of Phoenix, Ariz., and Vaughn J. Featherstone, Boise, Idaho, as counselors to Brown.

Just Don't Bank On Lampshades

MEDFORD, Mass. (UPI)—A woman may not be so sure now that lampshades are safer than banks.

The woman, who did not want to be identified, said Thursday that she had been stitching her savings into the linings of lampshades since the 1930s.

"I'm not crazy or anything, it just seems to me lampshades are safer than banks," she said.

Last Friday, she said, she forgot which lampshades had the money and she threw out two of them containing a total of $2,500.

Sanitation workers had picked up the rubbish and were leaving the woman's street when she ran up to them and explained the situation.

The workers went to the dump, emptied the contents of their truck and spent half an hour sifting through the junk. They found the lampshades and the money.

Hussein And Sadat Are Like Conductors

By JOHN K. COOLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BEIRUT — King Hussein of Jordan and President Sadat of Egypt are like two rival conductors playing completely different themes on war and peace in the Middle East.

The result is the familiar and almost total discord in Arab ranks.

From Cairo, President Sadat continues to speak of Egypt's "irrevocable" decision to fight Israel eventually to recover occupied Sinai, and to blame the United States for the stalemate in Middle East peace efforts.

Beyond the opposing viewpoint of Amman and Cairo, the Palestinian guerrilla movements are trying to organize political and military resistance to King Hussein's pan, with at least verbal backing from Cairo.

In an interview published April 4 by Beirut's independent newspaper Al-Nahar, King Hussein warned guerrillas that the Jordan Army was prepared to take them on again, as it did in September 1970 and July 1971.

His plan to federate East and West Jordan after an Israel evacuation is the only possible one, King Hussein told Al-Nahar and, earlier, television viewers on a weekend "Meet the Press" program in the United States.

In his interview from Washington's Walter Reed Hospital with the Washington correspondent of Al-Nahar, King Hussein said "most Palestinians" with whom he had discussed his plan supported it. He avoided answering a question on whether he was prepared to hold a referendum among Palestinians on the plan.

If peaceful settlement failed, King Hussein added, Palestine guerrillas could return to Jordan only as part of an "all-embracing Arab strategy agreed upon in advance."

If the guerrillas wanted a fight, "we will fight them ... our armed forces are composed of Jordanians and Palestinians. As to the Palestinian element in our army, I believe it is larger than all the guerrilla organizations put together."

(However a number of Palestinian officers were transferred or cashiered from the Jordan Army after the Jordan civil war of 1970. Over one thousand Palestinian defectors formed the "Yarmouk Brigade" of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), now stationed in Syria.)

In a speech in Cairo April 2, at a banquet for visiting Romanian President Nicolai Ceausescu, President Sadat said the United States was presenting "misleading slogans" about Middle East peace while aiding Israel to hold Arab land taken in 1967.

A week earlier, Sadat criticized the U.S. before Egyptian army officers. He repeated that Egypt would have to fight Israel and the zero hour would be set "once the domestic front has been organized." This was a strong retreat from Sadat's promises last year that 1971 would be the "year of decision" with Israel.

Feeney Bars Players From Stadium Workouts

NEW YORK (UPI) —The lines in baseball's seven-day-old strike appeared to be hardening today as the National League clubowners closed their stadiums to player workouts and Marvin Miller charged the owners with having rejected their own offer for a settlement.

NL President Charles Feeney ordered all teams to stop letting the players work out at their home stadiums Thursday and American League President Joe Cronin is expected to issue the same order. Several clubs in both leagues had permitted players to work out in their home stadiums.

Miller threw a new verbal dart at the clubowners following a Thursday night meeting with tthe world champion Pirates in Pittsburgh. He then returned to New York to huddle with John Gaherin, the owners' representative in the stalemated negotiations.

"This is an unusual strike situation," said Miller after his meeting with the Pirates. "After rejecting our original proposals, we made some concessions to the owners on their terms, but then we've received no counter-proposal. It's a remarkable state of affairs."

Miller also needled the clubowners when it was suggested that he was being painted as an evil personality because of his role in the dispute over pension and medical benefits which reached an impasse last Friday.

"What the owners have done, perhaps, is make me a symbol for the contempt they hold for the players," said Miller.

"In reality," added Miller, "players of today are in every way different, regarding awareness, than the players of 25 years ago. But the owners are the same people who were running the game then."

Miller shrugged off the fact that the owners are denying workout facilities to the players with the comment, "This is the business of the owners."

Miller and Gaherin met earlier Thursday in New York but failed to make significant progress. Gaherin then conferred with Feeney and Cronin who were in New York to attend the funeral of Gil Hodges, former manager of the New York Mets.

Despite the apparent lack of progress, there were reports that the owners were willing to offer a compromise to the 17 per cent "cost of living" increase demanded by the players for their pension fund. The players argued that the 17 per cent increase was necessary to "stay even" with the terms of the agreement they made with the owners three years ago.

The feeling in baseball, however, was that a majority of the owners still favored the "hard line" voiced two weeks ago by Gussie Busch, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals. Busch said then that he "didn't give a damn" if the players went on strike and "wouldn't give them another cent."

A total of 16 scheduled games has been postponed and-or cancelled and there appears to be no chance that the season can start before Monday. The National Broadcasting Company will deduct $200,000 from its contract with baseball Saturday when the scheduled Game of the Week between the Detroit Tigers and Boston Red Sox is not played.

Novato Mayor's Track Record

By RALPH CHATOIAN

He helped Novato High School launch its first home track and field season back in 1958 by serving as an official. Now, 14 years later, he will be officiating for Novato's team when it opens its home schedule today against San Marin High, his 15th season without missing a home meet. That's some record for holding clock and tape measure.

Gargiulo, principal of the Novato Adult Evening High School, coached football and track-field at Richardson Bay School in Sausalito in 1951 through '54 and also coached the two sports at Encinal High School in Alameda, 1954-57, before coming to Novato High. Among the gridders he coached at Encinal were Tommy Harper and Willie Stargell, who are known today much more for their baseball talents, Harper, now with the Boston Red Sox and Stargell with the world champ Pittsburgh Pirates.

Joe, quite an athletic follower, ran track and played football at San Rafael High and College of Marin in his school days, and also ran in the Dipsea race for several years.

Novato City Attorney Clark Palmer and his wife, Joyce, a math teacher at Novato High, also will be starting their 15th season of officiating the Hornets' home track and field meets.

WHEN THE Fairfax-Sleepy Hollow Little League officials decided upon a name for their new field, they couldn't have come up with a better one. When the new diamond at White Hill School is dedicated for the start of the season, it will be officially proclaimed, the Vernon "Lefty" Gomez Field, in honor of the Fairfax resident and new member of baseball's Hall of Fame.

MORE PAPERWORK in the Security Exchange Commission is delaying the opening of Sears Point International Raceway in Southern Sonoma County. Earliest time for any events there will be pushed back to mid-June, July, or later.

AN ITEM IN this space a few days ago about the Mayflower Inn Baggy Pants soccer team of San Rafael raised the ire of Robert Russo, manager of the Inter-Marin soccer team. Baggy Pants player-coach Ron Patnaude was wrong, said Russo, in claiming the Marin County soccer championship. The Inter-Marin team, which includes some former College of Marin players, beat the Baggy Pants four out of five games. Patnaude, it appears, forgot about the four losses, and just reported the one victory. Inter-Marin, you're still the champs!

Lowell Harris (Terra Linda) is still undefeated in the 120-yard high hurdles for the Oregon State Beavers. His best time this year is 14.3, three-tenths of a second off his all-time best.

Alan Lee (Tamalpais) is No. 2 quarter-mile man at University of California at Santa Barbara with a best of 49 flat. He's also on the UCSB mile relay team which has a best of 3:14.7.

Paul Lee (Terra Linda), outfielder at UCSB, is batting an even .300 for the baseball team, with two home runs, three triples, four doubles and 13 runs batted in for 19 games.

EYE SEE — Golf veteran Arnold Palmer, who recently started wearing contact lenses, rubbed his eyes during practice before teeing off in the opening round yesterday of the Masters Tournament in Augusta, Ga. He shot a 70, two strokes behind leader Jack Nicklaus.

Mets Pick Berra, Get Staub For 3

NEW YORK (UPI)—Yogi Berra, canned after leading the New York Yankees to a pennant in 1964, had a managerial "vote of confidence" from the New York Mets today plus something even more important: "a bat."

The Mets announced Thursday the 46-year old Berra, a coach for them since 1965, had agreed to a two-year contract succeeding the late Gil Hodges, who managed New York to its "miracle" World Series victory in 1969. The announcement came a few hours after Hodges, who died of a heart attack last Sunday, was buried in a private ceremony.

At almost the sahe time the Mets announced the elevation of Berra they revealed that they had obtained Rusty Staub from the Montreal Expos in exchange for Ken Singleton, Mike Jorgensen and Tim Foli. A proven big league hitter who had a .311 average with 19 homers and 97 runs batted in for the Expos last season, the 28-year old Staub is expected to fill the Mets' need for a long ball in their lineup. The Mets, who finished in a third-place tie with the Chicago Cubs in the National League's Eastern Division last season, didn't have a player who hit more than 14 homers or drove in more than 69 runs.

Nicklaus On Top In Masters Golf

68 By Jack Leads Snead By One Shot

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus was trying his best to soft-pedal talk about a "grand slam," but that golfing dream was bright and shining today as he threatened to turn the 36th Master's golf championship into a runaway.

"I'll play better tomorrow," promised Nicklaus after shooting a four-under-par 68 Thursday in the Masters' opening round for a one-stroke lead over nearly 60-year-old Sammy Snead and two strokes over a 42-year-old Arnold Palmer, who is trying to rediscover his winning touch with a pair of contact lenses.

The first round's drama for Nicklaus was packed into a six-hole span-the 11th through 16th holes—during which he went from two-over-par to four-under-par with an eagle, four birdies, and one par.

Until then Snead, who will be 60 next month, was in the clubhouse as the leader after a stunning 33-36—69 that turned back the clock to his glory years. Asked if it was a "fun" round for him, the old Slammer drawled, "Fun, hell—there was blood on every shot."

A gamble with an iron shot on the 11th hole was, Nicklaus admitted, the thing that "turned it around for me."

"I decided I had to get something going, so I hit the iron shot a lot closer to the water than I normally would," he said. "It worked fine. And then when I was putting on the 11th, the putter suddenly got that right feel for me and I felt I could do anything with it."

On the 15th, Nicklaus canned a curling 25-footer for his eagle and went into a little dance of joy. On the 16th he sank another 25-footer, that one from six feet off the fringe.

Nicklaus and Snead each have won the Masters three times and Palmer holds the record of four victories—so the Masters now presents the unusual aspect of three leaders who among them have won the title 10 times.

Besides the top three, the only par-breakers among the 84 starters in the first round were gray-haired Paul Harney of Holden, Mass., and Wake Forest senior Jim Simons, who will be 22 next month, each with a one-under-par 71. Ten golfers were at par 70.

But way back at 75 and battling to survive the cut now is Lee Trevino, the U.S. and British Open champion who passed

VOLATILE AFFAIR

Warrior Crown Dreams Dashed By Milwaukee '5'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—They're not going to hand out any awards for excellence for the Milwaukee Bucks-Golden State Warriors' game Thursday night.

It was a game that saw the lead change hands several times, a fight break out and the visiting villain getting a standing ovation from the home crowd.

When it was over, the Bucks had a 108-100 win safely in their pockets and the first round of the National Basketball Association Western Conference playoffs in their trophy case. They had also earned the right to meet the Los Angeles Lakers in the Western Conference title series — another best-of-seven affair that opens Sunday in Los Angeles.

"I'm glad that's over with," said Bucks Coach Larry Costello. "that was a real tough series. All we've been hearing is Los Angeles, Los Angeles, so it's been pretty hard getting up for the Warriors."

The business at hand—even before they meet the Lakers—is to get healthy as soon as possible.

The Bucks started the game with only three guards. Wally Jones and Jon Mc Glocklin were injured and Oscar Robertson was slowed by a recurrence of his abdominal strain.

"It hurt a little bit out there," said Robertson. "But now it's over and I'm glad. I can use a couple of days rest."

The game started off calmly enough. The first half ended with Golden State on the better end of a 55-53 score. Robertson was slow in the first half and the Bucks just couldn't get going.

The Warriors came out roaring in the third period and they built up a 69-60 lead. But then the Bucks seemed to make up their minds that they didn't want to go back to Oakland for a sixth game.

Milwaukee chipped away and closed the gap to 79-78 when the fireworks started.

Lucius Allen threw a punch at the Warriors' Fritz Williams and they started an old-fashioned donnybrooke. Allen knocked Williams to the ground and jumped on top of him, throwing punches. Allen was called for a punching foul—even though he looked the worse for wear.

Then as Williams was heading for the foul line, he passed Allen and after making what seemed like a conciliatory ges-

Giants' Hushed Clubhouse

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Juan Marichal, Sam McDowell, Don Carrithers, Bobby Bonds and other San Francisco Giants showed up Thursday at Candlestick Park out of habit.

They were greeted by a hushed clubhouse, empty stands and the new electronic scoreboard which read "No ball game today. Players' strike." So the players chatted, took swings with a golf club, read papers and smoothed out uniforms which they might not wear for a while.

Marichal had been scheduled to open the season against the San Diego Padres Thursday. Today was to have been an off day with McDowell going against the Padres Saturday.

Only Giants owner Horace Stoneham held hope that possibly the Saturday game could be played.

Stoneham was about to allow the gathered players to hold a workout at Candlestick Thursday but the word came down from the National League office not to allow striking players the use of home stadiums.

"If the strike isn't settled by Friday night, I'll advise the players to pack up and return to their homes throughout the country," said Stoneham.

8 In NBA Hardship Draft

NEW YORK (UPI) —Seven underclassmen and one dropout have been made eligible because of hardship for the National Basketball Association's annual college player draft next Monday and three men on the list are considered "bluechip" prospects by the pro scouts.

The three standouts are Robert McAdoo of North Carolina, a 6-9 forward; Mel Davis of St. John's, a 6-5 forward; and Brian Taylor of Princeton, a 6-2 guard. McAdoo and Taylor have said they will definitely turn pro next year "if the price is right" while Davis is undecided All three are juniors.

Others awarded hardship eligibility Thursday by the NBA are Tony Delgado, a 6-2 junior from Sienna College in Loudenville, N.Y.; Mike Reid, a 6-3 junior from the University of California at Riverside; John Tinsley, a 6-7 sophomore from Pfeiffer College in Misenheimer, N.C.; Philmore Westbrook, a 6-3 freshman from Albemarle College in Elizabeth City, N.C., and Walter Gardner, a 6-3 guard who dropped out of Kaskaskia College in Centralia, Ill.

McAdoo, a second team All-America this past season, led the Tar Heels to a third place finish in the NCAA tournament and was the team's leading scorer and rebounder during the regular season.

Dean Smith, coach of North Carolina, said earlier this week that he had urged McAdoo to accept a professional offer if one were forthcoming. Smith said he hoped McAdoo would complete his college education at a later date and that he get an incentive bonus by the team that signs him when he gets his degree.

Taylor, a third team All-America, averaged better than 25 points a game for Princeton this season and led the Tigers to a second place finish in the Ivy League and a berth in the National Invitation Tournament.

Although he did not perform up to expectations in the NIT, Taylor was considered by chief scout Dick McGuire of the New York Knicks to be the best guard in the country.

Davis, an honorable mention All-America, led St. John's in scoring and rebounding during the season but suffered a serious knee injury during the quarterfinals of the NIT and missed the remainder of the tournament.

Davis indicated after the injury that he would return to school for his senior year because he felt his value to the pros had dropped considerably. He also wants his degree.

The meet is co-sponsored by the Marin Aquatic Club and the Novato Recreation Department. There is no admission charge.

28 Indicted In Alleged Horse Race Fixing Case

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Twenty-eight persons, including one state racing official, have been indicted in connection with alleged horse race fixing at Lincoln Downs, Attorney General Richard J. Israel said today.

Seven of those named on the 33 indictments returned Thursday by a Providence County grand jury have been arrested, he told a mid-morning news conference.

One of the defendants was identified as Adolph Caliri of Providence, a state racing official. The other six were trainers and owners, Israel said, and they were taken into custody at Narragansett Park in Pawtucket.

The race fixing allegedly took place between October 1970 and March 1971, the attorney general said.

Israel said the grand jury returned five indictments against a number of defendants for conspiracy to bribe and corrupt racing officials, jockies, horse owners, traineers and track employes.

Twenty four of the indictments charged persons involved in horse racing in Rhode Island of "unlawfully accepting a bribe to influence the performance of their duty in the running and promotion of certain horse racing in the state."

Costello thought the fight "might have picked us up a little bit."

He might have been right, because the Bucks then built a 90-83 lead and held on for the win.

up the Masters twice in the past because he didn't feel his game was suited to the course. Golf's "Super Mex" never got untracked Thursday, bagging only one birdie against two bogeys and one double bogey.

Coody, of Abilene, Tex., held the lead at one point in the day when he clouted a five-iron into the cup for a hole-in-one in the 190-yard sixth hole, a downhill shot to a comparatively small green. But then he immediately took a duffer's triple-bogey seven on the seventh hole and finished the day as one of nine players at one-over-par 73.

NCAA Will Allow Sugar Bowl To Switch Rather Than Fight

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Sugar Bowl football game will be permitted to change its date from the traditional New Year's Day to Dec. 31, 1972, officials of the National Collegiate Athletic Association ruled yesterday.

The Sugar Bowl has had difficulty attracting a television audience in recent years because it has been programmed opposite another post-season collegiate game, the Cotton Bowl.

Dec. 31 was open this year because the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston, which normally is held on New Year's Eve, requested a shift to Dec. 30, a Saturday night.

ATLANTA — Concerned about the large number of college football players who suffer head and face injuries, a medical group suggested yesterday a softer shell be used on the outside of football helmets in a move to cut down on injuries.

Dr. Samuel I. Fuenning, director of the student health service at the University of Nebraska, said if the softer shell were adopted, it probably would reduce the extent of injury caused by the impact of one player against another.

BERRA

kees and is a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, was fired by the Yankees after they lost the 1944 World Series to the St. Louis Cardinals in seven games.

The charge against Berra, who succeeded Ralph Houk in '64, was that he was too familiar with his players and did not maintain sufficient discipline over them.

His appointment to manage the Mets represents a radical departure from the techniques of Hodges who had a highly professional and even cold relationship with his players. Hodges was a strong silent type with a subtle sense of humor. Berra is an earthy, easily-approached man who thinks nothing of playing a round of golf or having a drink with his players.

Berra said he had learned a lot since his one-year managerial experience with the Yankees and added, "I didn't think I did that bad then...after all, I did win the pennant."

Staub, who plays both first base and the outfield, is a 6-foot, 2-inch, 205-pound lefthanded hitter who can hit either for average or power. He batted .333 with 10 homers for the Houston Astros in 1967 and .274 with 30 homers for Montreal in 1970.

Singleton, a 6-foot, 5-inch, 220-pound switch-hitter, was a disappointment for the Mets in 1971 but is regarded by many National League rivals as a potential star. Foli, who plays three infield positions, should play regularly for the Expos and Jorgensen, a strong lefthanded hitter, never really had a chance to win a regular job with the Mets.

American Swim Marks Shattered

DALLAS (UPI) — Veterans Gary Hall and Susie Atwood streaked to new American records Thursday to pave their way to the Olympic tryouts with gold medals from the Amateur Athletic Union Swimming Championship.

Bald-headed Steve Genter also grabbed a new AAU record with a time of 1:39.23 in the men's 200-yard freestyle, passing a mark he set that morning in the preliminaries at 1:39.84.

Hall, who won the men's 400-yard individual medley in 1970 with a time of 3:59.7, took his title back from teammate Gunnar Larsson of Indiana, with a new American and AAU record of 3:58.09. Larsson finished a close second with 3:59.26.

Miss Atwood, who broke her own American record in the 200-yard backstroke Wednesday, breezed to a new American and AAU record of 4:28.85 Thursday, edging out newcomer Jennifer Bartz of Santa Clara, who finished second with 4:31.63 in the 400-yard individual medley.

Miss Bartz set a surprise record in the event during the preliminaries but slipped behind the more experienced Miss Atwood in the finals.

Miss Atwood, who at 18 could be considered one of the "older swimmers, called the Loos Natatorium "the fastest pool I've ever competed in." One of America's top swimmers, she has hinted she may retire after the Munich Olympics. The AAU meet is the last big meet before the Olympic tryouts.

There was no action involving Marin County swimmers in the meet yesterday.

ABA Cougars Win Cunningham Battle

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—The Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association have won a court of appeals victory in their fight to lure Billy Cunningham away from the rival National Basketball Association.

The 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Thursday upheld the Cougars' $450,000 three-year contract with Cunningham, who played this past season for the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA.

Cunningham, a former player at the University of North Carolina, claimed the Carolina contract was invalid because the Cougars declined to pay him an $80,000 bonus.

The Cougars said they withheld the bonus because of an oral agreement by Cunningham to a $225,000 contract with the 76ers for the 1970-72 season.

"We do not think the Cougars should be penalized for acting in response to reality," said the court in overturning a U. S. district court ruling.

FISH AND GAME

A Strange Place To Get Salmon

By AL GIDDINGS

Did you ever hear the expression, "Believe nothing that you hear, and only half of what you see?" Two friends of mine went salmon fishing last Tuesday and I had talked to them the evening before, requesting they bring me a salmon. I told them I would meet them under the Richmond Bridge near piling number 50 about noon.

I had just arrived there, when here they came. They passed a sack across to my boat with not one, but two salmon. (You can't beat that!) Then they started trolling for stripers. I guess five minutes passed when they caught a fish - a striper. A little later, another boat came along and asked if they had anything. Did they hold up the striper? Nope, they held up a salmon. Naturally, the guy in the other boat thought they caught it there.

THEN I WENT into Loch Lomond, and the word got around that I have two salmon. I had only been gone an hour or so, so they figured I caught them at the bridge. That night, Sam Knoles called and asked about my having two salmon. I said, "Sure, I got them down near piling number 50, and that was the truth!

TUESDAY, FOUR anglers at Buck's Landing had four sturgeon that totaled out to 212 pounds. I talked to Gene Schettler of Petaluma, one of the anglers. He says sturgeon fishing is good, but it takes patience; and you'll have to fight off the small sharks out there. The fish were all caught somewhere between the Pumphouse and the S. P. Buoy. Best baits are ghost shrimp, or a good wad of grass shrimps. You need plenty of bait. You can get either type baits at Buck's Landing on the Santa Venetia Slough.

With outdoorsman Joseph Paul's recent death, California Trout's newly elected president, Richard May of Orinda, had this to say: "It is with feelings of deep personal grief and profound regret that my first duty as president has been to inform our members by letter of the death of our founding President, Joseph Paul, following a brief illness. I pledge to our members and well wishers, however, that although our long time beloved leader has fallen, Cal Trout will go on. Joe Paul welded together a formidable team of co-leaders and workers. The team has now closed ranks, and with deep re-dedication and new found purpose, we shall carry forward our fight on all fronts as ever before".

ABOUT TWO weeks ago, 30,000 silver salmon, all yearlings, were planted in Papermill Creek. With the lack of water, the plants were made in some of the deeper holes in Taylor Park. In one of the holes, 22 large steelhead were noted which made for an exciting area. The fish were due to go to sea about April 1, and in checking the area daily, it seems as though most of the fish have successfully migrated, including the 22 steelheads. The toughest period was through Easter week when school was out. Some of the kids on vacation thought that collecting fresh salmon was more action than in collecting Easter eggs or bunnies even though the season was closed! We had kids come from as far as Hill Junior High School in Novato just to give it a go at those fish. These kids really get the word these days.

With the 30,000 salmon hopefully all gone, the Fish and Game Dept. then planted 10,000 yearling steelheads. They should have also gone to sea especially with the rains this past week. So fishing for salmon and steelhead next year and the year after should be great. Let's hope so. The grilse of these plants should be back next November. (A grilse is a two year old male salmon or steelhead).

Toronto Surprises Bruins; Blues Bow

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Hockey buffs with a short memory and a long dislike for the favorite can begin to take hope once again that the big, bad Bruins can be had.

Just one year ago, in the second game of the Stanley Cup quarter-finals, the supposedly invincible Bruins blew a 5-1 lead to Montreal, losing the game, 7-5, and eventually being eliminated by the Canadiens.

Once again Boston rates as the big favorite in this season's playoffs, but once again the second game of the quarterfinals has proved a hex. This time Toronto overcame deficits of 2-0 and 3-2 to whip the Bruins 4-3 Thursday night on a goal by Jim Harrison at 2:58 of sudden death overtime.

"We figured we could beat them and this will give us a big boost," said Harrison, whose 30-foot slapshot enabled the Leafs to escape with a 1-1 standoff in Boston, with the next two games of the best-of-seven set to be played in Toronto over the weekend.

"Not too many teams come in here and beat Boston," exulted Frank 'King" Clancy, the substitute Toronto coach. "But our fellows came in here and played great and beat Boston. We beat a hell of a hockey team. This will lift us. Everyone had us counted out, expecting us to lose in four straight."

The three other playoff series went according to form Thursday night with the home team winning in each case for 2-0 leads. In another sudden death overtime, Bill Goldsworthy scored after 1:36 to lift the Minnesota North Stars to a 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Blue; the New York Rangers scored three goals in the final period to beat Montreal 5-2; and the Chicago Black Hawks edged past the Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2.

Ex-A's Pitcher Grant Tabbed

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Former Oakland A's pitcher Jim (Mudcat) Grant, who was given a tryout with the Cleveland Indians as a free agent this spring then offered a chance to pitch for the Tribe's farm team at Portland, Ore., said today he will go to work for Charlie Finley, owner of the Athletics.

Grant, 37, who posted a 6-3 record with 17 saves for Oakland and the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates last season, said he will be a pitcher-coach with Des Moines, the A's top farm club.

Men's Golf Tourney Scheduled

Franchini's Chateau, 2500 Redwood Highway, will hold the tourney for 64 golfers at Marin Country Club, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

The field, which includes professional career men, paid $20 for green fees and food levies.

Calloway handicaps will be used in the 18-hole tourney, according to tourney publicity chairman George Leonetti. Leonetti added that a dinner "back at our restaurant will be held after the tournament, and there will be prizes for all."

Meanwhile, Indian Valley Men's Club Spring Handicap tournament golf crowns are adorned by Al Leach, Hal Walton and Chuch Meyer.

The trio was competing in a five-week tournament, ending last weekend.

BASEBALL'S STRIKE

An Argument In Soundproof Closet

By PHIL ELDERKIN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Truth has to change hands only a few times to become fiction, which is what makes the current baseball players' strike so difficult to evaluate. Who do you believe?

Here you have two men, Marvin Miller and John Gaherin, arguing in a soundproof closet, while nobody outside of baseball really knows what is going on.

Miller represents the players and Gaherin the owners. The issue, if you can believe the bold print, is a very simple one. The players want an increase in what is already a very lucrative pension plan and the owners don't want to give it to them.

This prompts two questions:

(1) Are the players asking too much?

(2) Can the owners, who are already operating under spiralling labor costs, afford to dump roughly $4.5 million into making the players more comfortable?

Since nobody is about to open his books to the public, who can really tell?

But there are some hard facts which can be stated: For example, a player (after only four years in the big leagues) is entitled to $174.34 a month in retirement benefits at age 45.

According to the Sporting News, the baseball weekly out of St. Louis, players' salaries currently range from $13,500 to $160,000 — with the average levelling off at $28,500.

If there were a truck strike or a picket line made up of coal miners or garbage men, the entire nation would be in trouble.

The razor blade people will have no trouble finding a basketball player who shaves or a hockey player who, for money, can be coaxed to comb his hair on TV.

Nobody in government is about to invoke the Taft-Hartley law or call for all-night sessions at the White House.

The only real losers, if the strike should last for a full season, would be those cities or states on the big league map which are trying to meet the monthly payments on multimillion-dollar stadiums.

Meanwhile, Miller says the amount of money he would like the owners to put into the players' pension fund ($850,000) is not really the decisive question. To him, the issue is how the money should be applied.

Several months ago the owners offered the players an increase of $490,000 over last year, which Miller advised against. He claimed he said no because the owners wanted to earmark that increase for health benefits.

"They offered nothing in increased player benefits," Miller explained, "whereas the Player' Association wanted pension benefits upped 17 per cent to cover the rising cost of living since the last agreement in 1969."

To achieve this figure, according to the Players' Association, would require no additional money from the owners. The total cash now invested in the pension plan is around $44 million. The plan assumes it will earn 4½ per cent interest. However, Miller claims it is actually earning 6 per cent.

If the strike goes into extra innings, as it might, the $120,000 outfielder may find himself in limited demand —even as an elevator operator.

Baseball used to be such a simple game — like ball one, strike two, and kill the umpire! Now they play it with dollar bills rampant on a field of blue chip stocks!

What ham did for Virginia, Old Crow did for Bourbon.

Even before Virginia's George Washington became President, Virginia was famous for the good taste of her country hams. Not long after, the good taste of Old Crow made Bourbon famous.

Before 1835, Bourbon was made every which way. That year, Dr. James Crow took it out of the hit-or-miss league and created the process that gave Bourbon its mellow taste —and good name: Old Crow.

Exploration Well To Deepen On Ex-Supervisor's Property

Geothermal Resources International Inc. and Getty Oil Company are joining forces to deepen a geothermal (steam) exploration well on Lake County property owned by former Marin Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen.

The property is Kettenhofen's S Bar S Ranch at the foot of Mount Knocti between Lower Lake and Kelseyville. Steam wells are the cleanest method of generating electricity and is the least damaging to environment, said Kettenhofen.

He leased the drilling rights on his ranch to Magna-Eureka Power Co., which subleased to GRI. If the steam well proves successful, the ranch owner will get a percentage of the gross.

Kettenhofen has several other business interests including a new retail facility called Anchorage Hardware & Marine, Inc. at the Industrial Center Building in Sausalito.

Wall Street Trade Slows After Rush

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market moved lower today on profit taking after two strong sessions. Trading was fairly active, but not as heavy as the past two days.

The selling came as no surprise to most analysts in wake of the sharp gains of the past two sessions. How long it would last and how far it would go was a question mark.

On the American Stock Exchange, prices also were lower in fairly active trading. DHJ Industries was the most active Amex issue, off 1-8 at 25 1-4 on 49,400 shares.

General Telephone & Electronics was the most active New York Stock Exchange issue, off 1-8 at 29 1-2. American Telephone & Telegraph was second, down 1-8 at 43, and McGraw-Hill followed, unchanged at 18 5-8.

Steels, airlines and aircrafts mostly were lower. KLM Royal Dutch eased 1 1-4 in the airlines.

Chemicals, oils and rails were mixed. DuPont dropped 2 and Eastman Kodak 1 1-2 in the chemicals.

Witco Chemical Acquires Retzloff

NEW YORK (BW) — Witco Chemical Corp. has acquired Retzloff Chemical Co. from Retzloff Industries of Houston for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Retzloff Chemical, with sales in excess of $5 million in 1971, will continue business as a subsidiary of Witco Chemical.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

High Yield Stock Needed For Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have 100 shares of Mead Corp. which recently cut its dividend rate. Should I sell? — D.G.

A. If you are dependent on dividends for supplementing your income, then shares, which return only 3.3 per cent should be switched to a higher yield issue. If not, Mead should be held for recovery reflecting a major restructuring of operations. Although some benefits of this redirection of activities was apparent in 1971 results, more important gains should accrue this year. Marginal operations have been phased out and high profit divisions strengthened. In addition, demand for pulp, paper and lumber is expected to increase 18 per cent to 20 per cent this year.

Q. I would appreciate your opinion of Delaware Lackawana 5's of 1985 selling at 45½. My thinking is that a bond selling below par has a yield greater than its coupon rate plus offering a hedge against inflation in that it will be redeemed at par. — C.S.

A. Your theory is faultless but your choice of vehicle is not. The price on this particular issue reflects its high degree of inherent risk. Rated CCC, this Pennsylvania Division Refunding & Collateral Trust series has not defaulted on interest although the line has two other debt issues in default.

Two AA-rated bonds, Sears, Roebuck 4¾s of 1983 and Sinclair Oil 4.60s of 1988 return 5.7 per cent and 6.0 per cent, respectively at current trading levels. The former is selling $180 below par and the latter $230. Yield to maturity works out at about 7 per cent in each case.

Q. Does Ford have a nonpolluting engine in conjunction with Thermo Election? — N.H.

A. This OTC company has a 5-year agreement with Ford to develop commercially a Rankine steam engine. Ford holds 60,000 shares of Thermo and has an option to buy 40,000 more. Thermo will retain rights to technology from this program but will contribute $2 million toward development costs. Shares are trading about 50x projected fiscal 1972 earnings.

New Store Has More For Sports

Big 5 Sporting Goods, which took over the former Sports Land store at Northgate Shopping Center, has a wider selection of merchandise under new management.

Manager Paul W. Queen invited Marin residents to inspect the new store during the grand opening, which started today. Queen was with Sports Land in San Francisco for 12 years before taking over the new Northgate store at 470 Las Gallinas Avenue.

"We have a beautiful line of fishing gear, expanded line of guns, and an enlarged camping and back packing section," said Queen. The store is open seven days a week, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 to 9 on Saturday, and 10 to 6 on Sunday.

Big 5 Sporting Goods, with headquarters in Los Angeles, bought the Northgate store from Sports Land last month to bring its total ownership to 24 stores.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

You Are Required To File A Declaration Of Estimated Tax

You are required to file a Federal declaration of estimated tax for 1972 if you can reasonably expect gross income over:

1. $20,000 for a head of household, a widow or widower entitled to the special tax rate, or a married person entitled to file a joint declaration with a spouse who does not receive wages during the year.

2. $10,000 for married persons entitled to file a joint declaration if both spouses receive wages during the year.

3. $20,000 for other single individuals.

4. $5,000 for a married individual not entitled to file a joint declaration.

5. Gross income can reasonably be expected to include more than $500 from sources other than wages subject to withholding.

No declaration is required if the estimated tax can reasonably be expected to be less than $100.

If you are self-employed, you must add the self-employment tax of 7.5 per cent on the first $9,000 of self-employment income subject to the tax. In most cases, this will be $9,000 x 7.5 per cent = $675.

If you are subject to withholding, you should deduct your estimated withholding from your estimated tax.

If you are an employee, the law provides that you can agree with your employer to have him take more than the regular rate of withholding out of your paycheck so that you will have your taxes fully paid at the end of the year. There is a special place (line 7) on the W-4, Employee's Withholding Exemption Certificate, for this.

If you are receiving a pension, you can now have the tax withheld. All you have to do is file Form W-4P with the payor of the pension stating the amount you want withheld and the other information required.

Your estimated tax paid must be at least 80 per cent (66⅔ per cent for fishermen and farmers) of the total tax due; otherwise, you may be subject to penalties for under-estimating.

Your estimate and one-quarter of the tax is due on April 17, 1972. Payments are due on June 15 and Sept. 15, 1972, and Jan. 15, 1973. On any of these due dates, you can file an amended estimate and change the amount of tax you are paying.

If you make at least two-thirds of your income as a farmer or fisherman, you can wait until Jan. 15, 1973, to file, but then you will have to pay the estimated tax all at once, or you can file your final return by March 1, 1973, and pay all your tax then, and not bother with an estimate at all. This only applies if you are a farmer or fisherman.

Any tax paid on a separate declaration may be used to pay the tax due on a joint final return; likewise, any tax paid on a joint declaration may be used to pay the tax due on separate final returns.

Record Earnings And Sales Reported

DALLAS (BW) — Campbell Taggart Inc. has reported record first quarter sales and earnings with net income increasing 14 per cent over 1971.

Record Gross

CHICAGO (BW) — Sears, Roebuck and Co. has reported sales for the five weeks ended April 1 were 12.8 per cent higher than last year. Gross sales were a record $1,033,329,488, an increase of $117,036,806 over the comparable period of 1971.

Can 'Ticket' Prevail In Novato Election?

Marin's biggest city council contest for next Tuesday's elections, that in Novato, has some interesting facets.

Novato is noted for big candidate fields, but this year's is a whopper — topped only by that for the first council when the city was incorporated. Eleven aspirants are after three council positions. Only one of them is an incumbent, and he is in office by appointment.

The contest has brought claims that two "slates" of candidates are among the 11 — although those named as being on the slates deny it. One of these, which perhaps most accurately could be styled the "anti-growth" slate because of its candidates' stand for preserving the environment at cost of population growth, is made up of David Price Jones (the incumbent), John Schoonover, and Edward T. Ryken. The other, which in opposition would have to be called the "growth" slate, includes Daniel Donovan, Fred Ruegg, and Dorothy Young (the only woman candidate among the 11).

The philosophy of Jones, Ryken and Schoonover is described as matching that of the two holdover council members, George Quesada and F. Wayne Sartain.

It will be interesting to see whether a "ticket" can triumph in an election with such a big field as 11 candidates. Attempts to elect "tickets" in Marin's local elections have not been notably successful in the past with much smaller fields to scatter the vote.

Needed Bond Issue

Mill Valleyans will have a second chance Tuesday to pass bonds for a needed new firehouse. A $275,000 issue will be on the municipal election ballot there. A slightly smaller version got 55 per cent favorable vote — well short of the necessary two-thirds majority — in a special election last year.

Mill Valley's fire situation is a difficult one, and the second firehouse is needed to provide more adequate protection. The city council has done well to put the issue on the ballot — thereby showing support for its fire department in curbing fires, rather than taking the opposite approach which it has taken with the police department: that of forbidding release of burglary information instead of beefing up the department to cope with the crime problem.

We hope two-thirds of Mill Valleyans see the need for greater fire protection and vote for the bonds. Yes, they'll add to the tax rate, but there may be a saving in the long run if better fire protection keeps insurance rates from skyrocketing.

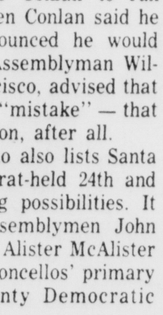
Republicans Hope To Win Election 'From Bottom Up



By RUS WALTON

In presidential years, especially, there is a tendency to forget that elections are usually won from the bottom up.

That is to say: parties can elect a president or a governor, and lose control of the Congress or the Legislature. But, it is unusual for a party to win control of the Congress or the Legislature and fail to win the top office.

In 1968, Richard Nixon carried California by 139,679 votes. The Republican candidates got 54 per cent of the statewide vote cast in the 80 Assembly district races. That gave them 41 seats and control of the State Assembly.

In 1970, Ronald Reagan defeated Jesse Unruh by 501,057 votes. The GOP got only 49 per cent of the Assembly districts vote — and only 37 of the 80 Assembly seats.

REPUBLICAN LEGISLATIVE leaders are determined to undo the damage this year. The Republican Caucus has been working quietly with the GOP State Central Committee's Cal-Plan. The goal is to regain control of both houses of the state Legislature. And, they are cautiously optimistic.

— the economic situation in California "is definitely improved over 1970."

— Republicans have "more outstanding candidates in marginal and non-incumbent districts than they did in 1970."

— there is a united, across-the-board effort. Most of the campaign effort and money in 1970 was directed toward the re-election of Governor Reagan and other statewide constitutional officers. Legislative races were largely ignored.

DEMOCRATS NOW hold 42 seats in the Assembly. The way the Republican memo sees it, 30 of those seats are "safe" and 12 are vulnerable. Republicans hold 37 seats —31 "safe" and six vulnerable.

Obviously the GOP plans to focus efforts on the "pulnerable" Democrats.

The memo predicts an easy win in San Diego's 76th Assembly District. Last month this traditionally Republican district was captured by Democrat Bob Wilson in an upset special election victory.

Orange County's 69th district is another seat the GOP planners are counting on. They have coveted it before but incumbent Democrat Ken Cory has proved an illusive target. Despite his proclivity for shoulder-length hair, love beads, knickers and booties, Cory manages to hold his seat.

This time it may be different. William Dannemeyer, a former legislator and Democrat-turned-Republican, is out for Cory's curly locks.

ANOTHER DECISIVE battle is shaping up in the 37th Assembly District in Ventura County. Republican John Conlan, an articulate and personable county supervisor, is challenging incumbent Democrat Ken McDonald.

Conland and McDonald are long-time personal friends. It took pressure from Republican big-wigs, from the governor on down, to persuade Conlan to run against his friend. When Conlan said he would, McDonald announced he would retire. Subsequently, Assemblyman Willie Brown, D-San Francisco, advised that McDonald had made a "mistake" — that he would seek re-election, after all.

The Republican memo also lists Santa Clara County's Democrat-held 24th and 25th districts as strong possibilities. It suggests that both Assemblymen John Vasconcellos (24th) and Alister McAlister (25th) can be had. Vasconcellos' primary opposition is the county Democratic chairman.

The memo points out, however, that if organized labor pours men and money into some of the marginal districts, things could be rough.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Sausalito Police Provide Security

As residents of Sausalito, my wife and I would commend our police department for giving us what many communities lack — and that is a sense of security. We like to walk and it's very reassuring to see the police are reguarly patrolling Bridgeway — a street that collects some real weirdos.

We've seen several incidents involving rapid and efficient police work and we have nothing but admiration for this protection. So if you want a safe place to live, work (and walk), we recommend Sausalito. Now you can't say that for some other areas, like, for example, Sleepy Hollow.

Politician's Ploy: Claim The Credit

Can a candidate win by running on the records of others, rather than his own?

This is the question that ran through my mind at the Larkspur City Council candidates' night.

Rat-a-tat-tatting a rapid barrage of achievements, Bill Fleckles reached far back into time to record most of the good deeds done by the entire city council, various citizen's groups, and probably the planning commission. Some of these, I seem to recall, passed practically over his dead body. Yet he modestly claimed credit for this incredible list of accomplishments. Total credit.

Why Candidate's Statement Missing

When filing to run for the Larkspur City Council, each candidate is given the option to write a statement which is then sent to all registered voters. This option costs $90, while there is no charge for a filing fee.

Being a novice, I balked at the $90 charge, so am now the only city council candidate in Larkspur not in the voters handbook. Instead, I must rely on all voters to carefully read and compare the profiles of each candidate, appearing later this week in the I-J and in other papers.

Why Wait Until Water Runs Out?

I cannot follow the logic. Numerous news items about the lack of water in the Marin Municipal Water District's lakes, and very little probability that they will be filled before the rains end. The, if the rains are over, they will ask that we don't waste water.

If we waste a gallon now, the lake will have one gallon less at the end of the rains.

What's the matter with those "thinkers"? Haven't they even thought (while they get such large articles as appear on today's front page) about just even suggesting that we should not (NOW) let our water run until it goes down the gutters?

Maybe Writer Should Run For Supervisor

It was with great interest, I read your editorial of March 31, "Why Supervisors Lose Voter Support."

You quoted the lady who objected to the continued proliferation of administrative county government rather than representative county government, the inadequate evaluation of county employees, and the marked increase in county government cost.

Since most of us are in 100 per cent agreement with reasons given in the lady's letter on why supervisors lose voter support, the taxpayers would do well to hire this lady to run the supervisors, and do away with the administrator!

Take Down Signs, Let Blossoms Show

Now that almost everyone is concerned about pollution of all kinds, including visual pollution, until very recently I was very pleased to notice a lack of campaign posters in our city of San Anselmo. However, the past few days I have seen signs campaigning for a candidate for our city council and county board of supervisors.

I would strongly urge these candidates to have these signs removed immediately to make way for the more pleasant sight of spring blossoms and green leaves. If this is not done, I just as strongly urge people to vote for candidates other than those so cluttering the scenery. If they are so thoughtless of people now that they are candidating, they may be just as thoughtless if they are elected into office.

Religious Issue In Politics Absent From Current Campaign

WASHINGTON — This miasmic preconvention presidential campaign is not producing much clarity on the big issues. But one thing is becoming clear: Religion is no longer a political issue.

It is being nearly totally erased and American political life is better off for it.

In 1960, John F. Kennedy proved that a Catholic could be nominated and elected President. But this was an exception? Would perhaps less popular candidates find themselves freed from the religious issue?

This year there are two Catholics seeking the Democratic nomination — Sen. Edmund Muskie and Eugene McCarthy.

THE QUESTION of religion has never come up at any time. But it could still be a silent, motivating factor.

It isn't, and the best proof is that Muskie and McCarthy are being neither disadvantaged nor benefited by being Catholics.

Many will remember that in the late '40s and early '50s, Wisconsin Catholics of Irish and German extraction gave nearly solid support to Republican Sen. Joseph McCarthy and a few years later voted nearly en bloc for John Kennedy, a Democrat.

But this year there was little or no evidence that either Muskie or Eugene McCarthy won dominantly Catholic districts because they are Catholics.

THIS IS A WELCOME development. But what is equally interesting is why. Why has a religious issue, which was intense in the 1960 campaign, nearly vanished from the political scene?

Much of the credit belongs to Kennedy himself — but not all by any means.

The candid way he handled the religious issue in the campaign muted much of its force, and his very election lowered the barrier for future Catholic presidential candidates.

Kennedy's independent conduct in office, showing that his policy decisions would be controlled by what he deemed best for the United States, dissolved much anxiety about a Catholic President.

Since then, two new forces have come into play.

One is the substance and spirit of Vatican ecumenism which seems to many to diminish somewhat the authoritarianism of the Roman Catholic Church.

The other is the assertion of greater independence on the part of Catholic leadership and laity in different countries, including the United States.

There is no doubt in my mind that these factors together have silenced the religious issue in American politics. This means that Muskie and McCarthy are on their own and are being neither hurt nor assisted because they are Catholics.

IT IS IMPORTANT to understand why there has been a religious issue in American politics. It is not per se an expression of religious bias. It has nothing to do with where one goes to church or with theology. It has only to do with the temporal policies of any church and how compulsory is the adherence to those views by the adherent.

Would a President who happened to be a Christian Scientist faithfully execute the provision for Medicare in view of the Christian Science rejection of material medicine? Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., a Christian Scientist, dealt with tat effectively in his Illinois campaign.

Would a President who happened to be a Catholic faithfully observe the constitutional provision for separation of church and state in view of Catholic practice on that subject? Sen. John F. Kennedy dealt with that effectively both as campaigner and as President.

If Senator Muskie is nominated. He will be rightly pressed to expand and clarify his views on population control.

Isn't that the way it should be done?

War Maps Look Like 1968, But U.S. Position Is Different

WASHINGTON — To look at the sketch maps in the paper, you would think it was an old file copy someone had pulled out to review the first days of April, 1968. Broad arrows denote enemy offensive thrusts cutting down from the DMZ, past Khe Sanh toward Quang Tri city and Hue. Hopefully diversionary moves are symbolized by other arrows in the Central Highlands and across the border near Saigon.

But, of course, the headlines give away the real date. In 1968, they had Lyndon Johnson announcing he would not run again, and ordering a halt to bombing of North Vietnam; the Rev. Dr. William Sloane Coffin Jr. was delivering a sermon on "Radical Obedience to Conscience," while under indictment for conspiring to counsel young men to avoid the draft; the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. was preaching in Look magazine against urban rioting, warning that it would produce "a kind of right-wing takeover in the cities," and the stock market was turning sharply upward in the wake of the President's action.

NOW, FOUR YEARS later, King is gone, Look magazine is gone, and Coffin long has been superseded by other draft counselors. You have the war, of course, and the broad arrows on the situation maps. But it is not the follow-through to the Tet offensive we are watching now. It is, according to a group that gathered outside the White House to cheer the enemy on, the "Easter offensive," and the likelihood that it could upset this President in this election year is remote, indeed.

Yet, however, remote, it is there. Depending on how Mr. Nixon reacts or fails to react to the current enemy drive into South Vietnam, t exists on the left, at the center and on the right of the American electorate. And no one is more nervously aware of it than the President himself.

As this is written, an unnamed American military source in Vietnam has stated the administration position as succinctly as anybody. "We're going to do everything we can to protect our people and keep our casualties down," he said. "Where a situation becomes untenable, we're going to pull our people out. The only assistance we're going to give the South Vietnamese is air."

Adherence even to that much of a commitment to help Saigon is, of course, too much for the most urgent advocates of American withdrawal. They have not been satisfied with the rate of pullout ordered by Mr. Nixon, and will not be satisfied by anything less than total abandonment of South Vietnam. But then, they are not going to vote for Mr. Nixon under any circumstances.

But, the great middle ranks of American voters will sanction such air support from the United States during the pullout. What will stir them is any readjustment of the withdrawal schedule already made public. And what will arouse them further, into a vengeful political mood, is any recommitment of American ground forces to action, with an accompanying upward turn on the graphs showing U.S. combat casualties.

FORTUNATELY, for the President's standing with the center of the electorate, the discreetly hasty execution of the withdrawal plan to date makes it impossible for U.S. ground troops to return to combat for anything more than spot defenses of major American installations. Of the approximately 100,000 Americans remaining in-country, only some 7,000 are combat troops.

Thus the timing of this offensive by the enemy is not so disadvantageous to the President as it seems at first. True, he has to feel let down that they made any strong moveat all before his re-election campaign was over. But at least they waited until the U.S. ground potential was nearly nil, and Mr. Nixon can say now to Saigon that he really would like to help out, but he simply does not have the troops to do much.

In fact, the most useful option remaining open to Mr. Nixon at this juncture probably is to pray hard. For only if a series of doubtful "ifs" turn out happily will he be protected from the wrath of that third section of the political spectrum, the rigid American right.

If the South Vietnamese army performs well under full-scale enemy attack, thus justifying the strategy x Vietnamization; if the current enemy offensive is confined to limited objectives in the northernmost province; if any later major thrusts which could endanger the Saigon government are delayed at least until next Nov. 8 — then the President's effort to neutralize the war issue will be a success.

But if not, then Vietnam will be added to China as an irritant to the Republican right wing, and Mr. Nixon will find that the once-promising presence of George Wallace on a third- or fourth-party ticket in the fall will wind up hurting the GOP more than it does the Democrats. That is not the way his original scenario concluded.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Omitted Paragraph Of Letter Makes Clear Which Supervisor

You will recall that on the editorial in the I-J last Friday was a transcript of most of the letter that a lady had written to one of the two incumbent supervisors who are running for re-election. You will also recall that the import of the letter was that because of a credibility gap, she was withdrawing her support of the supervisor addressed.

The editor, in presenting the transcript, said that the first of the four paragraphs, in which she amplified and pinpointed her reasons, was omitted because it dwelt exclusively with the one supervisor's personal acts.

There was so much interest aroused as to which of the two supervisors the letter had been addressed, that I did some research on it. Following is a repeat of the first two short paragraphs of the letter, then the one omitted:

"DEAR MR. (SUPERVISOR): I am writing to request that you not use my name in your campaign since I can no longer support your re-election.

"Although I have been your loyal supporter in the past, agreeing and disagreeing with you honestly and openly, I find some recent events to be of such grave concern it is impossible to continue. I will try to briefly list some of my reasons.

"1. The credibility gap created by your allowing the creation of Flood Control Sub-Zone 9A as a maintenance zone, then permitting capital improvements to be outlined as the responsibility of the sub-zone (see minutes of the Sub-Zone 9A Advisory Board — March through September 1971). Your further stating in your letter to Sleepy Hollow Homes Association last fall, in response to their request to be removed from the sub-zone, that you could not understand where we got the idea capital projects were a considered responsibility of Sub-Zone 9A. You were there at the organizational meeting of the Sub-Zone 9A Advisory Board when the capital improvement projects were outlined as the responsibility of the sub-zone, and at some of the subsequent advisory meetings when these major projects were further reviewed! If, in fact you expected to keep the sub-zone limited to maintenance of debris in creek as originally intended, why did you allow a $6,000 study of the sub-zone improvement needs and charge expenses to the sub-zone?"

(Note: Sub-Zone 9A is to cover maintenance in the unincorporated areas of Ross Valley.)

THIS FROM WEDNESDAY I-J (about the voting on the security continuance at the Civic Center): "Arrigoni, who last week told the Marin Labor Council he supported 'elimination of security as we now have it,' yesterday changed his mind and voted with Baar and McInnis."

It's hard for some who occupy the throne romm out at Brasilia to understand that it is a mistake to think the king can do no wrong. Tenure is a nebulous thing.

It must be sort of tough to abandon your two buddies and your protege, whom you have lauded to the skies and bragged that, "This man knows what Marin County government is and should be and is fair and objective." Goldarn these election years, you always have to run scared. Mister it's bad, no foolin'! Yes siree, it is sure is.

In listing the accomplishments of Peter Arrigoni in the editorial last Tuesday, the editor failed to give him credit for inviting the skunks, raccoons, and all the other such varmints to leave their homeland — Golden Gate Park — and partake of our luxuries over here. If you remember Michael Wornum joined him in that endeavor, something like a two-man visitors bureau, as it were. Ain't being a supervisor in Marin grand? All that fun and money too!

'ITT Secrets' Best Seller In Chile

By ARTHUR GOLDEN

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)— "The Secret Documents of the ITT" has become a runaway best-seller in Chile and a money-maker for the government publishing house.

The 80,000-copy "official translation" of alleged confidential papers of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. was virtually sold out soon after it went on sale at midweek.

An official of the state-owned Quimantu Publishing Company said it appeared the government would make a small profit from sales. The 93-page paperbound book costs the equivalent of about 90 cents.

The documents were released in Washington last month by Columnist Jack Anderson. They purport to show how ITT plotted to prevent the inauguration of President Salvador Allende in 1970.

Jaime Suarez, secretary general of the government, said in a foreword to the book that it was the "patriotic debt" of the Allende regime to publish translations of the documents.

"All citizens should consider and analyze the extraordinary gravity of the documents for tha independence, sovereignty and self-determination of our country," he said.

The government mounted a massive campaign to promote sales of the volume. The book includes photocopies of what Anderson described as authentic ITT documents.

Advertisements in progovernment newspapers and radio stations urged Chileans to buy copies of the "extraordinary publication." Giant signs reproducing the book's black and white cover were plastered on newsstands.

Mrs. Nelly Hernandez, who operates a news kiosk a block from the presidential palace, said she sold all her 50 copies of the book within two hours. "I might even read it myself," she said.

Roving vendors did a brisk business outside a downtown movie house showing the sex education film "The Perfect Marriage." They sold dozens of books to moviegoers waiting to enter the theatre.

The government press said the El Mercurio version toned down accusations against the government of President Eduardo Frei, Allende's predecessor. El Mercurio editorially denounced the charge as a "distortion."

The importance of the documents depended on who was reading them. Members of Frei's Christian Democrat party denounced the papers as fiction, designed to distract public attention from Allende's difficulties.

But the magazine Mayoria, also published by Quimantu, said the documents were as important as papers dealing with the founding of Chile by the Spanish conquistadores.

It accurately translates, for example, unflattering references to the Marxist president as a heavy drinker who has "refined and capitalistic tastes" despite calculated appeals to the masses.

At one point, a footnote accurately identifies as Shakespeare the source for a reference in one of the documents to a U.S. official who "loved not wisely but too well."

The only error found in a careful reading of the official translation is in a reference to "Foggy Bottom," the northwest District of Columbia neighborhood where the state department is located.

Driver Is Treated In Two-Car Crash

Matthew Evers, 26, of 28 Lucky Drive, Greenbrae, has been treated at Marin General Hospital for scrapes and bruises received in a two-car accident, hospital authorities reported.

Evers was a passenger in a car driven by Mitchell Andrew Howe, 22, of 96 La Verne Avenue, Mill Valley, which collided with another auto at 12:10 p.m. Wednesday at Almonte Boulevard and Rosemont Avenue, Homestead Valley. Ladislav Eduard Leiterman, 44, of 526 Midvale Way, Mill Valley, was the driver of the other auto, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Industrialist Hits Broadcasts

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton suggested Thursday that Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty be silenced because they "stir up anger and bitterness toward the United States" in Communist nations.

"Let us ask ourselves how we would feel if the Soviets set up a special station in one of our neighboring countries in an attempt to arouse the American citizenry, or some racial or ethnic segment of it, against its government and media," Eaton said in a statement.

"The American people would certainly not for one instant put up with being told what to do and how to do it by an outside power of opposing ideology," he added.

Moratorium On Car Use Is Lifted

The moratorium on using private cars for field trips has been lifted for the remainder of the school year by the San Anselmo School District Board, said Supt. Ivan D. Chappell.

The moratorium was imposed on March 6 because the board felt that the district's insurance policy might not cover accidents with such cars.

The staff had prepared a new policy for the district, but the board rejected it Tuesday night, Chappell said. The staff is to revise and resubmit it to the board at the end of the school year, he said. The board objected to leaving use of private cars to the discretion of principals and teachers.

The board approved hiring three custodians and one part-time clerk under the federal work program. The custodians will get $3.05 per hour and the clerk $2.59 per hour. The federal government will pay 90 per cent and the San Anselmo district 10 per cent of the salaries under a contract that runs through Oct. 30, Chappell said.

Candidate Plans Wine, Cheese, Dancer

A wine, cheese and art festival — complete with belly dancer —will be staged tonight as part of the election campaign of Gerald J. Hood, running for the Mill Valley City Council.

The festival, which will run from 6 to 9 p.m., will be held at the Outdoor Art Club. It is being sponsored by Hood's election committee.

Two School Roles To Be Combined

The Lagunitas School District board has declared it will combine the roles of principal and district superintendent, according to Anna Mae Kondratieff, district secretary. The district now employs Harry Roche as principal of Lagunitas and San Geronimo elementary schools and William E. Johnson as district superintendent.

At a special meeting Wednesday night, the board passed a resolution of intent outlining three areas of administrative responsibility.

The roles of principal and superintendent would be merged, as would the roles of business manager and district secretary. In addition, a post to review curriculum in the district would be established.

A committee was appointed to offer the board a more detailed definition of the three areas of responsibility at its next meeting.

Telephone Tax Protesters Petition Tribunal

A group of 1,000 Marin residents refusing to pay a portion of their federal taxes on their telephone bills to protest the Vietnam War last night asked a U.S. Supreme Court justice for an emergency injunction to prevent the Internal Revenue Service from collecting the money from members' bank accounts.

Alan Barnett of Mill Valley, Northern California coordinator for the telephone tax war protest, said today the organization opposes the collection at this time because a lawsuit to test the tax's constitutionality is in the courts.

After learning this week the IRS would begin attaching bank accounts, salaries and property of the protesters Monday, Barnett said the group wired Justice William O. Douglas and asked him to intervene.

Barnett said the tax protest movement, which began in Marin last May and has spread throughout the state, has set up trust funds in which members place the taxes they have declined to pay to the government. To date, he said, $20,000 has been collected and held "in escrow, so to speak" pending outcome of the suit, now on appeal to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. The suit was denied last September in Federal District Court in San Francisco. (The action charges the government levied the 10 per cent telephone tax in 1966 to support the war and claims it has no authority to levy a tax to support an undeclared war.)

"The government can take the taxes we are holding in trust if it can demonstrate the tax is valid and constitutional," Barnett said.

Similar suits by other telephone tax protest groups, which claim approximately 16,500 members throughout the state — 7,000 in the Bay Area alone — have been filed in Sacramento and Los Angeles.

In a related move, the Marin organization has asked all Marin banks to waive service charges of from $5 to $15 which are normally charged when tax liens are placed on accounts.

Barnett said only one bank with local offices, the Bank of Marin, has agreed not to charge such service fees against any war protester's accounts. He said some institutions have said they will accommodate individual customers, but make no general policy.

Barnett said the only bank which has declined to cooperate with the protestors, even on an individual basis, is Wells Fargo. He said, "We are asking for the fee waiver because we do not believe banks should charge people for their acts of conscientious objection to the war."

Laurence J. Hoge, Wells Fargo press relations officer, confirmed the IRS intention to begin collection next week. He said the government began to collect the protesters' taxes from banks last spring on a quarterly basis ("apparently hoping the service charges would discourage them"), but desisted when banks asked for an annual collection because of the paperwork created by quarterly collection.

Hogue said Wells Fargo intends to charge service fees to its customers involved in the movement because the liens cost the bank a great deal of money which it has no other way of recovering. "There is a lot of paperwork involved in a tax lien, whether it's for $5,000 or $2," he said. "When the IRS started collecting last spring in Berkeley, we were so busy with this that we had to pull tellers from our banks' windows to help out."

Even if the collection is not halted and some banks refuse to waive service charges, Barnett said the money in the trust fund will not be touched or turned over to the government until the antiwar group has exhausted all legal avenues of appeal.

WHOLESALE FOOD PRICES DECLINING

Drop In March; Government Also Reports A Hike In Unemployment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices for farm products and processed foods declined in March following steep increases in February, the government reported today. Another key report showed that unemployment in the nation rose 0.2 per cent last month.

An increase in industrial commodity prices more than offset price declines for farm products and commodities ready for the consumer market, resulting in a 0.1 per cent overall increase in the wholesalde price index, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said. But that was still down sharply from an 0.9 per cent increase in February and 0.8 per cent jumps in the two previous months.

The bureau said unemployment increased in March to 5.5 per cent of the labor force, from 5.7 per cent in February despite a sharp rise of 620,000 in the number of employed persons, total employment reached an all time high of 81.2 million.

Wholesale prices for farm products and processed foods and feeds -as the administration had predicted —declined 0.4 per cent during February before seasonal adjustment and 0.3 per cent when seasonal factors were figured in.

That was a sharp reversal from a 1.9 per cent increase in February, a 1.3 per cent advance in January and a 2 per cent jump in December. more

Foods ready for the consumer market showed a 1 per cent wholesale price decline before adjustment and a 0.7 per cent drop when seasonal factors were considered.

That compared with a 1.6 per cent unadjusted rise in February, and a 1.9 per cent adjusted increase the previous month.

But wholesale prices for industrial commodities continued their almost unbroken and steady climb upward. The 0.3 per cent increase in March,ipowever, however, down from the 0.5 per cent advances in the two previous months.

Wholesale prices tend to foreshadow hos prices will move at the retail level. Two weeks ago, the government's consumer price index reported the biggest monthly increase in grocery prices in 14 years. White House economists said, however, that food prices would likely turn down in coming months and today's wholesale price report gave weight to that prediction.

The BLS said that the wholesale index for consumer finished goods, which closely parallels the commodity component of the conssmer index, declined 0.3 per cent, largely because of a decline in wholesale prices of meats and fresh vegetables.

The index showed an 11.5 per cent drop in prices for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables in March, and a 2.1 per cent drop in livestock prices. But egg prices shot up 17.2 per cents and poultry prices increased 2.1 per cent.

But processed meats, poultry and fish prices went down 2.5 per cent while processed fruits and vegetables showed a 0.5 per cent wholesale price increase.

The BLS said that during the first four full months of President Nixon's Phase II price controls — December through March — the —theq wholesale price index rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 6 per cent. That compared to an annual rate of 4.6 per cent in the six months preceding the wage-price freeze last August and an an annual rate of 0.8 per cent during the freeze.

The March jump in the nation's workforce was the biggest one month gain since June 1967.

Senators Set Trip To China

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and his Republican counterpart, Hugh Scott, announced today they will visit the Peoples Republic of China for three weeks starting April 18.

"Our purpose," Mansfield and Scott said in a joint announcement, "will be ... hopefully to achieve a better understanding between our two countries."

The two leaders are taking up an invitation from Chinese leaders that President Nixon conveyed to them on his return from the historic visit to the mainland in February.

After Speaker Carl Albert complained that the House was being discriminated against, a similar invitation was extended to House Democratic and Republican Leaders Hale Boggs and Gerald R. Ford. They have not announced a date, but are expected to visit China in June.

Mansfield and Scott, referring to themselves in the third person initially, said in their three-paragraph announcement:

"The joint leadership announced today that they have accepted an invitation from the People's Republic of China to visit that country.

"They stated they would leave Washington April 16. It is anticipated that they will spend about three weeks visiting various cities, meeting with government officials, and visiting schools, hospitals, collective farms, industrial plants, and other points of interest.

"Our purpose will be to look, listen and learn and hopefully to achieve a better understanding between our two countries. It will be our intention to make a report to the Foreign Relations Committee upon our return."

Mansfield elaborated in talking with reporters: "What we'll attempt to do is to build on the foundation —the fragile foundation —which the President has undertaken."

Both Senate leaders are scholars of the Far East, and Scott is one of the nation's leading collectors of Oriental art. Mansfield was stationed with the Marines in China in 1921-22, was a professsor of Far Eastern history for 10 years, and went on a mission there in the mid-1940s on behalf of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The two will be accompanied by their wives and about six staff members, but no official representatives of the U.S. government. They will arrive in China April 18.

Save State's Environment, Reagan Says

New State Department Included In Proposals

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan declared today California can no longer tolerate a "deplete and be damned" philosophy and sketched a program to preserve the state's "priceless" environmental resources.

His proposals, which he termed "common sense," ranged from a "major" bond issue for parks and recreation to coastline legislation to a new Department of Environmental Protection.

Reagan said, "We have often carelessly and unnecessarily depleted our resources and polluted the water and air more than is nacessary ...

"We know we can no longer tolerate the philosophy of deplete and be damned— because quite simply, our natural resources constitute the single greatest asset we have to improve not only the quality of our own lives but the lives of the generations which will follow us," the governor declared.

Reagan released his statement here. The speech was scheduled to be delivered later to a luncheon of the Long Beach Joint Service Clubs.

"We deal today with three kinds of pollution—actual, hysterical and political," Reagan said. "The last two unnecessar-

Loc Ninh Falls; Threat To Saigon Is Increasing

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese troops today captured the town of Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, and laid siege to An Loc, 10 miles to the south, in a growing threat to Saigon. A band of Communist infiltrators cut Highway 1 only 15 miles from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport.

The United States sent hundreds of U.S. Air Force and Navy fighters against North Vietnam again today, and Communist reports in European newspapers said air raid sirens howled in Hanoi and people began digging new shelters against the possibility of U.S. raids there.

The Communists launched a widescale series of attacks in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon in what appeared to be the start of a major new offensive there. But headquarters in the Central Highlands denied reports of a major offensive there by North Vietnamese troops moving in from Cambodia.

Hanoi Radio reported 13 American planes had been shot down over North Vietnam, and the Viet Cong Radio broadcast a warning to President Nixon that he "must understand that to avenge the death of one kith and kin of a northerner (by U.S. air strikes) our southern brothers are determined to compel his (Saigon) clique to repay the crime five or 10 times." The U.S. command has reported the

Laird Says Northern Raids To Continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said today the United States would continue bombing North Vietnam and would not negotiate with the Communists until Hanoi withdrew its invasion forces from South Vietnam. "There is a continuing major violation of the DMZ taking place at this very minute," Laird told a Pentagon news conference.

"We have indicated a willingness to negotiate at all times, as long as there is a willingness (on the part of Hanoi) for serious negotiations," Laird told reporters. "But, of course, with this violation of the 1968 understandings, they would have to move back across the DMZ."

That was a reference to the so-called 1968 understandings whereby President Lyndon B. Johnson stopped widespread bombing of North Vietnam. U.S. officials said it was based on an understanding that Hanoi would not operate in the demilitarized zone, and not shell South Vietnamese cities, among other things.

Freeway Bus Lanes To Be Tried Evenings

A freeway lane exclusively for evening commuter buses between the Golden Gate and Richardson Bay bridges on Highway 101 will be set aside in a six-month test starting by midsummer.

The experiment is expected to shave up to 10 minutes travel time for bus commuters to points north of Mill Valley, Golden Gate Bridge District officials said. Buses to Sausalito and Mill Valley, however, will have to continue using the congested regular lanes in order to make scheduled stops and to exit at Shoreline Highway.

The exclusive lane will be "borrowed" from the opposite side of the freeway, and pylons will separate opposing traffic. Southbound traffic thus will have only two lanes.

The test may be extended to morning commute buses in late 1972, according to a statement by the state Business and Transportation Agency, which granted final approval yesterday for the test.

It said that a morning test was not feasible yet because part of the Waldo Grade has only three northbound lanes, but that this was scheduled for widening to four lanes within the 18 months.

The delay in southbound tests also will give the bridge district time to expand its bus fleet, which already is at its maximum capacity during the longer morning commute period.

Long-range plans by the district envision running buses on an exclusive right-of-way between the north end of the Waldo Grade and Novato, probably using the existing railroad right-of-way.

ITT, Kleindienst Proble To Continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate Judiciary Committee voted today to continue for 13 more days its investigation of International Telephone & Telegraph and Richard G. Kleindienst to be attorney general.

The vote was 8 to 7.

Budget Clears State Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A mammoth $7.88 billion version of Gov. Ronald Reagan's state budget—praised by no one and disowned by everybody—has been narrowly passed by the Assembly and sent to the Senate.

The spending program, which Democrats say contains a $57 million surplus, calls for $165 million in extra aid to local schools, a new attack on smog and substantial salary increases for state employes and higher education faculty members.

It also proposes what Republicans call "political" cuts in the staffs of GO Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke and in the state departments of Social Welfare and Finance.

The budget bill, which totaled 192 million more than Reagan asked for, cleared the Assembly Thursday on a 55-16 vote—only one vote more than the necessary two-thirds required for passage.

Seventeen Republicans reluctantly joined 38 Democrats in voting for the bill. They insisted they were doing so only to speed it to the Senate but

LBJ Hospitalized In Virginia—Chest Pains

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI)—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson was rushed to University of Virginia Hospital today suffering from chest pains, his second such seizure since experiencing a major heart attack in 1955.

Several hours after Johnson was admitted, Dr. Richard S. Crampton reported the 63-year-old ex-chief executive "is comfortable now and his condition is stable."

Crampton refused further comment on the case, but another doctor, heart specialist Dr. John Willis Hurst, was flown here from Atlanta and promised a statement later in the day.

Johnson was hit by the pains about 4 a.m., 14 hours after attending the funeral of former Tennessee Gov. Bufford Ellington, who collapsed and died of a heart attack Monday on a Florida golf course.

Following the Tennessee funeral, Johnson and his wife, Lady Bird, flew here in a new plane, purchased last week, to visit their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robb. Robb, a former Marine major, is a second-year student at University of Virginia law school.

Former Panther Bodyguard Shot

SAN JOSE (UPI)—An exconvict who once acted as a bodyguard for Black Panther Party leader Huey Newton and whose mother has frequently been seen with militant Angela Davis was shot to death by two gunmen Thursday.

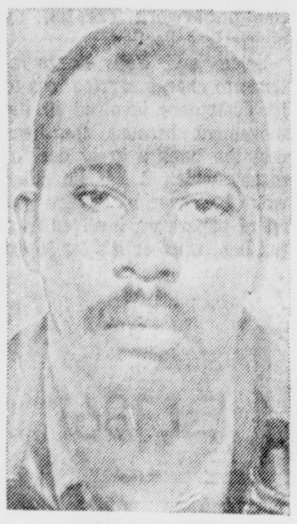
Police today were holding Richard Rodriguez, 24, of Baldwin Park, Calif., and Chester D. Ligons, 28, Los Angeles, in connection with the shooting.

Carr's lawyer, Richard Hodge, said Carr had been a close friend of "Soledad Brother" George Jackson, who died in a San Quentin prison outbreak last summer, and he once acted as a bodyguard for Black Panther leader Huey Newton.



JAMES E. CARR
Shot to Death

His mother-in-law, Mrs. Joan Hammer, has often been seen strolling in the neighborhood with Miss Davis, on trial here for murder-kidnap conspiracy in the 1970 Marin County courthouse shooting which killed a judge and three gunmen.

"I can think of lots of reasons why someone would want to kill him, people from the far left, the far right, and in between, because he was a very controversial leader in prison," said Hodge.

"Some people thought he was a CIA agent, others thought he was super radical."

Carr, who acted as a bodyguard to Newton when the two were at the California Men's Colony East at San Luis Obispo, was shot down in a rifle and shotgun ambush at the rear of the Hammer home as he prepared to leave for work.

Democratic Campaign Warming Up

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Antiwar demonstrators, protesting U.S. air strikes in Vietnam, Thursday heckled President Nixon for ordering the bombing and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey for supporting it.

While 100 demonstrators picketed outside the Philadelphia Civic Center, about 20 inside shouted "Stop the bombing" as Nixon spoke to 10,000 Roman Catholic educators and students.

Nixon did not interrupt his address —promising more federal aid to parochial schools — to mention the war or to acknowledge the hecklers.

Humphrey was interrupted during a speech to 300 elderly citizens in Philadelphia as the 1968 Democratic presidential nominee campaigned for Pennsylvania's April 25 primary in his bid for another chance against Nixon.

Humphrey acknowledged the antiwar sentiment by declaring, "I say let's end this war and get on with taking care of the people in this room."

On other political fronts, Sen. George S. McGovern got a warm reception in California, Rep. Shirley Chisholm pledged to fight for "a free and open" Democratic National Convention, and Eunice Kennedy Shriver announced her support of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie. Mrs. Shriver, the sister of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and wife of former U.S. ambassador to France Sargent Shriver, became co-chairwoman of Muskie's $125-a-plate fund-raising dinner planned in Washington April 17.

Mrs. Chisholm told a Boston news conference that some Democrats had indicated women and blacks would not be seated in proportion to their strength. "There is no doubt about it," she said. "With or without delegates, I'm going to be felt at the national convention in July."

Cocktail Parties Will Be Watched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Planning a cocktail party to drum up support for your favorite presidential or congressional candidate? Uncle Sam will want a full report if the cost exceeds $100.

Under a law that went into effect today, the neighborhood cocktail party and countless other ways of contributing to federal candidates are subject to strict disclosure provisions.

The reporting regulations are designed to end the widely used practice of setting up "dummy committees" in Washington to fill campaign war chests with anonymous donations. The Federal Election Campaign Act also sets a limit on the amount of money candidates or parties may spend for political advertising on television, radio, newspapers, magazines and certain telephone equipment.

The law stipulates that committees and candidates must make reports to Washington and state election officials several times each year identifying anyone by name, address, occupation and place of business who gives more than $100 in a calendar year.

Individuals who make campaign expenditures on their own, without the sanction of a committee or candidate, also must file a report to the appropriate officials.

Forms and detailed instructions have been prepared by the comptroller general who monitors presidential campaigns. Congressional candidates and committees will file with the House clerk or the secretary of the Senate who have prepared manuals and reporting forms.

Public Colleges Can Credit Courses

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger ruled Thursday that community colleges can grant credit for courses completed in private, profit-seeking schools without violating the state constitution.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Historical Tomb

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vatican archeologists said today they have identified the burial site of St. Calixtus as the second oldest papal tomb unearthed so far.

They said only the reputed tomb of St. Peter, located beneath the original St. Peter's Basilica and identified in 1950, is considered older.

The discovery was announced after years of study, some of it delayed until the Vatican purchased land over and around the Catacombs of St. Calixtus to the north of Rome.

Steps Up Bombings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) —The Irish Republican Army (IRA) today launched its most intensive bombing and shooting campaign since before Easter despite calls for a truce and a conciliatory gesture by the new British-imposed ruled of Northern Ireland.

William Whitelaw, Britain's Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, announced the immediate release of 73 detained IRA suspects in a move to ease tension and speed an end to violence in the province, and expressed hope it may mean the phasing out of internment without trial.

Whitelaw also said the prison ship Maidstone in Belfast Harbor would no longer house internees.

Nuclear Round

HELSINKI (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union held a 90-minute session of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) today to further the work towards a nuclear arms treaty.

Conference sources said there was a serious approach to the issues, with both delegations thoroughly hard at work to reach agreement.

Nixon Heart Plea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon called today for a renewed attack on heart disease, saying the nation's No. 1 killer should be challenged by preventive measures beginning in childhood.

"It is imperative that we coordinate our research effort, and that not only governments but private citizens join in this endeavor," Nixon said in a statement.

The Senate meanwhile was expected to pass legislation today to authorize a $1.5 billion federal program to research and treat heart, lung and blood diseases.

Executions Stayed

ANKARA (UPI) — The constitutional court granted stays of execution today for three men condemned to death last October of terrorism charges, leaving it to parliament to decide their fate.

The death sentence against Deniz Gezmis, 25, Huseyin Inan, 24, and Yusef Aslan, 26, provoked the kidnaping recently of three civilian technicians by terrorists trying to force the government to spare the three condemned men.

In a siege and gun battle eight days ago northeast of Ankara, the three hostages — two British and one Canadian — and nine of 10 kidnappers were killed.

Rowers Dead?

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — A police inspector said today he feared John Fairfax and his girl friend, Sylvia Cook, who are rowing across the Pacific, may have perished in cyclonic weather which lashed the Queensland coast last week.

Author Attacked

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet press today published a lengthy literary attack on author Alexander Solzhenitsyn which accused him of hating the Soviet Union and loving "German militarism."

Trud, the mass-circulation trade union newspaper, devoted half its four-page morning edition to reprinting a Polish review of Solzhenitsyn's new novel about World War I, "August 1914."

"As we expected, the book was embraced in the West as a work whose value — and we should add this is a political value — is its hatred of the Soviet Union," the critique said. ". . . Russian soldiers and officers are depicted like a gang of marauders.

"The book is full of numerous insulting sentences about Russia and Slavs, while the author describes the Kaiser's Germany and even its armed forces in a very attractive light."

Break With Jrdan

Sadat announced yesterday he was breaking all ties with Jordan as a counter to Hussein's plan for a Jordanian federation.

Students Told: Youth Our Hope

BERKELEY (UPI) — French explorer and oceanographer Jacques Cousteau has called on youth to lead a "complete sociological revolution."

"Our only hope is you," Cousteau told a University of California audience of 10,000 Thursday at the Charter Day celebration on the campus.

"May you remain uncorrupted when you enter the system," he urged the students at the ceremony marking the university's 104th birthday.

"The fight for survival calls for complete sociological revolution," he said.

It will be necessary, the underwater pioneer said, to construct "the stable society," one that will throw away the economic and political concepts used in the industrialized nations of the world.

"Nationalism will make no sense" in the new society, Costeau said.

"An uncontrolled economic growth, like cancer, cannot be justified," he said. "There is an urgent need for international controls, at least among the 20 nations responsible for 80 per cent of the earth's pollution."

Cousteau referred to the ocean as a "universal sewer where all pollution ends up."

"Above all, stop the population explosion," he urged the audience.

Cousteau said the cost of eliminating world pollution would be six per cent of the gross national product of all the countries in the world.

City-County Group Picks Middle Road

Members of the City-County Planning Council of Marin decided last night to concentrate on the "middle" of three possible alternatives for their body's future role in Marin planning matters, according to Larskpur City Councilman Benton A. Sifford Jr.

Emphasis will be on ways to use the council as a voluntary review agency for all city and county planning, to press for uniformity in fleshing out the countywide general plan now being prepared.

The council discussed an extensive "where do we go next" report from a three-member ad hoc subcommittee headed by Sifford. He reported the council was pressed for time at its Civic Center meeting because of the 10:30 p.m. curfew, and referred the proposal back to his subcommittee for further development.

Sifford said council members asked revisions of the proposal that San Rafael, Novato and county representatives be given "weighted" voting powers. The council informally decided against seeking state legislation giving the council additional enforcement powers over local planning agencies, but also decided the council's present purely advisory role must be expanded.

After more discussion, the city-county council will refer its proposed future status to the county and member cities for review, Sifford said.

Trial Shows Miss Davis Owned Guns

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Angela Davis has been tied indisputably to ownership of a paratroop carbine and a Browning automatic pistol used to stage the San Rafael seizure of hostages. It was the most damaging evidence produced so far at her kidnap-murder trial.

A gunshop clerk told the jury yesterday that the former UCLA philosophy teacher bought the collapsible semi-automatic rifle which Jonathan Jackson, 17, pulled from his raincoat to commandeer hostages from a courtroom.

Another gun salesman said Miss Davis purchased the pistol which Jackson, the brother of "Soledad Brother" George Jackson, handed to convict James McClain to set off the bloody chain of events in which Judge Harold Haley was killed.

In her opening statement, Miss Davis has said, "It was no secret that I was the owner of the weapons."

She went on to say that "the evidence will prove that while I did purchase guns, I did nothing to furnish Jonathan Jackson or anyone else with the weapons which were utilized during the action of Aug. 7, 1970."

But the jury appeared impressed by proof that she bought the guns, particularly the M1 carbine which resembles a machinegun and which witnesses have testified Jonathan Jackson constantly waved and jabbed at hostages and officers throughout the morning.

There will be subsequent testimony that two days before the San Rafael shooting she bought the shotgun which was sawed off and attached by tape to Judge Haley's neck.

Homeowners For Measure A

Directors of the Oak Manor Homeowners Association, in the unincorporated area bordering on Fairfax, unanimously voted last night to support Measure A on the Fairfax city ballot Tuesday.

C. F. Stobbe of 545 Oak Manor Drive, homeowner group president, explained that the directors are opposed to more high-density development in the Fairfax area, and support the initiative measure designed to rezone the Marin Town and Country Club for commercial recreation.

The initiative, if it passes, would block plans for apartment development of the log-time playground area.

REAGAN

ily frighten our people, but what is worse, they dilute and vitiate our legitimate efforts to preserve the planet."

He criticized "some" in the news media who accept "any horror story ... until some of us find ourselves reading letters from frightened children who believe they will smother in poisoned air before they finish school or live in a desert of stumps with all the forests gone the way of the dinosaur."

Reagan also declared that environmental controls must not bring "economic development to a sudden and catastrophic halt."

—Enactment this year of legislation designed to preserve the coastline with the emphasis on local controls.

—Creation of a Department of Environmental Protection, including a new solid waste management program and encompassing present air and water pollution control efforts. A similar proposal was turned down last year by the legislature.

—A major park and recreation bond issue to be presented to the voters in 1974. Reagan vetoed a $250 million parks bond issue last year.

—Establishment of a new Power Plant Siting Council to consider the environmental impact of proposed power plants.

—Enlargement of the statewide smog control program, including state financial assistance to local government.

—Passage this year of emergency legislation to provide for regulation of logging on private land. An appellate court last year invalidated previous regulations.

—Production of a comprehensive Environmental Goals and Policy Report to identify areas of "critical environmental concern" and provide planning guidelines.

Reagan also reiterated his belief that environmental protection is primarily a local responsibility.

"State government should intercede in local matters only where it is necessary to mediate a jurisdictional dispute or where the environmental problem is of such magnitude that it has significant statewide importance," he said.

loss of three planes over the north.

All indications were the U.S. air strikes would increase. The carrier Constellation arrived off Vietnam today and went into action, the first time four carriers have operated in the Tonkin Gulf in four years. Pentagon sources said a fifth carrier may e dispatched to China Station. Military sources said another squadron of F105 fighter-bombers also were dispatched to Asia. B52s also were recently reinforced.

With the war increasing in intensity the official South Vietnamese government television station in Saigon warned that the current fighting, "if it becomes decisive, could cause deaths on each side of up to one, two or three divisions." A division on each side is generally put at 10,000 men.

UPI correspondent Leon Daniel reported from An Loc today that the town of 40,000 and the firebase at Quan Loi, three miles to tha east, were under artillery, mortar and rocket attack but that U.S. F4s and Spectre gunships from Thailand were inflicting heavy casualties on the North Vietnamese.

Saigon military sources have reported four North Vietnamese divisions poised along the Cambodian border although only one has been committed to action, in the Loc Ninh area.6They called the threat to Saigon the greatest since the 1968 Tet offensive when there was heavy street fighting in Saigon itself.

The bulk of the Communist forces were reported about 60 miles north of Saigon but small Communist units cut Highway 13 between Saigon and An Loc in many places.

Daniel said the defenders of An Loc and Quan Loi took grim pleasure in denying Hanoi Radio reports the bases already had fallen, but it was clear the situation there was serious.

POLICY

toward the invasion since the Hanoi attack was launched eight days ago, Laird used tough language.

But he stopped short of saying there had been a complete abandonment of the 1968 decision to stop full-scale bombing, and left open the question of how deep into North Vietnam U.S. bombers would operate.

Hundreds of American planes —Air Force and Navy jets — were out today over North Vietnam. Air raid sirens even sounded in Hanoi, according to some Communist reports in European newspapers, but U.S. officials have given no indication the planes will range that far north.

In response to repeated questions whether the bombing halt was off,Laird would only say: "We are bombing north of the DMZ. We are bombing military targets south of the DMZ, in the DMZ, and north of the DMZ at this time."

But he reaffirmed the U.S. intention to keep withdrawing its ground troops from Vietnam.

Laird said U.S. support to the South Vietnamese forces battling the Communists would be limited to aircraft and naval gunfire.

Laird said the South Vietnamese "have the knowhow, they have the equipment and they have tha capability to pursue an effective ground campaign in their country."

warned they were giving "no commitments" to endorse it after a final compromise version is written by an Assembly-Senate conference committee.

(Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, was listed as either absent or not voting.)

Sen. Randolph Collier, Democratic chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he believes a finished budget will be sent to Reagan by May 1, two months earlier than usual.

During Assembly debate everyone, including its Democratic sponsor Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr. of San Francisco, disavowed the budget but urged it be approved to hasten a final compromise.

The proposal represents a billion-dollar increase over the state's current spending level and would take effect July 1. The largest single expenditure, constituting 26.2 per cent of the total, would go for "human relations"—a vast classification ranging from welfare and public health to prisons.

Local public schools would receive 25.5 per cent while state colleges and the University of California would get another 9.5 per cent.

Brown said if he were not the legal author of the bill, which Reagan disowned on Wednesday, "I would have considerable difficulty supporting this document which leaves so many unmet needs."

Major highlights of the budget included these:

Schools—An extra $165 million in state aid to local schools over the current level, pushing total state school support to just over $2 billion. Reagan asked for $65 million but the Ways and Means Committee upped the ante another $100 million. The committee earmarked Reagan's sum generally for urban schools while the additional $100 million would be spent for hiring new teachers.

Salary—A $164 million cost-of-living pay raise for state civil servants and higher education faculties. Reagan called for a 5 per cent raise for state workers and 7.5 per cent for the faculties. The committee kicked it up to 7.5 per cent and 12.5 per cent, respectively.

Cuts—A transfer to other agencies of 34 direct and indirect employes of Reinecke. Also, 37 Department of Finance auditors would be shifted to state Controller Houston Flournoy. A battery of attorneys and appeal hearing officers would be taken from the welfare department and moved to the attorney general's office and the state Office of Administrative Procedure. Republicans denounced the cuts as "political."

Smog—A $10.4 million experimental smog control program for the Los Angeles air basin requiring motorists to submit to annual inspections at roadside and the disconnecting of their vehicle's vacuum spark advance. Brown said he was "not optimistic" that program would remain in the budget.

Education —An additional $11.5 million for UC and the state colleges over what Reagan sought, including $6.3 million for the University. Total higher education expenditures were estimated at $749.8 million.

CANDIDATE MAILS OUT FREE COFFEE

Normally residents give coffees for city council candidates, but a Novato candidate has pulled a switch

Ruegg has sent out a letter containing a small packet with a single serving of instant coffee. He explained he wasn't sending along cream and sugar because he is conducting a "low budget campaign."

Court Hits Developer's House Plan

Yet another blow has been dealt developer Stanley W. Taylor in his seven-year battle to build nine homes over Richardson Bay in Strawberry.

A Marin Superior Court judge has refused to overturn the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission's unanimous denial of his plans to build in the 300 block of East Strawberry Drive.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson on Tuesday denied the contention of Taylor and nine coplaintives that the commission's decision was unsupported by evidence. "The determinations set forth in the staff recommendation are not only supported, but in my judgment, compelled by the evidence which was before the commission," Wilson said.

Before the rare unanimous decision Jan. 6, the commission was presented with the longest recommendations for denial in its history.

Taylor had argued the only way he could build on the lots was to construct the homes over the bay, but the commission told him he had created his own problem and suggested he resubdivide his land to move the dwellings inland.

Wilson also denied two other contentions: title compelled the commission to grant permission and the application was automatically approved because the commission failed to act within 90 days after receiving it.

Wilson ruled that Taylor had no privilege through ownership and title that other owners of bay land don't have and said the application was considered in time.

Taylor claimed the application was submitted Aug. 17, 1971, but Wilson said the commission didn't think it was complete enough to consider until Oct. 13.

The judge said he didn't think the application was ever completed. "The incompleteness and indefinite nature of the application was one of the reasons it failed to win approval," he said.

Group Formed To Fight Span

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Civic leaders formed an organization Wednesday to campaign against the proposed construction of another bridge across San Francisco Bay.

Cyril Magnin, speaking for the organization, said a so-called Southern Crossing would "divert many thousands of passengers" from the Bay Area Rapid Transit District."

The proposed bridge would run from a point south of San Francisco to Alameda and compete with rail service that BART hopes to start operating within a year.

Harrassment Testimony At Hearing For Deputy

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)—Joel Honey, then the commander of antiriot forces in the Isla Vista student quarter, grabbed a handcuffed prisoner by the hair and hit him in the face, a deputy sheriff testified Thursday.

The deputy, appearing at a Civil Service Commission hearing into Honey's dismissal from the sheriff's department, also said Honey made no objection to the use of slingshots against rioters.

Honey, a former sheriff's captain, was fired by Sheriff John Carpenter, on charges that included unprofessional behavior as commander of a seven-agency law enforcement group at the Isla Vista riots in 1970.

Sgt. John Da Foe testified he saw Honey approach a handcuffed young man, in the custody of two Los Angeles County deputies, near the Bank of America during the June riot.

"I observed Capt. Honey walk up, grab him by the hair, jerk his head up and strike him in the face," Da Foe said.

Da Foe said he did not report the incident right away because he thought the Los Angeles county deputies would, and he was afraid that Honey, a superior officer in his own department "would hold it against me" and harm his career.

He said he used the slingshot on a number of occasions, buying marbles for ammunition. Other Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo County deputies also carried and used them, he said.

The slingshots were used openly, he indicated, and niether Honey nor any other officer issued any orders against them.

The slingshots were used to keep demonstrators "out of effective throwing disance" when deputies were besieged by rioters hurling rocks, bottles and firebombs, he said.

Socialite's Home Hit; Valuable Art Is Taken

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two men invaded the fashionable Pacific Heights home of socialite Maryon Davies Lewis Thursday night and took loot worth thousands of dollars after one of them raped the maid.

Mrs. Lewis told police she, her 15-year-old daughter and the blonde maid were forced to undress by the men. One of the men then insisted on a tour of the home to fin a non-existent "safe."

Mrs. Lewis, daughter of the late Ralph K. Davies, who was chairman of the board of American President Lines, said that during the naked tour the man alternately told her she was beautiful and a "fascist pig."

She said the man was armed with a pistol and said he had a $150-a-day heroin habit.

The gunman was black and the other robber was a white man with hippie-length hair. They were accompanied by an attractice brown-haired woman they called "Leslie."

The victims were bound with nylon stockings and freed themselves in about 15 minutes. Police said there was no trace of the assailants in the swank neighborhood.

Officer Paul Coupland said the loot included several art objects, including an 18-inch jade alligator. Mrs. Lewis said the alligator was one of two in the world and the other was at the M. H. de Young Memorial Museum in Golden Gate Park.

"It was likeR&a dream...everything was in slow motion," Mrs. Lewis later told police.

Dash Of Water Causes Wreck

Joan Lela Weiss, 36, of 375 Molino Avenue, Mill Valley, has been treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael for possible whiplash suffered in a two-car crash on Highway 101.

Her car was northbound on the Irwin Street on-ramp in San Rafael at 9:10 a.m. Wednesday when a passing car threw water on the windshield, cutting off her vision, the California Highway Patrol reported. Her auto then hit a car belonging to Jean Palley Tipper, 26, of San Francisco, according to patrolmen.

Novato Board Accepts Barrie Resignation

The Novato school board Tuesday night accepted the resignation of Thomas R. Barrie, physical education teacher and head baseball coach at Novato High School, effective at the end of the school year.

Barrie will leave teaching to enter the insurance business, according to his wife, Judy.

"Several applications" have been received for the soon-to-be vacant coaching position, according to Novato High athletic director Al Scott, who added that no action has been taken yet on them.

Ten Mile Walk Sponsored By Ecology Clubs

Ecology action clubs at San Marin and Novatoigh schools will sponsor a ten-mile walk in Novato April 22 to raise money for parks and open space.

The walk will start at 10 a.m. at the former Lee Brothers Market, Seventh Street and Grant Avenue, according to Norma Todd, Ecology Club faculty advisor at San Marin High.

Walkers will obtain a sponsor who will agree to pay them a certain sum for each mile they walk. Students, youth groups and members of civic organizations will be invited to walk, Mrs. Todd said.

The route, east of Highway 101, will circle an area extending from First Street to San Marin High School and to Indian Valley on the south and San Marin Drive on the north.

Assembly Stalls On Equal Rights

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A women's lib group has accused an Assembly committee of "evading the whole question" after the panel shuffled off to another committee a proposal to ratify the "equal rights" amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Kathleen Green, legislative "chairperson" for the Sacramento chapter of the National Organization for Women, described the unanimous action by the Assembly Rules Committee as a "setback" for the measure by Assemblyman Walter Karabian, R-Monterey Park.

"They're evading the whole question," she declared.

The committee sent the measure to the Judiciary Committee Thursday after Assemblyman Ray Johnson, R-Chico, acting chairman of Rules, said the panel wanted to "know more about" the resolution.

He said the Judiciary Committee should conduct a full hearing into the matter to assure that there is nothing in it to cause "embarrassment" to the legislature.

It was the second legislative action in as many days on the proposal. A similar resolution by Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, was defeated Wednesday by the Senate Rules Committee on a 2-2 vote after one lawmaker called it a "Minnie Mouse" amendment.

A delegation of 20 to 30 women activists attending the brief hearing Thursday were upset by the Assembly committee's action. One woman said it was proof women were discriminated against.

Karabian, however, disagreed with the women's lib group, saying that the action was not a setback for the measure and would focus more public attention on the women's rights issue.

He said a hearing by the Judiciary Committee would provide an opportunity "to put to rest suspicions and concern" about the legislation and predicted the panel would approve the legislation.

The measure would approve the proposed 27th amendment to the U.S. Constitution, guaranteeing women equal rights with men. Three-fourths of the 50 states must ratify it to become law. Karabian said 11 states have done so already.

In addition to Johnson, Assemblymen Larry E. Townsend, D-Torrance, Leo J. Ryan, D-Burlingame, Robert H. Burke, R-Huntington Beach, and Ernest N. Mobley, R-San ger, voted to send the measure to the Judiciary Committee. Assemblymen John Burton, D-San Francisco, committee chairman, and John Quimby, D-San Bernardino, were absent.

Connecticut Turns Down Rights Bill

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Connecticut Thursday became the second state to reject the U.S. constitutional amendment to grant women equal rights.

The action came when the House of Representatives voted 83-77 against ratification. A minimum of 89 votes, a majority of the 177-member chamber, was necessary for passage.

"Sex discrimination started when Eve conned Adam into biting the apple and man has had to pay ever since," said Rep. John V. Cassidento, New Haven Democrat. "Only a darn fool would vote for this thing."

Most of those arguing against ratification, including 10 of the 18 women in the House, said they felt the voters of Connecticut should have a chance to express their views on the amendment in a referendum before legislators are called upon to vote.

Thus far, 10 states have ratified the amendment. Oklahoma previously rejected it.

New Sterilization Methods Revealed

DETROIT (UPI)—The failure of voluntary birth control to reduce world population growth could result in compulsory sterilization programs or other extremes, the president of the American Association of Planned Parenthood physicians said Thursday.

"We hope that the restraint of population growth can come about through voluntary means; but if it does not, involuntary methods will be used," Dr. Donald Minkler told an interviewer at the Association's 10th annual meeting.

He said governments may force mandatory sterilization or impose tax systems that reward small families and penalize large ones.

Many doctors believe it will be necessary to have compulsory sterilization in parts of the world where the population already is unmanageable and where voluntary birth control has been unsuccessful, Minkler said.

In papers presented at the meeting, attended by 300 physicians from the United States, Canada, Mexico and India, doctors described new methods of sterilizing men and women.

Dr. Joseph E. Davis of New York, president of the Association for Voluntary Sterilization, revealed the development of a mechanical "on-and-off" faucetlike male sterilization device.

Davis said a miniscule faucet-type valve, made of gold and stainless steel, could be implanted in the sperm-carrying tubes either in the "off" or "on" position. The switch could be reversed without difficulty at any future time, he said.

Dr. Clifford R. Wheeless Jr., associate professor of gynecology-obstetrics of the Woman's Clinic at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, described a new method of female sterilization involving the sealing of the fallopian tubes under one small abdominal incision. He said the operation could be performed under local anesthesia in just 15 minutes at a cost of only $125.

Rohnert Park's Population Up

The Rohnert Park population has increased by 16 per cent in 10 months to a total of 7,450 persons as of Feb. 1.

A ROMANTIC SETTING

Russ Trip A Different Ballgame

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Just how much this stems from a deliberate White House effort to compensate the department for its less than central role in the Peking trip and just how much its involvement results from the logical course of events under different circumstances is debatable.

Through the secretary of state, the President has directed Martin Hillenbrand, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, to assemble the necessary briefing papers and coordinate preparations within the National Security Council system. Both Hillenbrand and Secretary of State William P. Rogers have met at least twice each with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin specifically to discuss the May 22 Moscow trip.

Also, upon presidential directive, Hillenbrand last week consulted with the permanent members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels. There will be at least one other presummit consultation effort with European allies by State Department officials, and immediately after the trip, on May 30-31, Secretary of State Rogers will attend the NATO ministerial meeting in Bonn to give his colleagues postcript details of the visit.

State also prepared the briefing materials for the Peking Trip, although the fact was kept relatively quiet because of the administration's concern for secrecy and leaks on that particular trip.

However, it was not Rogers but presidential aide Dr. Henry Kissinger who made the crucial advance trips to Peking and sat in on virtually every important meeting that took place during the seven day visit.

In many ways the Moscow trip constitutes an entirely different ball game. There is much less need for secrecy. Diplomatic relations are long standing and ambassadorial chats here and in Moscow are easily arranged. There are a number of ongoing negotiations in such areas as arms control, trade, incidents at sea, space, and health.

While many of these involve other departments, such as defense and commerce, it is state which is charged with working out a negotiating plan and the modalities and which has the files and apparatus to do the coordinating.

This latter task leads one State Department official to comment wryly that the "worst problem in a democracy is not so much negotiating with the other side as reconciling views within our own government."

In any case while the Peking trip essentially focused on one issue, making it more easily a one-man job, the Moscow trip involves too many subjects and departments and technicalities to do without the machinery of the State Department. In the White House the National Security Council has only three or four staff specialists in European affairs.

"I just don't think there was any choice on this trip," comments one senior State Department official.

"Peking was about as aznormal as landing on the moon," says another. "We're back into the normal pattern — that's all."

State had been working on preparations for the Moscow trip long before specific requests began to flow in from the White House — "As we would normally for any high level meeting," says one official matter of factly.

Investment Executive Will Fight Injunction

Robert W. Pollack of Black Point, president of United Financial Group Inc., an overseas investment firm, said yesterday he is readying an appeal of a federal injunction halting the corporation's dealings.

Pollack said a brief is expected to be filed in the Ninth District Court of Appeals in San Francisco within the next two weeks and a decision is expected within 90 days.

The injunction, granted in February by U.S. District Court Judge Robert C. Belloni in Portland, stemmed from a complaint filed by the Securities and Exchange Commission charging Pollock's firm several subsidiary organizations and company officers of fraud and deceit in the sale of stocks and other securities.

A bid by Pollock to stay receivership of the company was denied in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals last month, and attorney William E. Tassock of Portland was appointed receiver.

Pollock also faces suits totaling $1.5 million filed by European investors who claimed their investments weren't being properly handled.

Brooklyn Mobster Assassinated While Celebrating His Birthday

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joseph (Crazy Joe) Gallo who led a bloody war in the 1960s for control of the Brooklyn rackets, was slain early today in gangland-style as he celebrated his 43rd birthday with his family.

Gallo was shot three times, in the back, buttocks and elbow, before the eyes of his wife of less than a month, sister and an 11-year-old daughter by an earlier marriage as they sat in a crowded dining room at Umberto's Clam House in lower Manhattan.

Police Sgt. Henry Colin said Gallo's bodyguard, Peter (The Greek) Diapioulis, was also shot. He was reported in fair condition at Beekman Downtown Hospital.

Colin said a lone assassin entered the restaurant at about 5:20 a.m., walked to Gallo's table and began shooting. Gallo, mortally wounded, staggered up from his chair and out to Hester Street where he collapsed.

His assailant escaped.

A revolver believed to be the murder weapon was found in the street, Colin said.

Gallo was one of three brothers who challenged the supremacy of the "family" of Joseph Profaci over the Brooklyn underworld and sparked a three-year gang war which left 14 dead, four injured and four missing.

The feud ended after Profaci died of cancer in 1962 when the Gallo and Profaci families were absorbed into the family reputedly headed by Joseph Colombo Sr.

Gallo was known to be a rival of Colombo and was questioned after Colombo was shot and critically wounded at an Italian-American Unity Day Rally last summer by a Negro assassain.

The slain mobster was released from prison last year after serving nine years of a 7 1-2 to 14 1-2 year sentence for attempted extortion. When he was sentenced in 1961, the judge termed him "a menace to society."

Gallo was married to brunette dental assistant Sina Essary last month at the Manhattan townhouse of actor Jerry Grbach, whose wife was helping the racketeer write his autobiography. He had been divorced by his first wife, who bore him his daughter, Lisa, while he was in prison.

When he was shot, Gallo was sitting with Lisa, his wife, his sister Camelia Fiorella, Diapioulis and a friend, Edith Russo. Only Diapioulis and Gallo were hit, but patrons scattered, knocking over tables and chairs, when the shots rang out.

Gallo had been on parole since his release from the Ossining Correction Facility (formerly Sing Sing Prison). Prior to his 1961 conviction, he had been arrested 23 times, convicted four, but had spent only 20 days behind bars.

Gallo had also been imprisoned in a penitentiary in Auburn, N.Y. where he became friendly with black inmates and in 1963 led a protest when a white barber refused to cut a Negro's hair.

After his release he reportedly urged that blacks be taken into organized crime families. His close rapport with blacks made Gallo a prime suspect in the wounding of Colombo, whose assailant was a black man who was shot and killed by an unidentified person minutes after he gunned down Colombo.

After Gallo's release, he told newsmen he had retired from the mob and was wriing his memoirs, but police sources said he still was active in south Brooklyn rackets to some degree.

Big Food Chains' Prices Probed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The Cost of Living Council has launched pricing investigations of 11 major food chains, several large meat packers and 25 manufacturing companies, the deputy director of operations for the council in Washington said today.

The investigations were initiated in a search for "economic stabilization program violators," Bert M. Concklin said in remarks prepared for delivery to a seminar sponsored by the Kansas City Bar Association, the University of Kansas Law School and the Internal Revenue Service.

"We are directing compliance checks in industry sectors that are exerting the greatest inflationary pressures as evidenced by the wholesale and consumer price indices and other indicators," Concklin said. "These include retail food, wholesale meat, lumber, metals, machinery and equipment, and health services."

Without specifying the names of the potential violators, Concklin said the investigations being conducted by IRS compliance officials included:

Audits of 11 food retailers with annual sales of over $50 million who exceeded their allowable profit margins, according to the first quarterly reports submitted to the price commission.

Examinations or pricing practices of several large meat packers and a restudy of the structure of the meat delivery chain from on-the-hoof to the retail level.

Study of the pricing actions taken by 25 manufacturing companies with annual revenues over $100 million which fail to seek price approvals or to file quarterly reports with the Price Commission.

Concklin said more than 500 reports from companies are being screened to determine if they have increased profit margins illegally.

Innocent Plea To Car Theft

John Martin Green, 21, of San Anselmo has pleaded innocent to charges of car theft and carrying a concealed weapon, a misdemeanor.

He was ordered to return to Marin Superior Court on June 5 for a jury trial.

Green is accused of taking an Austin-Healy parked in Fairfax March 6. He reportedly drove to Kentfield where he parked in a residential driveway and was seen placing a gun in his waistband.

Driver Hurt

Patricia Gail Hall, 34, of 9 Mesa Road, Point Reyes Station, was treated at West Marin Medical Center for facial cuts and a broken collarbone suffered when her car left Sir Francis Drake Boulevard west of Inverness at 5:35 p.m. Wednesday and skidded into a ditch, the California Highway Patrol reported.

New Mintkeeper Is A Remodeler

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—There is a new housekeeper in the Old Mint and she wants to remodel—to the tune of about $4 million over the next five years.

Mary Brooks, director of the United States Mint, took over the century-old historical building Wednesday from Thomas Hannon of the General Services Administration.

"I've remodeled everything that I've ever gotten my hands on," Mrs. Brooks said.

When she is finished with the building Mrs. Brooks hopes to have a restored facility housing both an education attraction — a museum dedicated to western silver and gold — and the center of the Treasury Department's numismatic services.

Garden Planting Urged By Senator

WASHINGTON (UPI) —One way to fight inflation, according to Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., is for every American family which is able to plant a vegetable garden this summer.

Allen offered a resolution in the Senate urging such action, saying such gardens "can not only help the American family fight inflation, but also can insure the family better nutrition and the benefits of healthful exercise."

School Budget Cuts Proposed

An advisory "supercommittee' of citizens has told the San Anselmo School District board how it can avoid a projected $130,000 budget deficit for 1972-73: instigate sweeping personnel cutbacks and a salary freeze.

The supercommittee — composed of chairmen of six study committees appointed last December to study district operation — submitted its final list of possible solutions to the financial dilemma, including among other things, freezing salaries for a year, firing 11 teachers and eliminating the position of assistant superintendent.

In all, the report allows for about $190,000 in "priority recommendation" cuts. But, the report notes, "as many items as possible (were listed) to give the board the greatest number of options for its consideration."

The report estimated that $45,000 could be saved by the district through freezing salary step increases for a year; $88,000 by cutting 11 teachers; $8,000 by replacing the assistant superintendent job with a "fiscal clerk" and $21,000 by cutting the head librarian and two assistants.

The report urged only one principal for the district's two junior high schools, Red Hill and Hidden Valley. This move would save the district $15,400, a figure which allows "for extra clerical help."

The supercommittee report also suggested parent, teacher and student involvement in school decision-making; continued support of special education programs, and establishment of a permanent citizens advisory committee.

As a "second priority recommendation," the report urged sale of Isabel Cook School — distributing those pupils to other district schools — and the consideration of Yolansdale School closure.

These are second-priority suggestions, the report said, because "their net immediate fiscal advantage is ... small and cannot be predicted accurately, and because they could probably not be implemented in an effective way by September 1972."

The six committee chairmen voted unanimously on all but two issues. One opposed and another abstained on the question of cutting the head librarian, and the chairman split on the question of eliminating the library aides, the report noted.

The six committees were composed of district residents, staff and teachers.

No Recreation Money, Gallinas District Told

The Gallinas Village Community Services District board last night was told not to expect much financial assistance from the county in purchasing local recreation facilities and open space.

Jim Vande Weg, assistant director of Marin County Parks and Recreation Department, informed the board that most of the department's money was being spent on countywide acquisition rather than joint ventures with local communities.

The county parks and recreation department will be able to help local communities develop their own ideas, said Vande Weg, through informational symposia and staff assistance. But direct financial aid to local areas will not be available.

The board also interviewed two applicants for the district's summer recreation director: Becky Preble and Diane Belben, who presented the board with their suggestions for the summer program. The director will be picked at an adjourned meeting Thursday.

New Horse Ordinance Proposed

The Tiburon Planning Commission has recommended to the city council that it approve an ordinance setting up a licensing system for horses, and permitting them to be kept at single family residences in the city.

The council probably will take up the question at its first meeting in May, said Richard G. Arjo, director of community development.

He said the council has considered the keeping of horses in the city before, but referred a proposed ordinance back to the planning commission for revisions.

The recommendations call for licensing all horses, then having owners go through the normal procedure for obtaining a conditional use permit before allowing any animal to be kept within the city.

No fee for the license was recommended, Arjo said.

The commission also urged the council to impose a moratorium on building in the R-3 Zone, multiple family residences, until changes in city ordinances are made.

The council, at its Monday night meeting, asked Arjo and the city attorney to draft changes in the zoning ordinances altering both development standards and design review procedures.

A hearing on possible rezoning of 16 acres on Avenida Mira-Flores and Hacienda Drive was postponed until April 19, a planed second meeting date this month for the commission.

Practice Bombs Being Recovered

Navy and Air Force disposal crews have recovered more than 950 practice bombs from an abandoned target range in mudflats south of Hamilton Air Force Base, according to the base information office.

Although one of the first bombs recovered was live, all the others since recovered have been sand-filled, the recovery crews reported. The bombs were dropped in pre-World War II training sessions.

The search which started in January has been sporadic, depending on the tides. Officials estimated the bomb total will reach 1,500.

Accident Victim's Condition Improves

The most seriously injured of three persons hospitalized after a chain-reaction crash on Highway 101 Wednesday morning has been removed from the critical list, Marin General Hospital spokesmen reported today.

Purchase Of Land Is Wanted

Directors of the Alto-Richardson Bay Fire District board voted last night to negotiate with the Golden Gate Baptist Seminary for purchase of land at 308 Reed Boulevard now being leased for a district fire station.

Negotiation should be held next week with the seminary board, said Fire Chief Carl O. Heyman. He declined to estimate the purchase price. The property will be used for future expansion of the station, he said.

The board also told Heynan to shift the schedules of his men in some cases, and cut down the number of hours which some work. At the same time, the board voted in principle to raise salaries of some of the firemen.

Money for both the purchase of the land and the salary increases has been set aside from tax revenues in past years, said Heynan, and there will be no increase in the district's tax rate because of the changes.

Shotgun Robbery Sentence Given

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Anthony Bottom, one of five persons accused of slaying two New York policemen, has been sentenced to 25 years in federal prison for the shotgun robbery of a savings and loan office.

"Only by the grace of God somebody was not killed" during the July holdup, U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti said in imposing the maximum sentence Thursday.

Bottom, 20, is serving a five year to life sentence from a California court for the attempted murder of a San Francisco police sergeant.

An Appeal For Heart Research

GENEVA (UPI)—The World Health Organization (WHO) marked World Health Day 1972 today with an urgent appeal for action against heart diseases, the major cause of death in both rich and poor countries.

WHO Director-General Dr. Marcelino Candau of Brazil said the theme "Your Heart is Your Health" was chosen this year because despite economic achievements the future of civilization depends to a large extent on the prevention of heart diseases.

The affluent countries have a high ratio of coronary ailments but the less-developed nations are inflicted with rheumatic heart disease because of crowded conditions and poor hygiene, Candau said.

Woodacre Child Injured By Car

An 8-year-old Woodacre boy, hit by a car while riding his bicycle yesterday, was treated at Kaiser Hospital for bruises and scrapes, according to hospital officials.

Daniel E. Shiffman, of 29 Madrone Avenue was riding on Rockledge Road west of Carson Road about 4:15 p.m. when the accident occurred, according to the California Highway Patrol. Driver of the car, David H. Foust, 24, of Colorado, was not hurt, officers said.

Toss The Old Rules Out When Choosing The Best Of Leads

In the early days of the game you always led the fourth-highest card of your longest and strongest suit against a no-trump contract. If you led anything else, your friends would make excuses for you until you came to your senses. The situation is, however, quite different today.

Opening lead — ♡ Q

OLD FASHIONED

The old-fashioned lead for West would be the deuce of diamonds. This would give South the contract without a struggle.

No modern expert would dream of leading the deuce of diamonds. Some might lead a spade, but most would vote for the queen of hearts.

THE UNBID MAJOR

Part of the reason for this choice is the value of leading an unbid major suit against a no-trump contract. Players who have major suits bid them; if they don't bid them, they don't have them.

An additional factor is the advantage of leading a suit that can be set up with very little help from your partner. When you have Q-J-7 of a suit, you will do well if your partner has any length headed by even a single honor. You need far more help from your partner when you lead from J-x-x-x.

SINKS SOUTH

In this case, the heart lead sinks South without a trace. His best chance is to win the first trick and lead a low club. West can step right up with the ace of clubs and continue the hearts, giving the defenders four hearts and a club. But even if West ducks the first club, South can take only eight tricks before he runs out of gas.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - A Q J
♥ - 7 4 3
♦ - Q 8 5 4
♣ - Q 6 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds.

You don't want to raise hearts with three small trumps, you are too strong for a response of one no-trump, not strong enough for two no-trump, and it is dangerous to bid spades with only three cards in the suit. The unorthodox response of two diamonds is the least of evils.

New Shredding Device Arrives

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke has a new paper shredding machine to destroy confidential documents, but he says the idea for obtaining the device had nothing to do with the ITT controversy.

"We just felt there was confidential material that should be destroyed," Reinecke said Tuesday.

Magee Asks For Jury Trial Now

After having several times waived his right to a speedy trial and agreeing to be tried after Miss Davis, the convict this week sent a petition in familiar-looking handwriting to the court asking that he be tried immediately.

"Jury trial now," Magee demanded in his petition, similar in appearance to the hundreds he has fired off to courts in the past several years.

He claimed he is being held in an "incommunicado position" and denied the right to see news reporters because of an illegal state court gagg (sic) rule . . ."

Meanwhile, Magee wrote, apparently referring to Miss Davis' trial, "the state agents puts on a news media trial, building up a case against defendant (Magee), holding him up to public ridicule in a flagrant racism slave case . . ."

Magee charged that the state has put him into a position where he can only see state agents. He even accused the people whom he asked be appointed as his investigators of being state agents.

"The state agents are using black and white people to run psuedo Rucell defense committees to feed the people lies," he said.

Magee fired off another letter yesterday to Judge Leonard Ginsburg of Tulare County, who has been assigned to his case, asking an immediate decision on his request for a speedy trial.

Magee, who is charged with murder, conspiracy and kidnapping, alocg with Miss Davis, had his case severed from hers last year, mainly because his delaying tactics were not the same strategy which her lawyers wanted to use.

During testimony at Miss Davis's trial about the August 1970 shoot-out at the Marin Civic Center, Magee's name has figured provinently and he has been identified as the man holding the shotgun which killed Judge Harold J. Haley.

New Growth Committee Is Approved

The Cotati City Council last night joined the Rohnert Park city council and Cotati School District board in agreeing to a joint city-school coordinating committee.

The committee, which will meet monthly, will include representatives of the school board, both city councils and their planning commissions.

School board member Anthony Carbone told the council the committee could coordinate residential growth with school building programs and perhaps avoid crowded conditions and double session schools.

The Cotati City Council also:

PLANNING — Reaffirmed its decision not to pay the $2,000 per year requested for planning services by Sonoma County. The council held that services should remain free.

EMPLOYEES — Recognized the Cotati City Employees Association as members of the Sonoma County Employees Association and named City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen as the employee relations officer.

ZONING — Adopted the zoning ordinance.

WARRANTS — Agreed to join the Sonoma County Central Warrant System at an annual cost of $224 per year.

FUND — Agreed to donate $100 to the scholarship fund in memory of Ralph E. McGinnis, Cotati fire chief who died last month.

BUSES — Approved a resolution endorsing applications by the Golden Gate Bridge Highway and Transportation District for expansion of bus and ferry systems.

PERSONNEL — Adjourned to a closed session Monday at 7 p.m. to consider hiring a new public works foreman.

Circulars Fail To Note Political Ad

Although the flyers were political advertisement paid for by the Nome campaign, the Independent-Journal inadvertently failed to note this on the circulars.

More of the flyers contained in today's issues will be probably identified as paid political advertising.

Apricots Damaged

BERKELEY (UPI) — The Apricot Producers of California today estimated damage to the state apricot crop at between 40 to 50 per cent because of the late March frost.

Signed for Role

Homeowners Group Ignores Politics

Marin Estates Homeowners' Association last night turned its back on political activity of three of its members, although it elected one of them vice-president.

The three, John E. Irvine, the new vice president, James D. Bell, and Ernest J. Russo, have written to the Corte Madera Town Council, promising a referendum campaign against the zoning for a proposed townhouse development.

Seventy-five unincorporated acres were prezoned R-2, then annexed to Corte Madera for the Madera del Presidio 530-unit development, next to the H. Koch and Sons Luggage plant on Highway 101.

Irvine, Bell and Russo claimed objecting residents had no real chance to voice opinions on the matter, questioned the density of the project and its lack of concern for open space.

During discussion at last night's meeting, according to Anne Weingarth, wife of the association's new president, the association members affirmed their interest in social activity and neighborhood improvement, excluding political activity. She said no formal vote was taken.

Four new officers were elected last night, she said: L. P. Weingarth, president; Irvine; Jan Hogan, secretary and Chris MacDonough, treasurer.

Youth Released From Hospital

A 16-year-old Mill Valley youth, injured when his motorcycle and a car collided llided yesterday on Laverne Avenue north of Homestead Boulevard in Homestead Valley, was released from the hospital today after treatment of his injuries.

Francis D. Pissio, of 114 Lomita Drive, Mill Valley, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised right knee, ucraped left hand and a concussion suffered in the accident which occurred about 10:30 a.m., according to hospital authorities.

Driver of the car, Kenneth S. Brown, 19, of 21 Midway Avenue, Mill Valley, was uninjured, according to officers. John Olds, a passenger on the motorcycle, was also injured in the accident, according to officers, but said he would see his own doctor. His age and address were not available.

To Superior Court On Burglary

Richard Warren Lacaze, 20, a Stinson Beach garbageman charged in connection with three burglaries, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court to appear April 16.

Lacaze is accused of burglarizing two Stinson Beach homes as well as receiving stolen property and grand theft.

Lacaze and Dennis Michael Murphy, 22, a fellow garbageman, were arrested in mid-March by a sheriff's officer who said they were responsible for burglaries in Tamalpais Valley and Stinson Beach —the two areas served by the garbage company.

Did Wisconsin Capture National Mood?

By GUY HALVERSON
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

MILWAUKEE — The big question emerging from the Wisconsin primary is whether the evident surge toward populism here — reflected in deep voter discontent and a boost for political mavericks and independents —captures the mood of the United States as a whole.

For the Wisconsin primary indicates that at the least a substantial segment of the electorate of this important midwestern industrial-agricultural state feels increasingly isolated and cut off from government.

In the last weeks of the campaign here all the major candidates were hammering hard at the alleged inequalities of the American tax system as well as soaring consumer prices and alleged governmental waste and mismanagement.

Significantly, polls taken here by the staff of winner Sen. George McGovern suggested that many voters favored Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace or McGovern as their first or second candidate.

Together the two men —both running outside the mainstream with strong independent campaigns — won more than 52 per cent of the primary vote.

To some observers, this reinforces the view that a sizable "populist" vote does now exist within the electorate.

In the recent Illinois primary, it is recalled, voters there — including the sizable Republican crossover nominated an insurgent antimachine Democrat as the gubernatorial candidate as well as renominating a local Cook County state's attorney opposed by organization regulars.

For South Dakota McGovern, who won in a field of 12 with about 30 per cent of the vote, the Wisconsin primary is viewed as an important victory. It clearly establishes him as a serious presidential contender.

"After a year of adversity, I think we can stand one night of prosperity," the senator — beaming and relaxed, his wife by his side —told cheering supporters at the Pfister Hotel. The first candidate to enter the Democratic presidential contest, he snapped up significant voter support from virtually every segment of the Wisconsin electorate, including a large student-youth vote. He gained 54 of the state's 67 convention delegate votes.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who finished third here behind Wallace, won two districts, picking up 13 convention delegates.

The big Wallace vote — the Alabama governor won 22 per cent of the vote —was much larger than recent polls had suggested. Initial examination of the balloting suggests a heavy Republican crossover for Wallace, though he also ran well in blue-collar areas, repeating —but not equaling —his performance in the 1964 primary when he won 34 per cent of the vote.

In the 1968 presidential balloting, Wallace wrested only about 8 per cent of the vote.

The fourth-place showing here by Maine Sen. Edmund S. Muskie is considered a serious setback in his drive for the nomination. Muskie staffers, however, argue that the senator will be on much stronger grounds in the upcoming April 25 Massachusetts and Pennsylvania primaries. Together the two states have 284 delegates.

In many ways the McGovern campaign here the past few weeks was of blitzkrieg proportions. "They (the McGovern people) were everywhere," one stunned supporter of New York Mayor John V. Lindsay told this reporter. "I've never seen anything like it. It was impressive."

Humphrey, second with about 21 per cent of the primary vote, also won across-the-board support from most voting segments. He did especially well in Milwaukee's black wards. (Only about 4 per cent of the population here is nonwhite, and busing never became the heated issue here as elsewhere.)

Still, Humphrey backers were obviously shaken by the senator's poor showing from organized labor. In Milwaukee's south side, heavily blue-collar Fourth District (which has a large Polish vote) McGovern came in well ahead of Humphrey, who was expected to do well.

Again, in Milwaukee's Fifth District — which includes virtually all segments of the population and may more clearly reflect typical urban voter districts around the nation than any other Wisconsin district — McGovern ran extremely well even though the district finally went to Humphrey.

The poor showing —and eventual withdrawal of Lindsay — was not totally unexpected, even by many of his supporters. The mood at Lindsay headquarters in the large Sheraton Schroeder Hotel was one of unrelieved depression and gloom. Some Lindsay supporters — most of them were young college students — were quick to indicate support for McGovern, though some of them also told this reporter that they believed Humphrey or Sen. Edward Kennedy would likely emerge as the candidate come July.

"We lost in part because we had real organizational difficulties," says Debbie Melton, a long-haired, pretty University of Wisconsin student who did graphics work for the Lindsay campaign. Tom Bourgeois, a political-science major at Marquette University, from Franklin Lakes, N.J., says he'll work for the McGovern campaign but expects someone else to emerge as the final candidate.

Indeed, as campaign workers headed back to their hotels Wednesday, thoughts kept returning to Kennedy. In 1968, many recalled, Vice-President Humphrey didn't carry one primary and yet went on to win the nomination in Chicago.

Given the large slate of candidates this year, it is felt — plus an increasing fragmentation of voter and delegate support — many people here are wondering if a consensus, dark-horse candidate may not yet emerge. The name most heard here is that of Kennedy.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who waged a heavy media television campaign here, did less than many had expected, winning about 8 per cent of the vote. Early analysis indicated that at least part of the vote was a Republican cross-over and reflected the senator's vehement strong opposition to busing solely for the purpose of racial balance.

AN OPEN DOOR

"I Was Scared First," Says Sausalito Jesus Minister

By PAT BALMES

"I was scared to death the first few nights I walked up and down Bridgeway. I sat in coffee shops and bars, wherever things were happening, talking to kids about Jesus.

"Sometimes we ended up sitting on the curb," said street minister Judy Beane, who is hostess at Sausalito's the Open Door Coffee House.

The mission is visited by about 130 street people a week.

Miss Beane, of Strawberry, a student at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, studies and naps each afternoon before opening The Open Door at 8 p.m. for coffee and conversation.

"The Open Door gives off good vibes. Street people seem to say, 'What's this place?' and come in," said Judy. In southern accent she talks with visitors gently, in intentional contrast to hard-sell tactics of dogmaticists and fanaticism of Jesus Freaks.

Judy learned to rap this way from the Rev. Lars Williamson, host at The Open Door, first minister-on-the-street in Sausalito. He began his unsponsored street ministry in Sausalito in 1967. A television technician for a San Francisco station, Williamson married and has two sons.

"When he first started, he worked hard, watched and listened. I spent several months with Lars just listening to him talk to street people. It was like learning a new language," said Judy.

By then street people associated her with Williamson and they could begin to walk separately. Williamson wears a clerical collar for easy identification, so Judy made herself a cape with a peace symbol crowned with a cross. She wears a long flowered pants-dress underneath. Since 1969 Judy has walked the street almost nightly "to help people and tell them about Christianity".

"I FEEL a certain closeness with street people. The kids protect me and have stopped a few bad situations," she said.

Their ministering has been totally in the street and at their own homes. Judy shared her apartment iwth a disturbed girl for months until she was able to persuade her to seek professional help. Williamson answered a call from Marin Suicide Prevention Center recently and took the person threatening suicide into his home in the middle of the night.

Last October Williamson and Judy located an empty fish and chips store next to Sausalito's heliport where about 150 people live in buses and on houseboats. It is also a favorite spot for hitchhikers and people stop in on their way to the Mill Valley crash pad.

Working hard to renovate the stripped building, the ministers furnished it with discarded rugs, stump tables, floor pillows, a second hand piano, blue ceiling lights and scented homemade candles.

"It's a living room for people who live in buses; they bring in pictures, coffee, tea and bread," she said. One man brought a handcarved wooden cross in Mill Valley to hang on the Open Door.

"All kinds of conversation are accepted. If it gets too rambunctious, we ask them to cool it — it should be a Christian atmosphere. The road to Christ is a long one; you have to find where a person is on that road. You find out by listening to them," said Judy.

"I find I am not shocked anymore. They do not feel that they are going to be put down. Sometimes you just listen the whole time; sometimes I can interweave Christian principles by finding parallels with their concepts," she said.

MANY STREET people are highly educated and sincerely interested in the metaphysical and Eastern religions. Judy said her seminary classes in theology and philosophy apply in the Open Door conversations.

Average nightly attendance has increased from five to 20. Street people's attitude has changed. At first they called Williamson and Judy Jesus Freaks, now they're Christians.

"We find all kinds. Some with problems they want to talk about. We do not have to preach; they would ask us," said Judy. If the troubles are serious she directs them to an agency. Some are problems she can handle herself such as hunger, where to sleep tonight and where to get clothes.

Understanding street people better now, Judy says she feels concern for them, not pity. Their life style is their choice. Street people are very generous. They put value on the person, earn just enough to live and don't care about externals. In talking to street people she does not attempt to change their life style but tries to "get their heads together" to be productive and useful, not parasites.

"I don't want to live like the street people. When I get through the seminary, I'll work," said Judy.

Street people have a hard time separating themselves from what they are doing. If you preach against drugs they take it you are against them, according to Judy. If they want to talk about drugs she uses gentle guidance, "That's not too cool", she'll say, not "you'll go to hell if you use it!"

When asked if she uses drugs Judy replies, "No. I do not need them. I'm high enough on religion." Drug users are supersensitive to others' emotions and can tell if you are being truthful, she said.

"The first bummer I saw freaked me out. He thought he was dying. People have been known to go out a window. You want so much to help that it's emotionally draining. You have to remind yourself that it is not him talking, but the drug through his mind," said Judy.

Some addicts come to the Open Door because they want to give up drugs, and Judy directs them to an agency.

NEITHER DRUGS nor alcohol are allowed in The Open Door. Alcohol is prohibited because of the youngsters who come there. She tells those who want to use drugs there "we do not want the police running in here and spoiling the atmosphere."

A large sign reads,

"We do not dig rules, but if we get ripped off for using drugs or alcohol, we will get closed down. We think we have a good thing. Please do not bring the man down on us."

When an infringement threatens, Williamson "intentionally fumbles around" to allow time for the street people themselves to enforce the rule.

Three years of experience with street people has changed Judy's attitude toward religion although her basic principles are the same.

"I was always told you had to come to church to hear about Christ," she said. Now she realizes that religion is a way of life, not just a Sunday thing. "Now it is a worship experience just talking to people. Sometimes I need to worship in the fellowship of other Christians in a church building. It gets pretty noisy at the Open Door," said Judy. She added that she is no longer so concerned with externals.

In 1968 Judy was one of 25 national appointments by the Baptist Church to two years of missionary work "like Vista." Although she spoke no Spanish she worked for 13 months in New Mexico with Spanish-speaking people and then came to a San Francisco Spanish-speaking congregation.

NEXT SHE was appointed to street walk in Sausalito for the first Baptist Church's new coffee house which had a strict approach, according to Judy. She was planning to return to Virginia and attend a Louisville, Ky. seminary when she met Williamson and "become hooked" on working with street people.

"This kind of ministry is slow; it's not geared to numbers, like how many baptisms. You do not have many decisions for Christ. But when street people find out that Christianity is real, they will try it," she said.

The rent and telephone of the Open Door are paid for by churches and individuals. Seminarians volunteer to help keep the door open every night between 8 p.m. and midnight. But because needs and problems are not confined to those hours, Williamson and Judy are praying for funds to provide around-the-clock service.

THE OPEN DOOR, a mission for street people at the Sausalito heliport, was opened in November by two young street ministers who have had several years of experience walking along Bridgeway in Sausalito "to help people and tell them about Christianity." Renovated by the Rev. Lars Williamson and Judy Beane, the former store is central to some 150 people living in buses and houseboats near the heliport. A frequent visitor is the St. Bernard who belongs to a neighboring undertaker.

STREET MINISTER Judy Beane, a student at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, welcomes street people nightly to the Open Door Mission in Sausalito where they can sit on floor pillows, drink coffee and talk in an atmosphere of blue lights and homemade scented candles. Conversation leads to mutual understanding, practical help for problems and information on Christianity. Here they share a laugh. (Independent-Journal photos by Alfred Arn)

A Four-Generation Party Marks Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alfsnes have lived more than 40 of their 50 years of married life in San Anselmo. Following their wedding April 5, 1922, at the home of Pearl Alfnes' aunt in San Francisco the couple lived for a few years in San Francisco.

The anniversary was celebrated Saturday night at a cocktail buffet at the home of the Alfsnes' daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Strauss, in San Anselmo. The couple's grandchildren, Richard Strauss, a student at California Polytechnic College, who is being married this weekend; Mrs. Phylo Tobler (Patricia Strauss) of Fairfax, and Dana Strauss, a student at San Jose State College all attended the party. Their great-grandson, 1-year-old Christian Tobler, was also at the party, making it a four-generation celebration.

Also at the party were Mr. Alfsnes' sister and brother-in-law, the John Magnussens, who came from Bremerton, Wash., and Ida Johanson of San Francisco, who was maid of honor at the Alfsnes' wedding.

The Alfsneses are both natives of Norway. She came to San Francisco in 1913, and he arrived shortly before their meeting at the Norwegian Club in San Francisco in 1920.

Mr. Alfsnes is a retired graphic artist. His hobbies are stamp and coin collecting. Mrs. Alfsnes enjoys knitting, sewing and reading and has been active in community and church work. She has served as an elder and a deacon at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Alfsnes have relatives in Norway and have made several trips through the years to Scandinavian countries to visit.

Summer Fashions Are Sparked With White

Ever-flattering white runs throughout the summer fashion collection. Stiff white linen with a slightly glazed surface ran through collections from Paris.

White jackets were worn with printed dresses, trousers of pleated skirts.

In Cool Suds

Empty Coffee Cans Are Handy Helpers

Empty coffee cans with plastic lids make excellent canisters for storing raisins, nuts, rice, tea, matches and other household items. Paint them to match the kitchen color scheme if you wish. Glue on a label and varnish the label to make it waterproof. Decorate the decals if you wish.

To Get Degree

Diane Buttner of San Rafael will receive her nursing cap at a ceremony at Samuel Merritt Hospital School of Nursing in Oakland on April 14. Diane, a graduate of Terra Linda High School, entered the nursing school last September. She is the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Patrick E. Buttner of San Rafael.

Safety Tips To Prevent Poisoning

What is the first thing a parent should do when a child swallows something that may be poisonous?

"Keep the remains of the contents of the bottle or box in order to identify the poison and estimate the dosage — as you call your doctor immediately," advises poison control authority Dr. Joseph Greensher.

A good precautionary move, according to Dr. Greensher, is to keep at home an ounce bottle of syrup of ipecac — to induce vomiting, if that is what the doctor orders. Another useful item to keep on the first-aid shelf is activated charcoal for dilution.

When storing potentially dangerous items — keep them high out of a child's reach and also under lock and key. Children often climb on a chair or box to get at a wall cabinet.

Never put dangerous products in containers used for eating or drinking.

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

I went shopping. When I came out of the store my newly painted car had a big dent in the fender. Some 'stinker had backed into it on the parking lot and didn't have the decency to leave a note giving his name and address.

This happens to a lot of people — it's already been done to me twice! I have $100-deductible insurance, so the deep scratches and dent will just stay there: a student can't put out that kind of money.

Most insurance policies pay for the damage a driver does to another car. So why do people feel they have to hit and run? — HIT AND MAD

DEAR H AND M:

... Because of these hard facts: insurance companies may cancel or raise the premiums if the insured proves himself "accident-prone."

It's a low-down dirty trick — this type of hit and run. But I'm stumped for suggestions on how to stop it. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Excuse this stationery. I've been banned from the rest of the house so must use what's available in my den.

My problem is my two spoiled daughters, aged 15 and 12, and a wife who thinks she is supposed to be their "pal." She has raised them by the psychology books. When I felt they needed a spanking, I was told to paddle a pillow instead. You know — the old "relieve your frustrations" bit, then be sweet and gentle, letting them get away with everything — and I mean EVERYTHING!

I grounded our daughters for two weeks for hitchhiking, and my wife was furious. Naturally they were back thumbing immediately. I point out the dangers of an accident, rape, possible murder if you meet a maniac, but my wife says I don't understand — this is the new way to meet people. I only understand they're incorrigible.

Last week my two brats were picked up by a state trooper and I had to get them at the barracks. Once home, I said to hell with the pillow! They got the spankings they deserved. My wife went hysterical and called the police — who ruled in my favor. Which is why I'm in the dog house.

She refuses to cook for or speak to me until I apologize and raise the girls' allowances. Was I wrong in spanking them? What do others think? — UNSURE SPANKER

DEAR U.S.:

Let's say your spankings weren't wrong — just misguided. First you paddled a pillow, then your two daughters —when the person who really deserves a big fat forceful put-down is: your wife!

These girls will continue incorrigible until your house is no longer divided against itself. I hope it doesn't take a tragic hitchhiking incident to effect that change! — H.

P.S. Discipline only helps when both mother and father agree on the need. Then it can do wonders. Read on:

DEAR HELEN:

We have always been a close-knit, warm family. Our children are by no means angels but my husband and I agreed on loving discipline, and could reason with them. Neither of us believes in corporal punishment. Thaty's why we're feeling so guilty.

Last year our 10-year-old son's behavior gradually changed from good to bad to intolerable. He complained, lied, was abusive to us and his grandparents, and became stubbornly disobedient. All our patience only made him worse.

Things came to a head about six weeks ago. He hit the roof because I gave him a sandwich for lunch instead of a pizza. I explained I couldn't get to the store, but would have his pizza ready for him the next day. He shoved his plate across the table, spilling his milk, then swore at me.

That was the end! All my kind patience went up in smoke, and I spanked him so hard he hollered. I must admit it DIDN'T hurt me more than it hurt him.

Literally overnight, our boy's behavior changed from hateful to happy. He's cheerful and loving once again — even the teachers remark on his transformation.

Only once since has he been fresh with me, and all I did was reach for the ruler. He smiled, apologized, and that was that. My husband smiled, too.

Helen, psychologists say spankings are wrong, thus I'm ashamed that I had to lose my temper to effect discipline. But when this punishment evidently worked miracles, could I be such a — BRUTE?

DEAR BRUTE:

Of course you're not a brute! Somewhere along the line, your son confused patience with "not caring." The kinder you were, the more he tried to test your love.

That ruler episode proved he had parents, not a couple of push-over caretakers he could manipulate because they weren't really concerned about him.

He asked for a showdown. Luckily he got it. I doubt he'll need another. — H.

COUTURE BARGAINS

By DIANA LOERCHER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — You don't have to go to the basement to find bargains, as Ohrbach's proves with stunning force year after year at its semiannual European couture fashions shows.

You also don't have to be poor to want bargains, as illustrated by this spring's roster of prominent women, who united on the store's sixth floor with the common goal of getting something, if not for nothing, at least for considerably less.

Among those in attendance were wives of United Nations ambassadors and celebrities Helen Hayes, Hermione Gingold, Dina Merrill, Diana Sands, Celeste Holm, Alexis Smith and Anita Loos.

Major purchasers from this season's line of nearly 50 items included Mrs. David Bruce, Mrs. Joseph Alsop, Mrs. William Paley, Doris Duke, Mrs. Melpo Niarchos, Mrs. Ed Sullivan, and Mrs. Joseph E. Levine.

While other New York stores make line-for-line copies of couture originals, Ohrbach's is the only one that uses the original fabrics, a policy it has followed for more than 20 years.

EVERY YEAR buyers from Ohrbach's hustle over to Europe to buy at the going price one of each item they would like to copy and its fabric. The average purchase price for originals this year was $3,200 per garment.

The clothes are then shipped to the United States and enter "in bond," or duty free, because Ohrbach's uses them only as models, sending them back to Europe once the design has been copied.

The clothes are reproduced by American manufacturers with sizes modified to fit American women. The reduction in prices is nothing short of drastic, ranging from $75 to $300 for copies of originals that sell up to $5,000.

It is little wonder that the store's advantages have gained it such popularity and made it something of an arbiter of taste in the foreign fashion sweepstakes.

The coveted honors this year went to Saint-Laurent, Givenchy, Ricci, Chanel, Venet, and Monsieur X (for Dior), all from Paris, and Valentino, Fabiani, Lancetti, and Tiziani from Rome.

IN THE SHOW two look-alike models glide down parallel runways, one wearing an original and the other an imperceptibly different copy. Leading the race in sheer numbers was Valentino with 11, followed by Monsieur X, Givenchy, and Saint-Laurent with about eight apiece.

One of the biggest sellers was a dashing navy cashmere wrap coat by Ricci — loose, lush, and full enough for Mata Hari to hide in. Saint-Laurent still brings 'em back alive with his safari styles.

So far a green linen three-piece belted suit is this season's favorite from his line. Oddly enough, he has paired the mannish, no nonsense cut of these suits with four-inch stacked heels on which the models tottered precariously down the runway.

Other winners were Givenchy's multistripe wool and nylon stretch gabardine coat and his navy jersey peekaboo back dress that are astonishing in their demure banality and reflect the new penchant for "pretty" clothing. All Valentino's "toppers," most in cashmere with dolman sleeves for both day and evening, topped purchase lists, and his softly alluring evening dresses in incongruous combinations of black, white, and pink sent the ladies scrambling for their charge plates.

Also on hand were immutably wearable Chanel suits, and a sprinkling of prints, the star of which was Monsieur X's pansy floral silk crepe de chine that splashed color on a fashion canvas of predominantly white, white, white.

Charmingly enough, the highlight of the show was not a design or a designer but an impromptu performance by Miss Hayes. Arriving late and dutifully taking cognizance of the fact that her assigned seat was on the other side of the runway, she gamely vaulted aboard, did a little turn for the applauding audience, and like a real trouper, landed in the right place without missing a step.

'Need Was There' For Ireland Remedial Clinic

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The need was there...just crying out," says Lady Valerie Goulding of Dublin, Ireland.

Similar words must have been said, similar thoughts thought by every person who ever worked as a volunteer.

Valerie Goulding, a lively brown-eyed woman, has spent 21 years fulltime volunteering in the rehabilitation field, helping back to activity (although often limited activity) the young, the middle-aged, the elderly who otherwise might never fit into society.

A TRAINER physiotherapist, she is co-founder with Kathleen O'Rourke, also a physiotherapist, of Ireland's Central Remedial Clinic. She said it is unusual among clinics because it takes all ages from five weeks to 85 years.

The clinic provides full medical rehabilitation facilities including speech therapy and hydrotherapy, education services, employment, day care for the chronic disabled, and transport so that they can go home to be with the family at night.

Lady Goulding, now chairman and managing director of the center, said the clinic began in a small apartment in central Dublin, growing out of the vast number of persons left handicapped in the series of polio epidemics that swept Ireland in the 1940s and '50s.

TODAY, IT'S grown into an ultramodern plan at Clontarf on the northern outskirts of Dublin, capable of treating 500 patients, many of whom come from the United States and some Western European countries.

What To Do, What To Do

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

"What was so weird and frightening was I knew a strange man was in my bedroom and what he was there for —even before I opened my eyes. It was like my mind had tuned me into what was happening while I was still asleep." Nan's dark eyes were still wide with disbelief.

"When you live in this neighborhood — high crime rate area number one — you are always hearing about this happening, and it's no big thing when it happens to someone else. But, when it's you. . .

"Anyway, I thought about screaming, but I didn't want to wake up the children. I knew that would only make a bad situation worse; frightened and screaming children mixed in with this wild-looking nut who stood over my bed. He placed a hunting knife on the bedside table and said quietly, 'Don't make me use it. I know what I'm going to do —what I will do. You don't.'

"That's for sure," I'm thinking. My mind grasped for one of those great self-protection tactics that women who stay alone are always talking about. But, it was obvious I was no physical match for him.

"TALK, I thought, maybe I can talk him out of it. My mouth was dry and no words came. No big thing, from the get-go, he didn't come for conversation," said Nan, displaying her down-to-earth sense of humor.

"Even though I was frightened out of my mind, for a moment I became very angry and indignant. I wanted to fight back — to hurt him in some way. My mind screamed at him sarcastically: What kind of a man are you to force yourself on a woman? Don't you have enough on the ball to attract and have your own woman on an honest and voluntary basis? Not only that, you're lousy in bed! That was my mind screaming, understand. Outwardly, I said nothing.

"When he left, I called the police and they discovered he had broken the lock on the back door. I didn't appreciate their line of questioning either. They insinuated I invited that psycho into my house.

"I've been told that this happens to women all over the city — not only in this neighborhood. So, I guess moving is not the answer. Anyway, I can't afford it. I don't think there is a 'safe' place.

"I'm still not sure what I should have done. A gun? Someone (probably me) would have been killed. After locking the doors and windows, what more can you do?"

PROBABLY ALL women have asked themselves how they would handle such a situation if they were faced with it. Their responses reside at either extreme of the spectrum:

"I'd fight like a tiger. He'd have to kill me. I'm not givin' up nothin' for nothin'!"

"I'd say help yourself! I'm not about to die over that!"

Even though the rapist is ever present in the inner city (and the outer city, too), there are some basic precautions women should take. Locks on doors and windows are elementary. Draw your window shades so you cannot be observed from the street. Keep doorways and driveways lighted. Keep shrubs and bushes trimmed so they do not provide cover for a wandering nut. Try not to travel alone at night. Have your key ready so as to expedite your entrance into your apartment or house.

THE BIGGEST consideration still appears to be how a woman carries herself in public. According to a convicted rapist: "Most women I approached were asking for it by the way they dressed, walked or acted in a public place. I'd just follow them home. Not only that, most women don't really complain much."

Well, in that respect, times have changed. Women are complaining — to the tune of setting aside public opinion and ridicule and identifying and testifying — in court.

More Space For Display By Women

After meeting with the Women's Coalition, a group of Bay Area women artists and feminist groups, the University Art Museum of Berkeley agreed to give more space to work by women artists.

The museum will take part in a celebration of women artists this summer and to make gallery space more available to women's work.

The museum staff said it was interested in exhibiting the works of women artists of the past as well as contemporary work by women artists.

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

I went shopping. When I came out of the store my newly painted car had a big dent in the fender. Some 'stinker had backed into it on the parking lot and didn't have the decency to leave a note giving his name and address.

This happens to a lot of people — it's already been done to me twice! I have $100-deductible insurance, so the deep scratches and dent will just stay there: a student can't put out that kind of money.

Most insurance policies pay for the damage a driver does to another car. So why do people feel they have to hit and run? — HIT AND MAD

DEAR H AND M:

... Because of these hard facts: insurance companies may cancel or raise the premiums if the insured proves himself "accident-prone."

It's a low-down dirty trick — this type of hit and run. But I'm stumped for suggestions on how to stop it. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Excuse this stationery. I've been banned from the rest of the house so must use what's available in my den.

My problem is my two spoiled daughters, aged 15 and 12, and a wife who thinks she is supposed to be their "pal." She has raised them by the psychology books. When I felt they needed a spanking, I was told to paddle a pillow instead. You know — the old "relieve your frustrations" bit, then be sweet and gentle, letting them get away with everything — and I mean EVERYTHING!

I grounded our daughters for two weeks for hitchhiking, and my wife was furious. Naturally they were back thumbing immediately. I point out the dangers of an accident, rape, possible murder if you meet a maniac, but my wife says I don't understand — this is the new way to meet people. I only understand they're incorrigible.

Last week my two brats were picked up by a state trooper and I had to get them at the barracks. Once home, I said to hell with the pillow! They got the spankings they deserved. My wife went hysterical and called the police — who ruled in my favor. Which is why I'm in the dog house.

She refuses to cook for or speak to me until I apologize and raise the girls' allowances. Was I wrong in spanking them? What do others think? — UNSURE SPANKER

DEAR U.S.:

Let's say your spankings weren't wrong — just misguided. First you paddled a pillow, then your two daughters —when the person who really deserves a big fat forceful put-down is: your wife!

These girls will continue incorrigible until your house is no longer divided against itself. I hope it doesn't take a tragic hitchhiking incident to effect that change! — H.

P.S. Discipline only helps when both mother and father agree on the need. Then it can do wonders. Read on:

DEAR HELEN:

We have always been a close-knit, warm family. Our children are by no means angels but my husband and I agreed on loving discipline, and could reason with them. Neither of us believes in corporal punishment. Thaty's why we're feeling so guilty.

Last year our 10-year-old son's behavior gradually changed from good to bad to intolerable. He complained, lied, was abusive to us and his grandparents, and became stubbornly disobedient. All our patience only made him worse.

Things came to a head about six weeks ago. He hit the roof because I gave him a sandwich for lunch instead of a pizza. I explained I couldn't get to the store, but would have his pizza ready for him the next day. He shoved his plate across the table, spilling his milk, then swore at me.

That was the end! All my kind patience went up in smoke, and I spanked him so hard he hollered. I must admit it DIDN'T hurt me more than it hurt him.

Literally overnight, our boy's behavior changed from hateful to happy. He's cheerful and loving once again — even the teachers remark on his transformation.

Only once since has he been fresh with me, and all I did was reach for the ruler. He smiled, apologized, and that was that. My husband smiled, too.

Helen, psychologists say spankings are wrong, thus I'm ashamed that I had to lose my temper to effect discipline. But when this punishment evidently worked miracles, could I be such a — BRUTE?

DEAR BRUTE:

Of course you're not a brute! Somewhere along the line, your son confused patience with "not caring." The kinder you were, the more he tried to test your love.

That ruler episode proved he had parents, not a couple of push-over caretakers he could manipulate because they weren't really concerned about him.

He asked for a showdown. Luckily he got it. I doubt he'll need another. — H.

COUTURE BARGAINS

By DIANA LOERCHER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — You don't have to go to the basement to find bargains, as Ohrbach's proves with stunning force year after year at its semiannual European couture fashions shows.

You also don't have to be poor to want bargains, as illustrated by this spring's roster of prominent women, who united on the store's sixth floor with the common goal of getting something, if not for nothing, at least for considerably less.

Among those in attendance were wives of United Nations ambassadors and celebrities Helen Hayes, Hermione Gingold, Dina Merrill, Diana Sands, Celeste Holm, Alexis Smith and Anita Loos.

Major purchasers from this season's line of nearly 50 items included Mrs. David Bruce, Mrs. Joseph Alsop, Mrs. William Paley, Doris Duke, Mrs. Melpo Niarchos, Mrs. Ed Sullivan, and Mrs. Joseph E. Levine.

While other New York stores make line-for-line copies of couture originals, Ohrbach's is the only one that uses the original fabrics, a policy it has followed for more than 20 years.

EVERY YEAR buyers from Ohrbach's hustle over to Europe to buy at the going price one of each item they would like to copy and its fabric. The average purchase price for originals this year was $3,200 per garment.

The clothes are then shipped to the United States and enter "in bond," or duty free, because Ohrbach's uses them only as models, sending them back to Europe once the design has been copied.

The clothes are reproduced by American manufacturers with sizes modified to fit American women. The reduction in prices is nothing short of drastic, ranging from $75 to $300 for copies of originals that sell up to $5,000.

It is little wonder that the store's advantages have gained it such popularity and made it something of an arbiter of taste in the foreign fashion sweepstakes.

The coveted honors this year went to Saint-Laurent, Givenchy, Ricci, Chanel, Venet, and Monsieur X (for Dior), all from Paris, and Valentino, Fabiani, Lancetti, and Tiziani from Rome.

IN THE SHOW two look-alike models glide down parallel runways, one wearing an original and the other an imperceptibly different copy. Leading the race in sheer numbers was Valentino with 11, followed by Monsieur X, Givenchy, and Saint-Laurent with about eight apiece.

One of the biggest sellers was a dashing navy cashmere wrap coat by Ricci — loose, lush, and full enough for Mata Hari to hide in. Saint-Laurent still brings 'em back alive with his safari styles.

So far a green linen three-piece belted suit is this season's favorite from his line. Oddly enough, he has paired the mannish, no nonsense cut of these suits with four-inch stacked heels on which the models tottered precariously down the runway.

Other winners were Givenchy's multistripe wool and nylon stretch gabardine coat and his navy jersey peekaboo back dress that are astonishing in their demure banality and reflect the new penchant for "pretty" clothing. All Valentino's "toppers," most in cashmere with dolman sleeves for both day and evening, topped purchase lists, and his softly alluring evening dresses in incongruous combinations of black, white, and pink sent the ladies scrambling for their charge plates.

Also on hand were immutably wearable Chanel suits, and a sprinkling of prints, the star of which was Monsieur X's pansy floral silk crepe de chine that splashed color on a fashion canvas of predominantly white, white, white.

Charmingly enough, the highlight of the show was not a design or a designer but an impromptu performance by Miss Hayes. Arriving late and dutifully taking cognizance of the fact that her assigned seat was on the other side of the runway, she gamely vaulted aboard, did a little turn for the applauding audience, and like a real trouper, landed in the right place without missing a step.

'Need Was There' For Ireland Remedial Clinic

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The need was there...just crying out," says Lady Valerie Goulding of Dublin, Ireland.

Similar words must have been said, similar thoughts thought by every person who ever worked as a volunteer.

Valerie Goulding, a lively brown-eyed woman, has spent 21 years fulltime volunteering in the rehabilitation field, helping back to activity (although often limited activity) the young, the middle-aged, the elderly who otherwise might never fit into society.

A TRAINER physiotherapist, she is co-founder with Kathleen O'Rourke, also a physiotherapist, of Ireland's Central Remedial Clinic. She said it is unusual among clinics because it takes all ages from five weeks to 85 years.

The clinic provides full medical rehabilitation facilities including speech therapy and hydrotherapy, education services, employment, day care for the chronic disabled, and transport so that they can go home to be with the family at night.

Lady Goulding, now chairman and managing director of the center, said the clinic began in a small apartment in central Dublin, growing out of the vast number of persons left handicapped in the series of polio epidemics that swept Ireland in the 1940s and '50s.

TODAY, IT'S grown into an ultramodern plan at Clontarf on the northern outskirts of Dublin, capable of treating 500 patients, many of whom come from the United States and some Western European countries.

What To Do, What To Do

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

"What was so weird and frightening was I knew a strange man was in my bedroom and what he was there for —even before I opened my eyes. It was like my mind had tuned me into what was happening while I was still asleep." Nan's dark eyes were still wide with disbelief.

"When you live in this neighborhood — high crime rate area number one — you are always hearing about this happening, and it's no big thing when it happens to someone else. But, when it's you. . .

"Anyway, I thought about screaming, but I didn't want to wake up the children. I knew that would only make a bad situation worse; frightened and screaming children mixed in with this wild-looking nut who stood over my bed. He placed a hunting knife on the bedside table and said quietly, 'Don't make me use it. I know what I'm going to do —what I will do. You don't.'

"That's for sure," I'm thinking. My mind grasped for one of those great self-protection tactics that women who stay alone are always talking about. But, it was obvious I was no physical match for him.

"TALK, I thought, maybe I can talk him out of it. My mouth was dry and no words came. No big thing, from the get-go, he didn't come for conversation," said Nan, displaying her down-to-earth sense of humor.

"Even though I was frightened out of my mind, for a moment I became very angry and indignant. I wanted to fight back — to hurt him in some way. My mind screamed at him sarcastically: What kind of a man are you to force yourself on a woman? Don't you have enough on the ball to attract and have your own woman on an honest and voluntary basis? Not only that, you're lousy in bed! That was my mind screaming, understand. Outwardly, I said nothing.

"When he left, I called the police and they discovered he had broken the lock on the back door. I didn't appreciate their line of questioning either. They insinuated I invited that psycho into my house.

"I've been told that this happens to women all over the city — not only in this neighborhood. So, I guess moving is not the answer. Anyway, I can't afford it. I don't think there is a 'safe' place.

"I'm still not sure what I should have done. A gun? Someone (probably me) would have been killed. After locking the doors and windows, what more can you do?"

PROBABLY ALL women have asked themselves how they would handle such a situation if they were faced with it. Their responses reside at either extreme of the spectrum:

"I'd fight like a tiger. He'd have to kill me. I'm not givin' up nothin' for nothin'!"

"I'd say help yourself! I'm not about to die over that!"

Even though the rapist is ever present in the inner city (and the outer city, too), there are some basic precautions women should take. Locks on doors and windows are elementary. Draw your window shades so you cannot be observed from the street. Keep doorways and driveways lighted. Keep shrubs and bushes trimmed so they do not provide cover for a wandering nut. Try not to travel alone at night. Have your key ready so as to expedite your entrance into your apartment or house.

THE BIGGEST consideration still appears to be how a woman carries herself in public. According to a convicted rapist: "Most women I approached were asking for it by the way they dressed, walked or acted in a public place. I'd just follow them home. Not only that, most women don't really complain much."

Well, in that respect, times have changed. Women are complaining — to the tune of setting aside public opinion and ridicule and identifying and testifying — in court.

More Space For Display By Women

After meeting with the Women's Coalition, a group of Bay Area women artists and feminist groups, the University Art Museum of Berkeley agreed to give more space to work by women artists.

The museum will take part in a celebration of women artists this summer and to make gallery space more available to women's work.

The museum staff said it was interested in exhibiting the works of women artists of the past as well as contemporary work by women artists.

All roads north to Luang Prabang, Laos, were cut by the Communists, so I reached the royal capital by flying in with a cargo of rice. With a population of 30,000, the mountainous town is closer to the borders of Communist China and North Vietnam than to Vientiane, Laos's administrative capital 130 miles to the south.

Although surrounded by war, Luang Prabang has remained free of bombings, mostly due to the presence of King Savang Vatthana, who has refused to leave. But from an airfield not far from the center of town there are reminders of war as planes come and go, carrying loads of rice and rockets.

Harrisburg 7 Demonstrate

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)— Three members of the Harrisburg Seven held a peaceful demonstration in front of a bomb casing plant Thursday less than 24 hours after their conspiracy trial ended with a deadlocked jury.

"We will continue our anti-war work," Eqbal Ahmad, a Pakistani intellectual, said. "We have not been frightened by the government."

Ahmad, two other defendants —the Revs. Joseph Wenderoth and Neil McLaughlin — and about 40 other antiwar protesters held the demonstration Thursday in front of the American Machine & Foundry plant at nearby York, Pa. The plant produces casings for bombs used in Vietnam.

U.S., Canada Talk Stalls

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Canadians were disturbed to hear President Nixon say — in reference to Canada at a news conference — that it sometimes seemed harder for the United States to negotiate trade problems with its close friends than with its distant adversaries.

Americans, it is supposed here, were equally surprised to hear Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau say that Canada needs no foreign enemies when it has friends like U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr.

These simultaneous complaints across the border provided a strange overture to Nixon's arrival in Ottawa, on April 13, as Trudeau's guest. But the practical Canadian politics behind them were clear enough.

As explained on television by Jean-Luc Pepin, minister of trade, the Canadian government entered negotiations with the United States, more than a year ago, on relatively minor commercial "irritants."

Then, to Canada's amazement, the Nixon administration lowered the currency and tariff boom on Aug. 15 last year and insisted on negotiating disputes of major substance, including the controversial automotive pact.

Canada's reply was to offer a package of trade concessions which has never been publicly disclosed and which the United States has rejected as quite inadequate.

Since neither country has changed its basic attitude, Pepin said, negotiations between the world's two largest trade partners are at a standstill, though friendly official contacts continue.

Asked how and when real negotiations can be resumed, Mr. Pepin declined to make any forecast but added that the argument would remain "difficult."

He flatly denied, however, the report that American customs officials are "harassing" imports from Canada or breaking the present tariff contracts in any way.

Latest figures, he said, showed that in the first two months of this year Canada's sales in the U.S. had risen by 22 per cent while the flow of American goods northward increased by 26 per cent.

The background of tha stalemate may not be understood by Americans but is obvious to Canadians.

Facing an uncertain election next summer or autumn, the Trudeau government knows that it will be decided mainly in Ontario, the largest province, Quebec being considered safe Liberal territory.

Since Ontario is the center of the nation's manufacturing industries, the government cannot risk the charge that it is planning excessive tariff concessions to the United States.

This is particularly true of the automotive pact which has provided large scale employment for Ontario workers. Cancellation of the Canadian tariff on American cars privately imported, as demanded by Washington, would threaten a huge payroll, the government thinks, and perhaps cause the removal of some factories to the United States.

Apart from economic factors, such a concession in the stalled trade bargaining would be so dangerous politically before an election that the government has refused to consider it.

While the election date has not been announced, the government is campaigning vigorously as if it planned a poll before midsummer. The prime minister has been touring the more dubious Ontario constituencies where his comment on Connally was uttered, either in a moment of impatience or by calculated indiscretion.

After these curious preliminaries, it is not expected that the President and the prime minister will achieve any breakthrough in the trade deadlock at their conference.

Bond Pleads For Busing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)— Georgia state legislator Julian Bond says he was bused as a school child and no one complained about it then because the bus was going to a 100 per cent black school.

"Separate but equal never existed in this country and I don't believe it ever will," Bond said in a speech supporting busing at Ohio State University.

"Education in this country is not a function of how much money is poured into the system from the top, but it is a function of how much money is in the pockets of the parents of the children," he said.

COMIC OPERA — Larkspur's Tommie Sue Anderson feigns tears in the role of Vespetta to get a marriage proposal from Pimpinone, played by Richard Goodman of Berkeley, in the comic opera "Pimpinone." It will be presented along with another comic opera by Rossini at Sonoma State College April 12-16.

State College Plans Two Comic Operas

Two 18th Century comic operas, Rossini's "The Occasion Makes the Thief" or "The Mixed-Up Baggage" and Telemann's "Pimpinone," will be presented by the Sonoma State College Opera Workshop April 12-16.

Student matinee performances for the Rossini opera will be April 11 and 12 at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. and April 14 at 11 a.m. Both operas will be performed April 14 and 15 at 8 p.m. and April 16 at 2 p.m.

The Rossini opera features duets, trios and arias and has been compared to the work of Gilbert and Sullivan. "Pimpinone" premiered in 1725 and is the story of Vespetta, a conniving girl who finds employment with Pimpinone, a rich bachelor. She talks him into marriage and proceeds to make his life miserable.

The role of Vespetta will be sung by Tommie Sue Anderson of Larkspur and Pimpinone will be played by Richard Goodman, an engineering professor at University of California at Berkeley.

Among those appearing in the Rossini opera will be Rosemary Bock of Mill Valley, Bonnie Landfield of Ross, Marguerite Winkler of Larkspur and Robert Cullinen of Cotati.

Reservations must be made in advance by calling the Office of Instructional Services and Continuing Education at the college.

4-H Council Sets Barbecue

The Marin 4-H Council will have its annual fund raising chicken barbecue Sunday at the Novato Horsemen's Arena, Bugeia Lane, Novato.

In conjunction with the barbecue the council will present a horse show starting at 8:30 a.m. and a bazaar featuring booths by 4-H clubs from Marin.

Barbecued chicken will be served starting at 11 a.m., according to Stanley R. Frederick, committee chairman.

Proceeds from the barbecue go to 4-H Club activities during the year including training at a state leadership conference.

Classical Piano Sunday In Fairfax

FAMILY

"Bedknobs and Broomsticks" — An apprentice witch takes in three children during the 1940 blitz-krieg in England and together they search for the missing half of a spell which will help end the war. A delightful blend of action and animation song and dance, a fun film for everyone.

"LeMans" — This film will be of interest to those who are car racing fans. The annual 24 hours of the LeMans races in France are recreated with a trite story interwoven.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" — A legendary pair of bank robbers that never shot anyone and steal only from those that can afford it are forced to flee to Bolivia where they continue their trade till recognized. Very violent ending.

"Gunfight" — Interesting western drama about a retired gunman who arrives in a small town where another legendary gunman is living peaceably. The two men like each other immediately but are forced by townspeople into a confrontation. Audience is given a choice of endings.

"Hot Rock" — Set in Brooklyn, the hilarious experiences of four accident-prone thieves who steal a fabulous diamond from a museum provides many laughs.

"House That Dripped Blood" — A quartet of horror tales about a house that is inhabited by various tenants, each falls prey to a bloody supernatural fate. Skillful acting creates a thoroughly chilling mood.

"Mary, Queen of Scots" — A delightful way to learn history. The struggle between Mary Stuart and Queen Elizabeth who are cousins, when surrounded by corrupt men, plot to occupy the throne of England. Acting is exceptional.

"Omega Man" — The Omega man is supposed to be the last man to survive a world bacteriological war (1975), but a group of ghoulish psychotics outwit and thus outlive him.

"Reivers" — A bawdy nostalgic film based on a Faulkner novel about a week-end in a 12-year-old boy's life in 1905. The hired hand borrows the family car and introduces the boy to facts of life he was unaware of before. Scenes in brothel make it unsuitable for younger children.

"Snow Job" — Spectacular skiing sequences would have made a breathtaking documentary. Trite unethical story is about a trio of ski bums who pull off a robbery. Strong language.

"Tales From the Crypt" — A crypt keeper foretells the future to five people who have been lost in the catacombs while on a tour. Good cast makes horror stories highly engrossing shocker. (Box-office Magazine)

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only)

"French Connection" — An exciting suspense thriller about two relentless narcotics detectives trying to crack an international heroin smuggling ring. Much violence.

"Vanishing Point" — An ex-race driver in doing his "thing" decides to drive from Denver to San Francisco in 15 hours regardless of what stands in his path. A good deal of sex, nudity, violence and cursing.

ADULTS ONLY

"Baby Maker" —A happily married couple unable to have children hire a beautiful hippie to bear the husband's baby for them. Film treats entire sex subject very frankly.

"Boys In The Band" — Eight homosexuals hold a party in a New York apartment. They play a "truth game" which reveals the anguish and self loathing they feel. Exceedingly frank sex talk.

"Dirty Harry" — Police thriller is an exercise in violence. A case against the pampering of criminals and justification of sadistic illegal police techniques. Tension is excruciating and violence is shocking.

"Godfather" — A handsome production that meticulously recreates New York in the 1940s. The gradual surrender of family affairs by the aging and unwell Italian gangster running one of the five Eastern units of the Mafia, to his sons and heirs. They have been well schooled in gang warfare as well as absolute loyalty among members of the clan. (Motion Picture Daily).

"The Hospital" — An aging doctor who postpones his suicide in order to investigate the mysterious deaths of two interns and a nurse. Scathing episodes are sometimes humorously presented. Strong language, sex, excellent cast.

"I Want What I Want" — This film explores the emotional conflict of a boy who finally decides to undergo a sex change operation.

"Stepmother" — Sex melodrama about an architect who kills his client during an argument. In concealing the crime other murders are committed.

Alibi Witness Bill Advances

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Senate has passed and sent to the Assembly a controversial bill allowing a district attorney to demand and receive in advance the names of witnesses who would provide an alibi for a defendant in a criminal trial.

The measure cleared the Senate Tuesday on a 25-8 vote. Similar legislation was passed by the Senate last year and killed in the Assembly.

The author, Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, said that by requiring the defense to supply the names of "alibi" witnesses 10 days in advance of the trial would enable the prosecutor to investigate them and challenge possible "fabricated testimony."

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

La Petite Auberge Marks Up 13th Anniversary On Happy Note

To my knowledge, no one ever makes much ado about a 13th anniversary, but it can hardly be ignored the way they leave out the 13th floor in a tall building.

However, the anniversary itself marks the transition into the 14th year - and there you're safe. La Petite Auberge in San Rafael is making that transition this week. All superstitions to the contrary, its 13th year was as good or maybe even better than those which preceded it. If there was ever a truism that applied to this restaurant, it's "The proof of the pudding is in the eating."

La Petite has always been a kind of measuring stick for some restaurant owners in the county, who have used it to judge their own accomplishments or whether current business is up or down. Just how they are able to arrive at that latter decision I am not sure. The Fourth Street restaurant's tables always seem well occupied to me. You'd probably have to total the night's receipts to tell the difference.

Paul Devaux was the original owner. He came in when the building was generally described as "a pile of crazy mixed up bricks." Roger Poli joined him about a year later and Pierre Grigaut a year after that.

Together they moved this and added that and suddenly you realized the place was quite attractive. And somehow they managed to gain half as much more space without appreciably changing the outward appearance, which is deceptive.

Inside, probably the best appraisal is that it's a "happy place." People seem to enjoy themselves thoroughly here, what with good food, good wine and music from Ken Judnick's accordion.

Paul, Roger and Pierre aren't making any changes at La Petite these days. They don't need to. They have a good thing going.

A NEW DINING HOUSE which promises to be one of the county's showplace food establishments will open this month.

Skip Sommer of Sommer and Ryan Enterprises hopes to have the Lark Creek Inn at Larkspur ready for private parties by next weekend and for the general public a week later. Give or take a few days, the schedule should be close to that. Although considerable finish-up work remains to be done, furnishings have already been purchased and are ready to move in.

Representing an investment of something like $250,000, the Lark Creek Inn is the result of many months of remodeling the home of the late Hil Probert, whose automotive showrooms on Magnolia Avenue have already been converted into a decorative little shopping complex by Sommer and Ryan. The restuarant adjoins the complex, occupying that beautifully wooded section of the property between the shops and Williams Avenue.

A large parking area in the rear of the shops will accommodate 60 cars and can be enlarged if the need arises. There will be two entrances, one for northbound traffic and the other for those who are southbound on Magnolia Avenue.

Sommer and Ryan started out with the large Victorian Probert house and the entire theme of their remodeling has been to develop its natural advantages. Many of the original Probert appointments were retained and others compatible with them have been added. A number of them are true collectors' items, from lighting fixtures to overhead fans and 19th century furnishings.

The only completely modern touch is in the kitchen, which glistens with stainless steel and up-to-date equipment.

The dining room is topped by a huge glass-domed roof. Ad adjoining cocktail lounge of ample proportions features a large bar of a bygone period which probably made its first appearance in California in a windjammer after a stormy journey around Cape Horn. Upstairs there are three small private dining rooms. A flat area outside, bordered by a creek which has its source somewhere up the Larkspur canyon, will have tables under the large redwoods and bay trees.

The inn will be open for lunches and dinners (closed Mondays). Dinners will feature a limited menu of prime ribs, steaks and specialty casseroles. Skip plans to supervise the cuisine himself and he has had the experience to do it.

MAYFLOWER INN at 1533 Fourth Street, San Rafael, has added some extra hours and is now open for lunch between 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Previously it open at 4 p.m.

Featured is a very English "Plowman's Lunch," which includes a large slice of ham, pickled onion, cole slaw, two cheeses (Cheshire and Monterey Jack) and roll, served on a wooden platter - all for $1.45.

Another Mayflower lunch favorite is the daily special - homemade soup du jour and a sandwich (ham, cheese, tuna or egg salad) on a soft French roll for 99 cents.

LE CHALET BASQUE in Santa Venetia has been singled out by a gourmet magazine for one of its recipes. It appears that someone at this publication heard about the restaurant's chicken cordon bleu and has requested the secret.

We'll tell you the name of the magazine when the recipe is published.

Marin Dining And Wining

NEW OWNER Anthony Cirelli has already taken over the operation of the Villa Rafael Motel in San Rafael and was expected to occupy the restaurant and bar by today. Look for a possible temporary closing until a few changes are made.

Former owner Ed Hannagan and his wife are moving to Mendocino County where they have purchased Freddie's, a bar on Highway 1, about a mile south of the Noyo River Bridge near Fort Bragg - another pair of Marinites to take to the north coast. You remember, of course, that former Corte Madera restaurateur Gregory Seubert now runs Noyo River Inn on South Harbor Drive.

Ed and his wife will occupy Freddie's in about a month. The name will be changed to Ed and Marge Hannagan's. They're not serving any lunches or dinners, but if you get thirsty when you're up that way you might drop by and then move in on Gregory for food. Noyo River Inn has become real popular with Fort Bragg folks and with out of towners, including many from Marin.

CAFE AMBROSIA in San Anselmo is now open for dinners on Monday nights, serving the same menu as it does Wednesdays through Sundays. It's still closed on Tuesdays.

THE SERVING of prime rib at The Galley in San Rafael on Easter Sunday went over so well it has been decided to make a regular thing of this every Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

OUT AT RANCHO NICASIO, drummer Johnny Vindigni, who has been playing with The Buddies Friday and Saturday nights for the past five years, has decided to leave the group.

But Sam Franco and Don Wollery (playing accordion and sax respectively) have brought in Lou (Pappy) Vann to replace him. We are sorry to see Johnny go but pleased to learn of such a fine replacement.

Women's League Sponsoring Forum

A forum on sewage disposal and water resources, sponsored by the Southern and Central Marin Leagues of Women Voters, will be held Wednesday from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Strawberry Recreation Center.

Eugene Huggins of the Corps of Engineers will be opening speaker.

Clifford Hits Reagan, Aide

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The president of the San Francisco Bar Association Tuesday criticized Gov. Ronald Reagan and Attorney General Evelle Younger for taking swipes at the state Supreme Court for overturning the death penalty.

Charles H. Clifford, speaking for the association's Board of Directors, called their statements about the court decision "intemperate."

Their charges, Clifford added, "reflect a fundamental misconception or disregard of the responsibility of the judicial branch which the Supreme Court carried out in deciding the capital punishment issue."

Year In Jail For Heroin Sale

Gilbert M. Hennen, 37, of Sausalito, has been sentenced to a year in Marin County Jail and a suspended term in state prison for selling and possessing heroin.

He also was placed on four years' probation in Marin Superior Court.

The parolee from the Calfiornia Rehabilitation Center was found guilty in February of selling $30 worth of heroin to a state agent last October. More heroin was found in his boat when he was arrested there later.

Another man, John R. Gallagher, has been placed on probation for two years and sent to jail for 45 days for his involvement in the sale. He had pleaded guilty to the felonious sale.

Hearing Set

A preliminary hearing for Thomas Edward Umberger, 52, of Santa Venetia has been set for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court. He has been charged with committing unnatural sex acts with a young girl and has pleaded innocent.

IF CROW SWOOPS IN PLEASE CALL

Jazbo, who might surprise someone by swooping in for a landing on his head, has been missing since Sunday, Higbee said.

"She is very responsive to a gloved hand with wiggly fingers," he said.

He asked that anyone who has seen or heard of Jazbo notify him at 1442 South Novato Boulevard.

Bay Agency Is Against South Span

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Bay Conservation and Development Commission yesterday voted in opposition to the proposed Southern Crossing of the Bay.

The commission voted 16-4 with one abstention Thursday to recommend defeat of Measure A, which will be on the June 6 primary ballot in Bay Area counties.

The measure would permit the state Division of Toll Bridge Crossings to build the new bridge without further legislative approval. Defeat would force the engineers to get legislative backing for the unusual Y-shaped bridge between Hunters Point and both Bay Farm Island and San Leandro.

The BCDC had supported the bridge two years ago on grounds that it was outside its jurisdiction to oppose it.

It reversed its position Thursday after hearing conservationists argue that the bridge would generate increased traffic and smog, hurt land values at each end spoil boating and the quality of the bay.

Proponents said that the bridge would not hurt the Bay Area Rapid Transit by more than 10 per cent and would relieve Bay Bridge congestion.

Price Board Criticized At Hearing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Federal Price Commission came under a barrage of criticism from a parade of witnesses Thursday at a public hearing.

"We will have our answer in November," he said.

Edmund J. Flynn, president of the Pacific Maritime Association, warned that stevedoring firms would go out of business unless they can raise prices to meet increased labor costs.

Jane Lundin, representing the Consumers Cooperative of Berkeley, said that if food prices are to be controlled at the retail level, the commission "is going to have to control the costs that contribute to the retail price at every stage of food processing from the farmer up."

Walter E. Hoadley, executive vice president of the Bank of America, said that public support for controls is wavering as it becomes clear that "in and of themselves they cannot cure inflation."

"We do not believe that wage, price and other controls should become a permanent part of the U. S. economic system, because they will reduce our national well-being," he said.

Richard H. Holton, dean of the University of California School of Business and a former assistant commerce secretary, told the commission it was discriminating against manufacturers to the benefit of wholesalers and retailers.

Cultural Arts Budgets $3,000

The Rohnert Park Cultural Arts Commission last night adopted a proposed budget of $3,000 for 1972-73.

The request, an increase of $500 over the $2,500 received this year, will be sent to the city council for consideration. In approving the budget, the commission rejected the request of the Rohnert Park Ballet Guild for an outlay of $1,000. The commission said the request was too high since only 21 children are involved.

In other action, the commission elected Dorothy Schmidt as its new chairman and Jerry Snyder as vice chairman.

North Marin Water District Reveals Employees And Incomes

In 1970 and last year, the Independent-Journal published the payrolls of all but one local agency in Marin as a means of taxpayer comparison of public employee salaries.

Officials of the North Marin County Water District withheld that agency's salary list on grounds of invasion of privacy. The Independent-Journal filed suit to btain the payroll, and the state Court of Appeal yesterday upheld a lower court ruling that the district must make the list available.

District officials now have made the agency's payroll available to the public. The employees and their salaries follow·

The Decatur Experiment— One-Shot Recycling Fails

By MONTY HOYT

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Result: recycling refuse — citywide.

Decatur, Ill. (pop: 91,000), set out to discover whether it was feasible to collect three basic household items of refuse on a citywide basis, then recycle them.

"Operation Recycle" did bridge the generation gap. It won support from conscientious kindergarteners and enthusiastic senior citizens alike; collections trucks rumbled through test neighborhoods.

But when it was all over, only 15 per cent of people in the test areas took part, despite the publicity campaign. The biggest deterrent was that Decatur people are already accustomed to having their garbage picked up twice a week by the city's private garbage company — without the effort of sorting and separating beforehand.

The test indicated that here, at least, a one-shot effort does not pay off economically: Despite volunteer workers, operating costs are expected to total some $1,500.

Environmental Protection Agency officials in Washington, asked for comment, said they were skeptical that enough people anywhere would voluntarily sort and separate cans and bottles to make such total recycling economically feasible

However, they said newspapers alone were being recycled profitably in several cities including Madison, Wis., and Cincinnati.

The EPA was also working on several demonstration projects which separate waste by machines. One drawback: the machines are expensive.

The real impetus for the Decatur project came about when the city received a $2.1 million federal grant last October under an emergency employment measure to hire unemployed workers.

"Among many other things, this grant gave us the opportunity to put people to work conducting a major recycling experiment. No city has ever tried door-to-door collection before," said Glenn F. Spachman, project coordinator and assistant to the city manager. He sees the biggest deterrent to recycling as having to depend upon the public to bring articles to a central collection point.

Costs could be brought down with certain modifications, Decatur promoters say.

"We purposely developed a method that was labor intensive because we wanted to create jobs," Spachman said.

Those who participated optimistically expressed hopes that recycling would be continued on a permanent basis and serve as a model for other cities.

Those who did not take part joined EPA's skepticism by maintaining it was too much trouble to clean out jars and cans and to store them.

"We think it's a fine idea," enthused one retired couple. "We can cut and flatten cans now and recycle them just like we did in the war."

Outside their attractive ranch house in a well-to-do section of town stood a dozen large bundles of newspapers neatly tied and ready for pickup. "We'll be able to put our car in the garage for the first time in months."

A recycle poster, one of many produced by school children in a contest publicizing the project and prominantly displayed in local business, showed the red handprints of one of Decatur's kindergarten classes and wistfully asked: "Our hands are helping to save glass, cans and newspapers. Are yours?"

A first grade class marched into the city council chambers to recite a specially prepared proclamation, "whereas recycling is good ..." and helped Mayor James H. Rupp to proclaim March 20-25 as "Operation Recycle Week" in Decatur.

For two weeks before the project, test neighborhoods involving 5,000 families, one-sixth of Decatur's population, received leaflets. Instructions were beamed by the news media: newspapers were to be bundled and put at the curb on the appointed collection day; cans were to be cleaned, labels removed, and flattened when possible; bottles were to be cleaned, assorted by colors, and placed in separate containers.

All last week two collection crews drove through designated neighborhoods — one collected newspapers, the other crew tossed cans into a refuse truck and sorted bottles on the spot into color coded bins in an attached trailer. A few bags of rejected rubbish were left on the curbing with a card explaining why the bundle was not acceptable.

Newspapers were hauled away to a local scrap dealer who paid $12 a ton. The glass was crushed at a central collection point and carted to a glass manufactuere 40 miles away for $20 a ton. Cans were stored for eventual shipment to a steel processor in Chicago for $14 a ton.

At the weekend, residents not involved in the test neighborhoods were given a chance to bring their recyclable trash to a collection depot in the downtown area. There, 125 volunteers worked in three three-hour shifts sorting materials and crushing glass.

Volunteer pickup service was offered to all would-be recyclers who did not have transportation downtown. One senior citizen entered the spirit of the effort by making her delivery in a taxicab.

Nearly 800 vehicles stopped at the recycling center on Saturday. Result: a modest 35½ tons of paper, 17½ tons of glass and 7 tons of cans.

By mid-April a final report and recommendation will be made to the city council whether to continue the effort for seven months on a full citywide basis, Spachman said.

San Anselmo Summer Teen Plan Approved

The San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Commission has approved a plan for a summer teen program and encouraged the city council to fund it with $2,300.

The plan, presented to the commission by Gary Howell, parks and recreation director, calls for a 10-week summer program at the student center of Sir Frances Drake High School.

Howell told the commission that too little money is being spent in San Anselmo for teen activities. He urged that commission members seek full funding of the program at upcoming city council budget hearings.

The commission shelved an offer to the city from Dr. Theodore Althansis to sell 10 acres for $35,000 and donate an adjoining 10 acres of extremely steep open land in the Hawthorne Hills area.

Rohnert Chamber Has First Manager

The Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce has hired its first full-time manager, Daniel Murray, 25, former assistant manager of the Modesto Chamber of Commerce.

Murray is a native of Fresno and has a bachelor's degree in journalism from Fresno State College. He worked in retail sales and service businesses before joining the Modesto Chamber where his duties included public relations, publications and committee work.

SPAN WIDENING JOB IS TRICKY

Construction crewmen used what they said was a new technique today to move in the 150-ton crane they need to help widen the Richardson Bay Bridge on Highway 101. Confronted with mud that "goes down forever," the Massman Construction Co. workers inched the crane along a series of floating pontoons, to where it was needed to lower huge steel caissons into place. The caissons, resting atop pilings earlier driven 70 to 160 feet into the bay mud, will be filled with concrete to support the additional lane on the west side of the span.

A Shakeup Of Smog District Is Sought

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation replacing the Bay Area's appointed smog officials with a directly elected board and calling for an investigation of their past performance, was introduced yesterday by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose.

The legislation was designed to "clear the air of a lack of public confidence" in the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, McAlister said.

"Many citizens are concerned that the district has not vigorously enforced the air pollution laws and regulations against the major industrial air polluters within the district," he said. McAlister's end of the district is known as the "sump of the Bay Area" because prevailing winds blow heavy concentrations of air pollution into the San Jose area.

McAlister's bill would create electoral districts for an 18-member board, the same number as serve on the current board.

Marin and Sonoma counties would be among smaller counties losing much of their disproportionate vote on the board. Each of the nine counties in the district now has two representatives, but in a one-man, one-vote reapportionment under McAlister's bill Marin and Sonoma would end up with half of the four votes they now have on the district board. Each is represented by a city councilman and a supervisor.

Heavily populated counties in the district long have argued that their voice on the district board should be proportionate to the taxes they pay to the district, and a suit challenging the present representation was filed recently in federal court.

Similar legislation was introduced two years ago in Sacramento, but district officials succeeded in having it killed. Parallel legislation making the board of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District directly elected is moving rapidly through the Legislature this year.

Ex-San Rafael Principal's Marriage Ends

The marriage of former San Rafael High School Principal Alan Ellsberg has been dissolved in Marin Superior Court.

His wife, Luella, won dissolution on grounds of irreconcilable differences and won custody of the couple's one minor child, Suzanne, 15. The Ellsbergs had three grown children, Robert, Patrick and Mary.

Ellsberg took over at San Rafael High School in 1966 after heading Emeryville High School, but resigned last year to take a post at the University of Michigan.

Christ Scientist Church Mower Gone

A lawn mower was stolen from the Second Christ Scientist Church at 901 Las Gallinas Avenue in San Rafael between 9 p.m. Wednesday and 4 p.m. Thursday.

According to police, the mower was removed from the garage of the converted residence after entry was made through a broken window.

Solution Seen To Air Noise

Benjamin R. Ostlind, San Rafael aviation enthusiast, expressed the belief yesterday that air corridors over Novato could be altered, alleviating the noise problem.

Speaking before the Novato Chamber of Commerce board, Ostlind said of eight departure routes from Hamilton Air Force Base, "four are right over the middle of Novato."

He said he believed the Federal Aviation Administration would alter the routes if asked.

Ostlind, an advocate of joint civilian-military aviation use at Hamilton, said opposition to commercial use at the base has been based on noise.

Persons opposing commercial use assume commercial planes will be noisier and assume the "same departure routes, and this isn't necessarily true," Ostlind said.

"The amount of noise irritation from civilian planes would be small, and 90 per cent of the poeple in the area will never see or hear the planes," he said.

In an attempt to illustrate his point, Ostlind showed a chart of the "noise corridor" at San Jose Airport overlaid on the Novato area. The corridor was narrower than that shown in an Association of Bay Area Governments study of what the noise problem might be from both civilian and military flights at Hamilton in 1985.

The narrower corridor, with civilian aircraft only, would mean that noise wouldn't be as close to Bel Marin Keys as previously indicated, he said.

A turn in the departure routes would keep planes from flying over the city hall area of Novato, he said.

Grass Sale Case To Higher Court

Donald E. Dilly, 20, of Novato, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of selling marijuana.

Dilly is to appear April 19 to face a charge that he sold $10 worth of marijuana to a narcotics agent Nov. 19.

Petaluma Schools Facing Crisis—Closures Possible

By BONNIE BARD

The Petaluma Board of Education faced the prospect yesterday of closing one or two elementary schools and putting students on double sessions as an economy move.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer told the board that reserve funds have been depleted in the elementary district and that $150,000 must be cut to balance the 1972-73 budget. A tax rate increase election in the district failed on March 21.

Meyer said about $158,000 could be saved by reducing teachers and supplies, but hoped other steps could be taken without harsh effect on students.

Cuts proposed by Meyer called for release of four teachers, reassignment of six teachers to the high school district and cutting district-supported reading and music teachers, leaving those subjects to regular classroom teachers.

Also proposed for reduction were supplies amounting to $30,430 and contracts with Sonoma County for library books and audio-visual equipment.

Meyer said the district also could consider closicg one or two schools to reduce operating expenses. Savings that would result from closing the various schools were given as: Grant, $3,579; McNear, $6,318; Valley Pista, $6,645; McDowell, $11,915; McKinley, $7,177; Penngrove, $6,793, and Cherry Valley, $9,166.

Meyer said another plan would be to close half of some schools and go to double sessions, while still another would be to cut all bus transportation at a saving of $15,000. Meyer said children in the large Penngrove School attendance area would be effected most by the lack of bus service.

Meyer also suggested that if one of the elementary schools is closed, San Antonio Continuation High School could relocate there to save the $6,000-per-year cost for renting a portion of the Sonoma-Marin Fairgrounds.

Meyer said the district — in a desperate move — also could save $4,000 per year by not maintaining lawns and shrubs at schools.

Business Mgr. George W. Castleberry recommended the closing of schools and double sessions as the most efficient means of saving money.

Board member Robert T. Stimson said he would oppose double sessions in fear the quality of education would suffer with a shorter school day.

Meyer said another plan would be calling a new tax rate election for July 25 in the hope voters have had a change of heart and realize that possible educational cuts mentioned before the last election were not idle threats.

Board member Arthur L. Lafranchi said he believed cuts should be made to emphasize the district's plight to voters.

Dr. William K. Kortum, board president, said decisions on cost-cutting and school closings would be made at the board meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. He said the board then would await comment from residents for consideration at a special meeting April 24 to consider another tax rate increase election.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

STORAGE ROOM — Approved construction of an 1,100-square-foot storage room adjacent to the Agricultural Educational Building at Petaluma Senior High School. Meyer said the $4,000 cost of materials would come from federal vocational education act funds and that summer school students in construction would build the addition at no cost. They will, however, receive academic credit.

SOCIAL SECURITY — Agreed to extend Social Security benefits to fulltime teachers who teach at summer school and night school.

ADVISERS — Appointed Louise Ebert to the Penngrove Citizens Advisory Committee and named Williams Evans to a second term on the group.

Ross House Raid Produces Narcotics

County narcotics agents and Ross police last night raided the home of a man suspected of being heroin dealer with a $9,000 a month business and seized more than $400 in narcotics, at least a dozen guns and numerous household articles traded by addicts for drugs.

Agents said they went to 9 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Ross with a search warrant, but had to kick in the doors to gain entry. They found Mark William Goldberg, 23, with a loaded luger.

He was arrested along with his wife, Gayle, also 23, and Robert Donald McClanahan, 30, of Gate 5 Sausalito, who, agents said, was at the home buying drugs.

All three were booked into Marin County Jail for investigation of possessing narcotics for sale, drug paraphernalia, dangerous drugs and marijuana to appear in Marin Municipal Court today. Agents said Goldberg had been dealing about half a pound of heroin a month for which he was paying $4,500. Cut in purity, it sells for twice that much on the streets, according to agents.

However, only $400 worth of heroin and $60 worth of methamphetamine were seized in the raid, agents said.

Much of the loot found in the house, including the weapons, is believed to have been taken in burglaries and traded for heroin, according to agents.

Driver Killed As Cycle Strikes Box On Freeway

A San Rafael man was killed and a passenger on his motorcycle severely injured when the vehicle struck a box on Highway 101 near Highway 17 in San Rafael about 2:30 a.m. today, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Gene R. Stetler, 32, of 4500 Redwood Highway, Apt. 9, was pronounced dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital at 3 a.m. His passenger, Lynn S. Ullner, 20, of 1135 Fourth Street, San Rafael, was still in surgery later this morning, according to a hospital spokesman. She was listed in poor condition.

She suffered a fractured left leg and ankle and right elbow and badly cut hands and face, the spokesman said. Stetler's death was the 11th on Marin roads this year, compared with five at this time last year.

Officers said Stetler was southbound on the freeway when he struck the box and both riders fell. He was an operator at the Richardson Bay Sanitary District and was a native of Pennsylvania.

Oakland Women Booked In Burglary

Two Oakland women were booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of burglary and attempted burglary, according to sheriff's deputies.

Mamie C. Spencer, 25, and Sharon Williams, 20, were arrested in Marin City, deputies said.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

A western college student who attended a pop-music festival wondered why an emergency medical care tent was needed. "There were doctors and nurses on duty, but I never saw them do anything. Young people usually are healthy, and the concerts don't last long enough for anyone to get sick."

Several professional journals have had articles on the need for medical facilities at rock festivals and other gatherings attended by thousands of persons. Not too long ago, I read a British report on a weekend gathering of young people given a total of 24 hours of pop music and all-night entertainment. About 40,000 were expected to attend.

A MARQUEE was set up some distance from the main area to take care of any health problems that might arise. Behind the stage, a first aid center was set up in a small tent. It was staffed by 10 physicians and 36 nonmedical personnel.

According to the report in the British Medical Journal, on the first morning there were only 20 casualties, but by afternoon the number increased. The physicians thought they would be deluged by drug-taking, orgy-making concert-goers. Most of the young men and women were excited, tired and in some cases hungry. In all, there were 493 casualties, but none from violence.

EIGHT WERE treated for drug intoxication and two for drunkenness. There were two cases each of bee stings, dog bites, nasal congestion, diabetes, and allergy. As might be expected, 12 were treated for blistered feet and 70 reported injuries or lacerations. Mre than 100 were given first aid for sunburn, eight for exhaustion and seven for toothache. Oddly, 228 had headaches including migraine. These may have been from hangovers, tension or excitement. Only a few wanted a cold remedy.

The authors had several recommendations relative to water supplies and lavatories. Above all, they wanted heat in the medical tents because it got cold during the night.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent Journal.)

WHITE AND NUMB

A reader writes: Every now and then my husband's toes turn white and lose all feeling. He is 67. Can anything be done for this condition?

REPLY

These symptoms may stem from a circulatory or a nervous disorder. Examination will be needed to find the cause before a remedy can be recommended.

SUBSTITUTE KIDNEY

A reader writes: I have to have one kidney removed. Are plastic kidneys available as substitutes?

REPLY

No, but the remaining kidney will do double duty. The artificial kidney (dialysis) is used for people with uremia who are seriously ill because both kidneys are not functioning. These devices are not put into the body.

BEER AND MILK

Mrs. T. N. writes: Will drinking beer increase the milk production of a nursing mother?

REPLY

I doubt it, even though this belief was common among mothers of a generation ago. The process of nursing (sucking) is the best stimulant.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Defense Made To Flooding

Paul owned a hillside home. One winter the heaviest rains in years fell, washing out the street in front of his house. The house was not damaged — but to get there Paul had to park his car on a street a block away, then walk through a neighbor's backyard.

Paul asked the city council to repair the street. The city did nothing for over a year. Paul then asked payment for loss of access, i.e., loss of his route into and out of the house. The city refused.

Paul sued the city for damages. The city made two defenses: (1) that the flood which washed out the road was an Act of God, and (2) that it did not have money to make repairs.

The court rejected both defenses. It held that a homeowner with property on a public street has a right of entry and exit. It said that the city must either restore the street, or condemn the house and buy the lot. It could not blame the loss on an Act of God.

What if the city changes the level of a street, so that the adjoining land is now five feet above the street, with a high curb which prevents the owner from getting onto the property?

A court ruled that such a change in the level of the street was a "taking" of the adjoining land, and that the city had to pay damages.

However, a property owner does not always have a right to collect damages from he city. One city planned to build a parkway. This required purchase of a number of private homes on the right-of-way. A few persons voluntarily sold their houses to the city. Others did not, and their houses soon became isolated. In the meantime, the parkway could not be built.

The isolated houses were often burglarized. Because

Just Don't Bank On Lampshades

MEDFORD, Mass. (UPI)—A woman may not be so sure now that lampshades are safer than banks.

The woman, who did not want to be identified, said Thursday that she had been stitching her savings into the linings of lampshades since the 1930s.

"I'm not crazy or anything, it just seems to me lampshades are safer than banks," she said.

Last Friday, she said, she forgot which lampshades had the money and she threw out two of them containing a total of $2,500.

Sanitation workers had picked up the rubbish and were leaving the woman's street when she ran up to them and explained the situation.

The workers went to the dump, emptied the contents of their truck and spent half an hour sifting through the junk. They found the lampshades and the money.

Hussein And Sadat Are Like Conductors

By JOHN K. COOLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BEIRUT — King Hussein of Jordan and President Sadat of Egypt are like two rival conductors playing completely different themes on war and peace in the Middle East.

The result is the familiar and almost total discord in Arab ranks.

From Cairo, President Sadat continues to speak of Egypt's "irrevocable" decision to fight Israel eventually to recover occupied Sinai, and to blame the United States for the stalemate in Middle East peace efforts.

Beyond the opposing viewpoint of Amman and Cairo, the Palestinian guerrilla movements are trying to organize political and military resistance to King Hussein's pan, with at least verbal backing from Cairo.

In an interview published April 4 by Beirut's independent newspaper Al-Nahar, King Hussein warned guerrillas that the Jordan Army was prepared to take them on again, as it did in September 1970 and July 1971.

His plan to federate East and West Jordan after an Israel evacuation is the only possible one, King Hussein told Al-Nahar and, earlier, television viewers on a weekend "Meet the Press" program in the United States.

In his interview from Washington's Walter Reed Hospital with the Washington correspondent of Al-Nahar, King Hussein said "most Palestinians" with whom he had discussed his plan supported it. He avoided answering a question on whether he was prepared to hold a referendum among Palestinians on the plan.

If peaceful settlement failed, King Hussein added, Palestine guerrillas could return to Jordan only as part of an "all-embracing Arab strategy agreed upon in advance."

If the guerrillas wanted a fight, "we will fight them ... our armed forces are composed of Jordanians and Palestinians. As to the Palestinian element in our army, I believe it is larger than all the guerrilla organizations put together."

(However a number of Palestinian officers were transferred or cashiered from the Jordan Army after the Jordan civil war of 1970. Over one thousand Palestinian defectors formed the "Yarmouk Brigade" of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), now stationed in Syria.)

In a speech in Cairo April 2, at a banquet for visiting Romanian President Nicolai Ceausescu, President Sadat said the United States was presenting "misleading slogans" about Middle East peace while aiding Israel to hold Arab land taken in 1967.

A week earlier, Sadat criticized the U.S. before Egyptian army officers. He repeated that Egypt would have to fight Israel and the zero hour would be set "once the domestic front has been organized." This was a strong retreat from Sadat's promises last year that 1971 would be the "year of decision" with Israel.

Feeney Bars Players From Stadium Workouts

NEW YORK (UPI) —The lines in baseball's seven-day-old strike appeared to be hardening today as the National League clubowners closed their stadiums to player workouts and Marvin Miller charged the owners with having rejected their own offer for a settlement.

NL President Charles Feeney ordered all teams to stop letting the players work out at their home stadiums Thursday and American League President Joe Cronin is expected to issue the same order. Several clubs in both leagues had permitted players to work out in their home stadiums.

Miller threw a new verbal dart at the clubowners following a Thursday night meeting with tthe world champion Pirates in Pittsburgh. He then returned to New York to huddle with John Gaherin, the owners' representative in the stalemated negotiations.

"This is an unusual strike situation," said Miller after his meeting with the Pirates. "After rejecting our original proposals, we made some concessions to the owners on their terms, but then we've received no counter-proposal. It's a remarkable state of affairs."

Miller also needled the clubowners when it was suggested that he was being painted as an evil personality because of his role in the dispute over pension and medical benefits which reached an impasse last Friday.

"What the owners have done, perhaps, is make me a symbol for the contempt they hold for the players," said Miller.

"In reality," added Miller, "players of today are in every way different, regarding awareness, than the players of 25 years ago. But the owners are the same people who were running the game then."

Miller shrugged off the fact that the owners are denying workout facilities to the players with the comment, "This is the business of the owners."

Miller and Gaherin met earlier Thursday in New York but failed to make significant progress. Gaherin then conferred with Feeney and Cronin who were in New York to attend the funeral of Gil Hodges, former manager of the New York Mets.

Despite the apparent lack of progress, there were reports that the owners were willing to offer a compromise to the 17 per cent "cost of living" increase demanded by the players for their pension fund. The players argued that the 17 per cent increase was necessary to "stay even" with the terms of the agreement they made with the owners three years ago.

The feeling in baseball, however, was that a majority of the owners still favored the "hard line" voiced two weeks ago by Gussie Busch, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals. Busch said then that he "didn't give a damn" if the players went on strike and "wouldn't give them another cent."

A total of 16 scheduled games has been postponed and-or cancelled and there appears to be no chance that the season can start before Monday. The National Broadcasting Company will deduct $200,000 from its contract with baseball Saturday when the scheduled Game of the Week between the Detroit Tigers and Boston Red Sox is not played.

Novato Mayor's Track Record

He helped Novato High School launch its first home track and field season back in 1958 by serving as an official. Now, 14 years later, he will be officiating for Novato's team when it opens its home schedule today against San Marin High, his 15th season without missing a home meet. That's some record for holding clock and tape measure.

Gargiulo, principal of the Novato Adult Evening High School, coached football and track-field at Richardson Bay School in Sausalito in 1951 through '54 and also coached the two sports at Encinal High School in Alameda, 1954-57, before coming to Novato High. Among the gridders he coached at Encinal were Tommy Harper and Willie Stargell, who are known today much more for their baseball talents, Harper, now with the Boston Red Sox and Stargell with the world champ Pittsburgh Pirates.

Joe, quite an athletic follower, ran track and played football at San Rafael High and College of Marin in his school days, and also ran in the Dipsea race for several years.

Novato City Attorney Clark Palmer and his wife, Joyce, a math teacher at Novato High, also will be starting their 15th season of officiating the Hornets' home track and field meets.

WHEN THE Fairfax-Sleepy Hollow Little League officials decided upon a name for their new field, they couldn't have come up with a better one. When the new diamond at White Hill School is dedicated for the start of the season, it will be officially proclaimed, the Vernon "Lefty" Gomez Field, in honor of the Fairfax resident and new member of baseball's Hall of Fame.

MORE PAPERWORK in the Security Exchange Commission is delaying the opening of Sears Point International Raceway in Southern Sonoma County. Earliest time for any events there will be pushed back to mid-June, July, or later.

AN ITEM IN this space a few days ago about the Mayflower Inn Baggy Pants soccer team of San Rafael raised the ire of Robert Russo, manager of the Inter-Marin soccer team. Baggy Pants player-coach Ron Patnaude was wrong, said Russo, in claiming the Marin County soccer championship. The Inter-Marin team, which includes some former College of Marin players, beat the Baggy Pants four out of five games. Patnaude, it appears, forgot about the four losses, and just reported the one victory. Inter-Marin, you're still the champs!

Lowell Harris (Terra Linda) is still undefeated in the 120-yard high hurdles for the Oregon State Beavers. His best time this year is 14.3, three-tenths of a second off his all-time best.

Alan Lee (Tamalpais) is No. 2 quarter-mile man at University of California at Santa Barbara with a best of 49 flat. He's also on the UCSB mile relay team which has a best of 3:14.7.

Paul Lee (Terra Linda), outfielder at UCSB, is batting an even .300 for the baseball team, with two home runs, three triples, four doubles and 13 runs batted in for 19 games.

Mets Pick Berra, Get Staub For 3

NEW YORK (UPI)—Yogi Berra, canned after leading the New York Yankees to a pennant in 1964, had a managerial "vote of confidence" from the New York Mets today plus something even more important: "a bat."

The Mets announced Thursday the 46-year old Berra, a coach for them since 1965, had agreed to a two-year contract succeeding the late Gil Hodges, who managed New York to its "miracle" World Series victory in 1969. The announcement came a few hours after Hodges, who died of a heart attack last Sunday, was buried in a private ceremony.

At almost the sahe time the Mets announced the elevation of Berra they revealed that they had obtained Rusty Staub from the Montreal Expos in exchange for Ken Singleton, Mike Jorgensen and Tim Foli. A proven big league hitter who had a .311 average with 19 homers and 97 runs batted in for the Expos last season, the 28-year old Staub is expected to fill the Mets' need for a long ball in their lineup. The Mets, who finished in a third-place tie with the Chicago Cubs in the National League's Eastern Division last season, didn't have a player who hit more than 14 homers or drove in more than 69 runs.

Nicklaus On Top In Masters Golf

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus was trying his best to soft-pedal talk about a "grand slam," but that golfing dream was bright and shining today as he threatened to turn the 36th Master's golf championship into a runaway.

The first round's drama for Nicklaus was packed into a six-hole span-the 11th through 16th holes—during which he went from two-over-par to four-under-par with an eagle, four birdies, and one par.

Until then Snead, who will be 60 next month, was in the clubhouse as the leader after a stunning 33-36—69 that turned back the clock to his glory years. Asked if it was a "fun" round for him, the old Slammer drawled, "Fun, hell—there was blood on every shot."

A gamble with an iron shot on the 11th hole was, Nicklaus admitted, the thing that "turned it around for me."

"I decided I had to get something going, so I hit the iron shot a lot closer to the water than I normally would," he said. "It worked fine. And then when I was putting on the 11th, the putter suddenly got that right feel for me and I felt I could do anything with it."

On the 15th, Nicklaus canned a curling 25-footer for his eagle and went into a little dance of joy. On the 16th he sank another 25-footer, that one from six feet off the fringe.

Nicklaus and Snead each have won the Masters three times and Palmer holds the record of four victories—so the Masters now presents the unusual aspect of three leaders who among them have won the title 10 times.

Besides the top three, the only par-breakers among the 84 starters in the first round were gray-haired Paul Harney of Holden, Mass., and Wake Forest senior Jim Simons, who will be 22 next month, each with a one-under-par 71. Ten golfers were at par 70.

But way back at 75 and battling to survive the cut now is Lee Trevino, the U.S. and British Open champion who passed

VOLATILE AFFAIR

Warrior Crown Dreams Dashed By Milwaukee '5'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—They're not going to hand out any awards for excellence for the Milwaukee Bucks-Golden State Warriors' game Thursday night.

It was a game that saw the lead change hands several times, a fight break out and the visiting villain getting a standing ovation from the home crowd.

When it was over, the Bucks had a 108-100 win safely in their pockets and the first round of the National Basketball Association Western Conference playoffs in their trophy case. They had also earned the right to meet the Los Angeles Lakers in the Western Conference title series — another best-of-seven affair that opens Sunday in Los Angeles.

"I'm glad that's over with," said Bucks Coach Larry Costello. "that was a real tough series. All we've been hearing is Los Angeles, Los Angeles, so it's been pretty hard getting up for the Warriors."

The business at hand—even before they meet the Lakers—is to get healthy as soon as possible.

The Bucks started the game with only three guards. Wally Jones and Jon Mc Glocklin were injured and Oscar Robertson was slowed by a recurrence of his abdominal strain.

"It hurt a little bit out there," said Robertson. "But now it's over and I'm glad. I can use a couple of days rest."

The game started off calmly enough. The first half ended with Golden State on the better end of a 55-53 score. Robertson was slow in the first half and the Bucks just couldn't get going.

The Warriors came out roaring in the third period and they built up a 69-60 lead. But then the Bucks seemed to make up their minds that they didn't want to go back to Oakland for a sixth game.

Milwaukee chipped away and closed the gap to 79-78 when the fireworks started.

Lucius Allen threw a punch at the Warriors' Fritz Williams and they started an old-fashioned donnybrooke. Allen knocked Williams to the ground and jumped on top of him, throwing punches. Allen was called for a punching foul—even though he looked the worse for wear.

Then as Williams was heading for the foul line, he passed Allen and after making what seemed like a conciliatory ges-

Giants' Hushed Clubhouse

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Juan Marichal, Sam McDowell, Don Carrithers, Bobby Bonds and other San Francisco Giants showed up Thursday at Candlestick Park out of habit.

They were greeted by a hushed clubhouse, empty stands and the new electronic scoreboard which read "No ball game today. Players' strike." So the players chatted, took swings with a golf club, read papers and smoothed out uniforms which they might not wear for a while.

Marichal had been scheduled to open the season against the San Diego Padres Thursday. Today was to have been an off day with McDowell going against the Padres Saturday.

Only Giants owner Horace Stoneham held hope that possibly the Saturday game could be played.

Stoneham was about to allow the gathered players to hold a workout at Candlestick Thursday but the word came down from the National League office not to allow striking players the use of home stadiums.

"If the strike isn't settled by Friday night, I'll advise the players to pack up and return to their homes throughout the country," said Stoneham.

8 In NBA Hardship Draft

NEW YORK (UPI) —Seven underclassmen and one dropout have been made eligible because of hardship for the National Basketball Association's annual college player draft next Monday and three men on the list are considered "bluechip" prospects by the pro scouts.

The three standouts are Robert McAdoo of North Carolina, a 6-9 forward; Mel Davis of St. John's, a 6-5 forward; and Brian Taylor of Princeton, a 6-2 guard. McAdoo and Taylor have said they will definitely turn pro next year "if the price is right" while Davis is undecided All three are juniors.

Others awarded hardship eligibility Thursday by the NBA are Tony Delgado, a 6-2 junior from Sienna College in Loudenville, N.Y.; Mike Reid, a 6-3 junior from the University of California at Riverside; John Tinsley, a 6-7 sophomore from Pfeiffer College in Misenheimer, N.C.; Philmore Westbrook, a 6-3 freshman from Albemarle College in Elizabeth City, N.C., and Walter Gardner, a 6-3 guard who dropped out of Kaskaskia College in Centralia, Ill.

McAdoo, a second team All-America this past season, led the Tar Heels to a third place finish in the NCAA tournament and was the team's leading scorer and rebounder during the regular season.

Dean Smith, coach of North Carolina, said earlier this week that he had urged McAdoo to accept a professional offer if one were forthcoming. Smith said he hoped McAdoo would complete his college education at a later date and that he get an incentive bonus by the team that signs him when he gets his degree.

Taylor, a third team All-America, averaged better than 25 points a game for Princeton this season and led the Tigers to a second place finish in the Ivy League and a berth in the National Invitation Tournament.

Although he did not perform up to expectations in the NIT, Taylor was considered by chief scout Dick McGuire of the New York Knicks to be the best guard in the country.

Davis, an honorable mention All-America, led St. John's in scoring and rebounding during the season but suffered a serious knee injury during the quarterfinals of the NIT and missed the remainder of the tournament.

Davis indicated after the injury that he would return to school for his senior year because he felt his value to the pros had dropped considerably. He also wants his degree.

Most of the meet will take place at Novato High School, beginning at 9 a.m. each day. Due to the size of the field, three events will be held at Redwood High at 9 a.m. tomorrow — the 1,000-yard freestyle events for the girls 15-17 age bracket, the boys 13-14 and the girs 13-14.

The meet is co-sponsored by the Marin Aquatic Club and the Novato Recreation Department. There is no admission charge.

28 Indicted In Alleged Horse Race Fixing Case

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Twenty-eight persons, including one state racing official, have been indicted in connection with alleged horse race fixing at Lincoln Downs, Attorney General Richard J. Israel said today.

Seven of those named on the 33 indictments returned Thursday by a Providence County grand jury have been arrested, he told a mid-morning news conference.

One of the defendants was identified as Adolph Caliri of Providence, a state racing official. The other six were trainers and owners, Israel said, and they were taken into custody at Narragansett Park in Pawtucket.

The race fixing allegedly took place between October 1970 and March 1971, the attorney general said.

Israel said the grand jury returned five indictments against a number of defendants for conspiracy to bribe and corrupt racing officials, jockies, horse owners, traineers and track employes.

Twenty four of the indictments charged persons involved in horse racing in Rhode Island of "unlawfully accepting a bribe to influence the performance of their duty in the running and promotion of certain horse racing in the state."

Costello thought the fight "might have picked us up a little bit."

He might have been right, because the Bucks then built a 90-83 lead and held on for the win.

kees and is a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, was fired by the Yankees after they lost the 1944 World Series to the St. Louis Cardinals in seven games.

The charge against Berra, who succeeded Ralph Houk in '64, was that he was too familiar with his players and did not maintain sufficient discipline over them.

His appointment to manage the Mets represents a radical departure from the techniques of Hodges who had a highly professional and even cold relationship with his players. Hodges was a strong silent type with a subtle sense of humor. Berra is an earthy, easily-approached man who thinks nothing of playing a round of golf or having a drink with his players.

Berra said he had learned a lot since his one-year managerial experience with the Yankees and added, "I didn't think I did that bad then...after all, I did win the pennant."

Staub, who plays both first base and the outfield, is a 6-foot, 2-inch, 205-pound lefthanded hitter who can hit either for average or power. He batted .333 with 10 homers for the Houston Astros in 1967 and .274 with 30 homers for Montreal in 1970.

Singleton, a 6-foot, 5-inch, 220-pound switch-hitter, was a disappointment for the Mets in 1971 but is regarded by many National League rivals as a potential star. Foli, who plays three infield positions, should play regularly for the Expos and Jorgensen, a strong lefthanded hitter, never really had a chance to win a regular job with the Mets.

American Swim Marks Shattered

DALLAS (UPI) — Veterans Gary Hall and Susie Atwood streaked to new American records Thursday to pave their way to the Olympic tryouts with gold medals from the Amateur Athletic Union Swimming Championship.

Bald-headed Steve Genter also grabbed a new AAU record with a time of 1:39.23 in the men's 200-yard freestyle, passing a mark he set that morning in the preliminaries at 1:39.84.

Hall, who won the men's 400-yard individual medley in 1970 with a time of 3:59.7, took his title back from teammate Gunnar Larsson of Indiana, with a new American and AAU record of 3:58.09. Larsson finished a close second with 3:59.26.

Miss Atwood, who broke her own American record in the 200-yard backstroke Wednesday, breezed to a new American and AAU record of 4:28.85 Thursday, edging out newcomer Jennifer Bartz of Santa Clara, who finished second with 4:31.63 in the 400-yard individual medley.

Miss Bartz set a surprise record in the event during the preliminaries but slipped behind the more experienced Miss Atwood in the finals.

Miss Atwood, who at 18 could be considered one of the "older swimmers, called the Loos Natatorium "the fastest pool I've ever competed in." One of America's top swimmers, she has hinted she may retire after the Munich Olympics. The AAU meet is the last big meet before the Olympic tryouts.

There was no action involving Marin County swimmers in the meet yesterday.

ABA Cougars Win Cunningham Battle

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—The Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association have won a court of appeals victory in their fight to lure Billy Cunningham away from the rival National Basketball Association.

The 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Thursday upheld the Cougars' $450,000 three-year contract with Cunningham, who played this past season for the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA.

Cunningham, a former player at the University of North Carolina, claimed the Carolina contract was invalid because the Cougars declined to pay him an $80,000 bonus.

The Cougars said they withheld the bonus because of an oral agreement by Cunningham to a $225,000 contract with the 76ers for the 1970-72 season.

"We do not think the Cougars should be penalized for acting in response to reality," said the court in overturning a U. S. district court ruling.

NCAA Will Allow Sugar Bowl To Switch Rather Than Fight

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Sugar Bowl football game will be permitted to change its date from the traditional New Year's Day to Dec. 31, 1972, officials of the National Collegiate Athletic Association ruled yesterday.

The Sugar Bowl has had difficulty attracting a television audience in recent years because it has been programmed opposite another post-season collegiate game, the Cotton Bowl.

Dec. 31 was open this year because the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston, which normally is held on New Year's Eve, requested a shift to Dec. 30, a Saturday night.

ATLANTA — Concerned about the large number of college football players who suffer head and face injuries, a medical group suggested yesterday a softer shell be used on the outside of football helmets in a move to cut down on injuries.

Dr. Samuel I. Fuenning, director of the student health service at the University of Nebraska, said if the softer shell were adopted, it probably would reduce the extent of injury caused by the impact of one player against another.

Olympics

MONTREAL — Montreal unveiled plans last night for the construction of an egg-shaped, 70,000-seat, all-weather stadium complex to serve as the main competition center during the 1956 Olympics.

DENVER — The Colorado House of Representatives overrode the strong objections of its budget committee yesterday and restored to the Denver Olympics Committee (DOC) most of the funds it was seeking to operate in the 1972-73 fiscal year.

Tennis

HOUSTON — Tiburon's Bob Lutz and Arthur Ashe of Gum Spring, Va., teamed up yesterday to defeat Bill Bowrey and Owen Davidson of Australia, 6-7, 7-6, 6-4, in a first-round match in the $50,000 River Oaks tennis tournament.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Did you ever hear the expression, "Believe nothing that you hear, and only half of what you see?" Two friends of mine went salmon fishing last Tuesday and I had talked to them the evening before, requesting they bring me a salmon. I told them I would meet them under the Richmond Bridge near piling number 50 about noon.

I had just arrived there, when here they came. They passed a sack across to my boat with not one, but two salmon. (You can't beat that!) Then they started trolling for stripers. I guess five minutes passed when they caught a fish - a striper. A little later, another boat came along and asked if they had anything. Did they hold up the striper? Nope, they held up a salmon. Naturally, the guy in the other boat thought they caught it there.

THEN I WENT into Loch Lomond, and the word got around that I have two salmon. I had only been gone an hour or so, so they figured I caught them at the bridge. That night, Sam Knoles called and asked about my having two salmon. I said, "Sure, I got them down near piling number 50, and that was the truth!

TUESDAY, FOUR anglers at Buck's Landing had four sturgeon that totaled out to 212 pounds. I talked to Gene Schettler of Petaluma, one of the anglers. He says sturgeon fishing is good, but it takes patience; and you'll have to fight off the small sharks out there. The fish were all caught somewhere between the Pumphouse and the S. P. Buoy. Best baits are ghost shrimp, or a good wad of grass shrimps. You need plenty of bait. You can get either type baits at Buck's Landing on the Santa Venetia Slough.

With outdoorsman Joseph Paul's recent death, California Trout's newly elected president, Richard May of Orinda, had this to say: "It is with feelings of deep personal grief and profound regret that my first duty as president has been to inform our members by letter of the death of our founding President, Joseph Paul, following a brief illness. I pledge to our members and well wishers, however, that although our long time beloved leader has fallen, Cal Trout will go on. Joe Paul welded together a formidable team of co-leaders and workers. The team has now closed ranks, and with deep re-dedication and new found purpose, we shall carry forward our fight on all fronts as ever before".

ABOUT TWO weeks ago, 30,000 silver salmon, all yearlings, were planted in Papermill Creek. With the lack of water, the plants were made in some of the deeper holes in Taylor Park. In one of the holes, 22 large steelhead were noted which made for an exciting area. The fish were due to go to sea about April 1, and in checking the area daily, it seems as though most of the fish have successfully migrated, including the 22 steelheads. The toughest period was through Easter week when school was out. Some of the kids on vacation thought that collecting fresh salmon was more action than in collecting Easter eggs or bunnies even though the season was closed! We had kids come from as far as Hill Junior High School in Novato just to give it a go at those fish. These kids really get the word these days.

With the 30,000 salmon hopefully all gone, the Fish and Game Dept. then planted 10,000 yearling steelheads. They should have also gone to sea especially with the rains this past week. So fishing for salmon and steelhead next year and the year after should be great. Let's hope so. The grilse of these plants should be back next November. (A grilse is a two year old male salmon or steelhead).

Toronto Surprises Bruins; Blues Bow

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Hockey buffs with a short memory and a long dislike for the favorite can begin to take hope once again that the big, bad Bruins can be had.

Just one year ago, in the second game of the Stanley Cup quarter-finals, the supposedly invincible Bruins blew a 5-1 lead to Montreal, losing the game, 7-5, and eventually being eliminated by the Canadiens.

Once again Boston rates as the big favorite in this season's playoffs, but once again the second game of the quarterfinals has proved a hex. This time Toronto overcame deficits of 2-0 and 3-2 to whip the Bruins 4-3 Thursday night on a goal by Jim Harrison at 2:58 of sudden death overtime.

"We figured we could beat them and this will give us a big boost," said Harrison, whose 30-foot slapshot enabled the Leafs to escape with a 1-1 standoff in Boston, with the next two games of the best-of-seven set to be played in Toronto over the weekend.

"Not too many teams come in here and beat Boston," exulted Frank 'King" Clancy, the substitute Toronto coach. "But our fellows came in here and played great and beat Boston. We beat a hell of a hockey team. This will lift us. Everyone had us counted out, expecting us to lose in four straight."

The three other playoff series went according to form Thursday night with the home team winning in each case for 2-0 leads. In another sudden death overtime, Bill Goldsworthy scored after 1:36 to lift the Minnesota North Stars to a 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Blue; the New York Rangers scored three goals in the final period to beat Montreal 5-2; and the Chicago Black Hawks edged past the Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2.

Ex-A's Pitcher Grant Tabbed

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Former Oakland A's pitcher Jim (Mudcat) Grant, who was given a tryout with the Cleveland Indians as a free agent this spring then offered a chance to pitch for the Tribe's farm team at Portland, Ore., said today he will go to work for Charlie Finley, owner of the Athletics.

Grant, 37, who posted a 6-3 record with 17 saves for Oakland and the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates last season, said he will be a pitcher-coach with Des Moines, the A's top farm club.

Men's Golf Tourney Scheduled

Franchini's Chateau, 2500 Redwood Highway, will hold the tourney for 64 golfers at Marin Country Club, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

The field, which includes professional career men, paid $20 for green fees and food levies.

Calloway handicaps will be used in the 18-hole tourney, according to tourney publicity chairman George Leonetti. Leonetti added that a dinner "back at our restaurant will be held after the tournament, and there will be prizes for all."

Meanwhile, Indian Valley Men's Club Spring Handicap tournament golf crowns are adorned by Al Leach, Hal Walton and Chuch Meyer.

The trio was competing in a five-week tournament, ending last weekend.

BASEBALL'S STRIKE

An Argument In Soundproof Closet

By PHIL ELDERKIN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Truth has to change hands only a few times to become fiction, which is what makes the current baseball players' strike so difficult to evaluate. Who do you believe?

Here you have two men, Marvin Miller and John Gaherin, arguing in a soundproof closet, while nobody outside of baseball really knows what is going on.

Miller represents the players and Gaherin the owners. The issue, if you can believe the bold print, is a very simple one. The players want an increase in what is already a very lucrative pension plan and the owners don't want to give it to them.

This prompts two questions:

(1) Are the players asking too much?

(2) Can the owners, who are already operating under spiralling labor costs, afford to dump roughly $4.5 million into making the players more comfortable?

Since nobody is about to open his books to the public, who can really tell?

But there are some hard facts which can be stated: For example, a player (after only four years in the big leagues) is entitled to $174.34 a month in retirement benefits at age 45.

According to the Sporting News, the baseball weekly out of St. Louis, players' salaries currently range from $13,500 to $160,000 — with the average levelling off at $28,500.

If there were a truck strike or a picket line made up of coal miners or garbage men, the entire nation would be in trouble.

The razor blade people will have no trouble finding a basketball player who shaves or a hockey player who, for money, can be coaxed to comb his hair on TV.

Nobody in government is about to invoke the Taft-Hartley law or call for all-night sessions at the White House.

The only real losers, if the strike should last for a full season, would be those cities or states on the big league map which are trying to meet the monthly payments on multimillion-dollar stadiums.

Meanwhile, Miller says the amount of money he would like the owners to put into the players' pension fund ($850,000) is not really the decisive question. To him, the issue is how the money should be applied.

Several months ago the owners offered the players an increase of $490,000 over last year, which Miller advised against. He claimed he said no because the owners wanted to earmark that increase for health benefits.

"They offered nothing in increased player benefits," Miller explained, "whereas the Player' Association wanted pension benefits upped 17 per cent to cover the rising cost of living since the last agreement in 1969."

To achieve this figure, according to the Players' Association, would require no additional money from the owners. The total cash now invested in the pension plan is around $44 million. The plan assumes it will earn 4½ per cent interest. However, Miller claims it is actually earning 6 per cent.

If the strike goes into extra innings, as it might, the $120,000 outfielder may find himself in limited demand —even as an elevator operator.

Baseball used to be such a simple game — like ball one, strike two, and kill the umpire! Now they play it with dollar bills rampant on a field of blue chip stocks!

What ham did for Virginia, Old Crow did for Bourbon.

Even before Virginia's George Washington became President, Virginia was famous for the good taste of her country hams. Not long after, the good taste of Old Crow made Bourbon famous.

Before 1835, Bourbon was made every which way. That year, Dr. James Crow took it out of the hit-or-miss league and created the process that gave Bourbon its mellow taste —and good name: Old Crow.

Exploration Well To Deepen On Ex-Supervisor's Property

Geothermal Resources International Inc. and Getty Oil Company are joining forces to deepen a geothermal (steam) exploration well on Lake County property owned by former Marin Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen.

The property is Kettenhofen's S Bar S Ranch at the foot of Mount Knocti between Lower Lake and Kelseyville. Steam wells are the cleanest method of generating electricity and is the least damaging to environment, said Kettenhofen.

He leased the drilling rights on his ranch to Magna-Eureka Power Co., which subleased to GRI. If the steam well proves successful, the ranch owner will get a percentage of the gross.

Kettenhofen has several other business interests including a new retail facility called Anchorage Hardware & Marine, Inc. at the Industrial Center Building in Sausalito.

Mrs. De Marta

Parker

INGRID R. DE MARTA of San Rafaal was named loan officer in Wells Fargo Bank's commercial loan department in the Market-Montgomery office in San Francisco.

Mrs. De Marta joined Wells Fargo in 1954 and had been credit officer since 1968.

F. M. PARKER of San Rafael has been appointed senior staff engineer in the manufacturing process engineering division of Chevron Research Co., Richmond.

He will provide technical coordination of distillation and product finishing processes for all of Standard Oil of California's manufacturing operations.

NOVATO FROZEN Food Lockers and Novato Ice Co. will change hands on Monday.

William E. Mueller, who has owned the establishments at 1413 Gant Avenue for the past four years, will sell both businesses to Ray E. Ferrari of Greenbrae. Mueller will retain ownership of the building.

Ferrari will change the name of the firm to Novato Meat Co. He has been in the wholesale and retail meat business for 35 years and managed the meat department at Embee Markets in Tiburon for two years.

THE BEAD FREAK, which specializes in beads, antiques and jewelry, will move from its present location in Kentfield to 607 San Anselmo Avenue in San Anselmo about May 1.

Owned by Charles E. Gast Jr. of Fairfax, the Bead Freak has been at 937 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Kentfield for three years and in San Francisco for two years.

At its new site in San Anselmo (where the Miscellaneous shop is now located, the Bead Freak will expand its supplies to include new lines of Indian silver and turquoise jewelry. Gast hopes to add North African jewelry about June. "We're going to gear toward primitive antique jewelry," said Gast. The store will also carry its full line of beads and supplies necessary for making necklaces and earrings.

Tony Barnett of San Francisco will help Gast manage the new store in San Anselmo. Barnett plans to move to Marin as soon as he can find suitable housing.

THE MISCELLANEOUS, a novelty and gift store at 607 San Anselmo Avenue, will move to 562 San Anselmo Avenue. That's where Gunning's Hobbies was formerly located. Gunning's is operating at 550 San Anselmo Avenue, the former Yarn Nook, which moved to 701 San Anselmo Avenue.

James Park and Jack Carroll, both of San Rafael, have been awarded "Seal of Confidence" certification from Allstate Insurance Companies. The award goes to Allstate agents who have demonstrated "outstanding ability and exceptional judgment in dealing with the public."

Wall Street Trade Slows After Rush

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market moved lower today on profit taking after two strong sessions. Trading was fairly active, but not as heavy as the past two days.

The selling came as no surprise to most analysts in wake of the sharp gains of the past two sessions. How long it would last and how far it would go was a question mark.

On the American Stock Exchange, prices also were lower in fairly active trading. DHJ Industries was the most active Amex issue, off 1-8 at 25 1-4 on 49,400 shares.

General Telephone & Electronics was the most active New York Stock Exchange issue, off 1-8 at 29 1-2. American Telephone & Telegraph was second, down 1-8 at 43, and McGraw-Hill followed, unchanged at 18 5-8.

Steels, airlines and aircrafts mostly were lower. KLM Royal Dutch eased 1 1-4 in the airlines.

Chemicals, oils and rails were mixed. DuPont dropped 2 and Eastman Kodak 1 1-2 in the chemicals.

Some of the glamors managed to show strength. Corning Glass, which gained more than 20 points recently, advanced 2, and Bausch & Lomb gained 1 3/8.

Witco Chemical Acquires Retzloff

NEW YORK (BW) — Witco Chemical Corp. has acquired Retzloff Chemical Co. from Retzloff Industries of Houston for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Retzloff Chemical, with sales in excess of $5 million in 1971, will continue business as a subsidiary of Witco Chemical.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have 100 shares of Mead Corp. which recently cut its dividend rate. Should I sell? — D.G.

A. If you are dependent on dividends for supplementing your income, then shares, which return only 3.3 per cent should be switched to a higher yield issue. If not, Mead should be held for recovery reflecting a major restructuring of operations. Although some benefits of this redirection of activities was apparent in 1971 results, more important gains should accrue this year. Marginal operations have been phased out and high profit divisions strengthened. In addition, demand for pulp, paper and lumber is expected to increase 18 per cent to 20 per cent this year.

Q. I would appreciate your opinion of Delaware Lackawana 5's of 1985 selling at 45½. My thinking is that a bond selling below par has a yield greater than its coupon rate plus offering a hedge against inflation in that it will be redeemed at par. — C.S.

A. Your theory is faultless but your choice of vehicle is not. The price on this particular issue reflects its high degree of inherent risk. Rated CCC, this Pennsylvania Division Refunding & Collateral Trust series has not defaulted on interest although the line has two other debt issues in default.

Two AA-rated bonds, Sears, Roebuck 4¾s of 1983 and Sinclair Oil 4.60s of 1988 return 5.7 per cent and 6.0 per cent, respectively at current trading levels. The former is selling $180 below par and the latter $230. Yield to maturity works out at about 7 per cent in each case.

Q. Does Ford have a nonpolluting engine in conjunction with Thermo Election? — N.H.

A. This OTC company has a 5-year agreement with Ford to develop commercially a Rankine steam engine. Ford holds 30,000 shares of Thermo and has an option to buy 40,000 more. Thermo will retain rights to technology from this program but will contribute $2 million toward development costs. Shares are trading about 60x projected fiscal 1972 earnings.

New Store Has More For Sports

Big 5 Sporting Goods, which took over the former Sports Land store at Northgate Shopping Center, has a wider selection of merchandise under new management.

Manager Paul W. Queen invited Marin residents to inspect the new store during the grand opening, which started today. Queen was with Sports Land in San Francisco for 12 years before taking over the new Northgate store at 470 Las Gallinas Avenue.

"We have a beautiful line of fishing gear, expanded line of guns, and an enlarged camping and back packing section," said Queen. The store is open seven days a week, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 to 9 on Saturday, and 10 to 6 on Sunday.

Big 5 Sporting Goods, with headquarters in Los Angeles, bought the Northgate store from Sports Land last month to bring its total ownership to 24 stores.

Assistant manager at the new store is Harold Petty of Terra Linda, who worked for Sports Land for two years and for Phillips Petroleum for four years before that.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

You Are Required To File A Declaration Of Estimated Tax

You are required to file a Federal declaration of estimated tax for 1972 if you can reasonably expect gross income over:

1. $20,000 for a head of household, a widow or widower entitled to the special tax rate, or a married person entitled to file a joint declaration with a spouse who does not receive wages during the year.

2. $10,000 for married persons entitled to file a joint declaration if both spouses receive wages during the year.

3. $20,000 for other single individuals.

4. $5,000 for a married individual not entitled to file a joint declaration.

5. Gross income can reasonably be expected to include more than $500 from sources other than wages subject to withholding.

No declaration is required if the estimated tax can reasonably be expected to be less than $100.

If you are self-employed, you must add the self-employment tax of 7.5 per cent on the first $9,000 of self-employment income subject to the tax. In most cases, this will be $9,000 x 7.5 per cent = $675.

If you are subject to withholding, you should deduct your estimated withholding from your estimated tax.

If you are an employee, the law provides that you can agree with your employer to have him take more than the regular rate of withholding out of your paycheck so that you will have your taxes fully paid at the end of the year. There is a special place (line 7) on the W-4, Employee's Withholding Exemption Certificate, for this.

If you are receiving a pension, you can now have the tax withheld. All you have to do is file Form W-4P with the payor of the pension stating the amount you want withheld and the other information required.

Your estimated tax paid must be at least 80 per cent (66⅔ per cent for fishermen and farmers) of the total tax due; otherwise, you may be subject to penalties for under-estimating.

Your estimate and one-quarter of the tax is due on April 17, 1972. Payments are due on June 15 and Sept. 15, 1972, and Jan. 15, 1973. On any of these due dates, you can file an amended estimate and change the amount of tax you are paying.

If you make at least two-thirds of your income as a farmer or fisherman, you can wait until Jan. 15, 1973, to file, but then you will have to pay the estimated tax all at once, or you can file your final return by March 1, 1973, and pay all your tax then, and not bother with an estimate at all. This only applies if you are a farmer or fisherman.

Any tax paid on a separate declaration may be used to pay the tax due on a joint final return; likewise, any tax paid on a joint declaration may be used to pay the tax due on separate final returns.

Record Earnings And Sales Reported

DALLAS (BW) — Campbell Taggart Inc. has reported record first quarter sales and earnings with net income increasing 14 per cent over 1971.

Record Gross

CHICAGO (BW) — Sears, Roebuck and Co. has reported sales for the five weeks ended April 1 were 12.8 per cent higher than last year. Gross sales were a record $1,033,329,488, an increase of $117,036,806 over the comparable period of 1971.

Can 'Ticket' Prevail In Novato Election?

Marin's biggest city council contest for next Tuesday's elections, that in Novato, has some interesting facets.

Novato is noted for big candidate fields, but this year's is a whopper — topped only by that for the first council when the city was incorporated. Eleven aspirants are after three council positions. Only one of them is an incumbent, and he is in office by appointment.

The contest has brought claims that two "slates" of candidates are among the 11 — although those named as being on the slates deny it. One of these, which perhaps most accurately could be styled the "anti-growth" slate because of its candidates' stand for preserving the environment at cost of population growth, is made up of David Price Jones (the incumbent), John Schoonover, and Edward T. Ryken. The other, which in opposition would have to be called the "growth" slate, includes Daniel Donovan, Fred Ruegg, and Dorothy Young (the only woman candidate among the 11).

The philosophy of Jones, Ryken and Schoonover is described as matching that of the two holdover council members, George Quesada and F. Wayne Sartain.

It will be interesting to see whether a "ticket" can triumph in an election with such a big field as 11 candidates. Attempts to elect "tickets" in Marin's local elections have not been notably successful in the past with much smaller fields to scatter the vote.

Needed Bond Issue

Mill Valleyans will have a second chance Tuesday to pass bonds for a needed new firehouse. A $275,000 issue will be on the municipal election ballot there. A slightly smaller version got 55 per cent favorable vote — well short of the necessary two-thirds majority — in a special election last year.

Mill Valley's fire situation is a difficult one, and the second firehouse is needed to provide more adequate protection. The city council has done well to put the issue on the ballot — thereby showing support for its fire department in curbing fires, rather than taking the opposite approach which it has taken with the police department: that of forbidding release of burglary information instead of beefing up the department to cope with the crime problem.

We hope two-thirds of Mill Valleyans see the need for greater fire protection and vote for the bonds. Yes, they'll add to the tax rate, but there may be a saving in the long run if better fire protection keeps insurance rates from skyrocketing.

Republicans Hope To Win Election 'From Bottom Up

By RUS WALTON

In presidential years, especially, there is a tendency to forget that elections are usually won from the bottom up.

That is to say: parties can elect a president or a governor, and lose control of the Congress or the Legislature. But, it is unusual for a party to win control of the Congress or the Legislature and fail to win the top office.

In 1968, Richard Nixon carried California by 139,679 votes. The Republican candidates got 54 per cent of the statewide vote cast in the 80 Assembly district races. That gave them 41 seats and control of the State Assembly.

In 1970, Ronald Reagan defeated Jesse Unruh by 501,057 votes. The GOP got only 49 per cent of the Assembly districts vote — and only 37 of the 80 Assembly seats.

REPUBLICAN LEGISLATIVE leaders are determined to undo the damage this year. The Republican Caucus has been working quietly with the GOP State Central Committee's Cal-Plan. The goal is to regain control of both houses of the state Legislature. And, they are cautiously optimistic.

— the economic situation in California "is definitely improved over 1970."

— Republicans have "more outstanding candidates in marginal and non-incumbent districts than they did in 1970."

— there is a united, across-the-board effort. Most of the campaign effort and money in 1970 was directed toward the re-election of Governor Reagan and other statewide constitutional officers. Legislative races were largely ignored.

DEMOCRATS NOW hold 42 seats in the Assembly. The way the Republican memo sees it, 30 of those seats are "safe" and 12 are vulnerable. Republicans hold 37 seats —31 "safe" and six vulnerable.

Obviously the GOP plans to focus efforts on the "pulnerable" Democrats.

The memo predicts an easy win in San Diego's 76th Assembly District. Last month this traditionally Republican district was captured by Democrat Bob Wilson in an upset special election victory.

Orange County's 69th district is another seat the GOP planners are counting on. They have coveted it before but incumbent Democrat Ken Cory has proved an illusive target. Despite his proclivity for shoulder-length hair, love beads, knickers and booties, Cory manages to hold his seat.

This time it may be different. William Dannemeyer, a former legislator and Democrat-turned-Republican, is out for Cory's curly locks.

ANOTHER DECISIVE battle is shaping up in the 37th Assembly District in Ventura County. Republican John Conlan, an articulate and personable county supervisor, is challenging incumbent Democrat Ken McDonald.

Conland and McDonald are long-time personal friends. It took pressure from Republican big-wigs, from the governor on down, to persuade Conlan to run against his friend. When Conlan said he would, McDonald announced he would retire. Subsequently, Assemblyman Willie Brown, D-San Francisco, advised that McDonald had made a "mistake" — that he would seek re-election, after all.

The Republican memo also lists Santa Clara County's Democrat-held 24th and 25th districts as strong possibilities. It suggests that both Assemblymen John Vasconcellos (24th) and Alister McAlister (25th) can be had. Vasconcellos' primary opposition is the county Democratic chairman.

The memo points out, however, that if organized labor pours men and money into some of the marginal districts, things could be rough.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Sausalito Police Provide Security

As residents of Sausalito, my wife and I would commend our police department for giving us what many communities lack — and that is a sense of security. We like to walk and it's very reassuring to see the police are reguarly patrolling Bridgeway — a street that collects some real weirdos.

We've seen several incidents involving rapid and efficient police work and we have nothing but admiration for this protection. So if you want a safe place to live, work (and walk), we recommend Sausalito. Now you can't say that for some other areas, like, for example, Sleepy Hollow.

Politician's Ploy: Claim The Credit

Can a candidate win by running on the records of others, rather than his own?

This is the question that ran through my mind at the Larkspur City Council candidates' night.

Rat-a-tat-tatting a rapid barrage of achievements, Bill Fleckles reached far back into time to record most of the good deeds done by the entire city council, various citizen's groups, and probably the planning commission. Some of these, I seem to recall, passed practically over his dead body. Yet he modestly claimed credit for this incredible list of accomplishments. Total credit.

Thanks To All Who Helped Save Mint

I just received a notice of your editorial of March 28 and I wish to take this opportunity on behalf of all those who have helped in this worthy undertaking of saving the San Francisco Mint edifice and turning its usage into something that will be educational for the benefit of the peoples everywhere when they visit the mint.

May I also thank you personally for the write-up. By the way may I say that I live in Elsinore City, Riverside County, and not in dear ole San Diego.

Why Candidate's Statement Missing

When filing to run for the Larkspur City Council, each candidate is given the option to write a statement which is then sent to all registered voters. This option costs $90, while there is no charge for a filing fee.

Being a novice, I balked at the $90 charge, so am now the only city council candidate in Larkspur not in the voters handbook. Instead, I must rely on all voters to carefully read and compare the profiles of each candidate, appearing later this week in the I-J and in other papers.

Why Wait Until Water Runs Out?

I cannot follow the logic. Numerous news items about the lack of water in the Marin Municipal Water District's lakes, and very little probability that they will be filled before the rains end. The, if the rains are over, they will ask that we don't waste water.

If we waste a gallon now, the lake will have one gallon less at the end of the rains.

What's the matter with those "thinkers"? Haven't they even thought (while they get such large articles as appear on today's front page) about just even suggesting that we should not (NOW) let our water run until it goes down the gutters?

Maybe Writer Should Run For Supervisor

It was with great interest, I read your editorial of March 31, "Why Supervisors Lose Voter Support."

You quoted the lady who objected to the continued proliferation of administrative county government rather than representative county government, the inadequate evaluation of county employees, and the marked increase in county government cost.

Since most of us are in 100 per cent agreement with reasons given in the lady's letter on why supervisors lose voter support, the taxpayers would do well to hire this lady to run the supervisors, and do away with the administrator!

Take Down Signs, Let Blossoms Show

Now that almost everyone is concerned about pollution of all kinds, including visual pollution, until very recently I was very pleased to notice a lack of campaign posters in our city of San Anselmo. However, the past few days I have seen signs campaigning for a candidate for our city council and county board of supervisors.

I would strongly urge these candidates to have these signs removed immediately to make way for the more pleasant sight of spring blossoms and green leaves. If this is not done, I just as strongly urge people to vote for candidates other than those so cluttering the scenery. If they are so thoughtless of people now that they are candidating, they may be just as thoughtless if they are elected into office.

Religious Issue In Politics Absent From Current Campaign

WASHINGTON — This miasmic pre-convention presidential campaign is not producing much clarity on the big issues. But one thing is becoming clear: Religion is no longer a political issue.

It is being nearly totally erased and American political life is better off for it.

In 1960, John F. Kennedy proved that a Catholic could be nominated and elected President. But this was an exception? Would perhaps less popular candidates find themselves freed from the religious issue?

This year there are two Catholics seeking the Democratic nomination — Sen. Edmund Muskie and Eugene McCarthy.

THE QUESTION of religion has never come up at any time. But it could still be a silent, motivating factor.

It isn't, and the best proof is that Muskie and McCarthy are being neither disadvantaged nor benefited by being Catholics.

Many will remember that in the late '40s and early '50s, Wisconsin Catholics of Irish and German extraction gave nearly solid support to Republican Sen. Joseph McCarthy and a few years later voted nearly en bloc for John Kennedy, a Democrat.

But this year there was little or no evidence that either Muskie or Eugene McCarthy won dominantly Catholic districts because they are Catholics.

THIS IS A WELCOME development. But what is equally interesting is why. Why has a religious issue, which was intense in the 1960 campaign, nearly vanished from the political scene?

Much of the credit belongs to Kennedy himself — but not all by any means.

The candid way he handled the religious issue in the campaign muted much of its force, and his very election lowered the barrier for future Catholic presidential candidates.

Kennedy's independent conduct in office, showing that his policy decisions would be controlled by what he deemed best for the United States, dissolved much anxiety about a Catholic President.

Since then, two new forces have come into play.

One is the substance and spirit of Vatican ecumenism which seems to many to diminish somewhat the authoritarianism of the Roman Catholic Church.

The other is the assertion of greater independence on the part of Catholic leadership and laity in different countries, including the United States.

There is no doubt in my mind that these factors together have silenced the religious issue in American politics. This means that Muskie and McCarthy are on their own and are being neither hurt nor assisted because they are Catholics.

IT IS IMPORTANT to understand why there has been a religious issue in American politics. It is not per se an expression of religious bias. It has nothing to do with where one goes to church or with theology. It has only to do with the temporal policies of any church and how compulsory is the adherence to those views by the adherent.

Would a President who happened to be a Christian Scientist faithfully execute the provision for Medicare in view of the Christian Science rejection of material medicine? Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., a Christian Scientist, dealt with tat effectively in his Illinois campaign.

Would a President who happened to be a Catholic faithfully observe the constitutional provision for separation of church and state in view of Catholic practice on that subject? Sen. John F. Kennedy dealt with that effectively both as campaigner and as President.

If Senator Muskie is nominated. He will be rightly pressed to expand and clarify his views on population control.

Isn't that the way it should be done?

War Maps Look Like 1968, But U.S. Position Is Different

WASHINGTON — To look at the sketch maps in the paper, you would think it was an old file copy someone had pulled out to review the first days of April, 1968. Broad arrows denote enemy offensive thrusts cutting down from the DMZ, past Khe Sanh toward Quang Tri city and Hue. Hopefully diversionary moves are symbolized by other arrows in the Central Highlands and across the border near Saigon.

But, of course, the headlines give away the real date. In 1968, they had Lyndon Johnson announcing he would not run again, and ordering a halt to bombing of North Vietnam; the Rev. Dr. William Sloane Coffin Jr. was delivering a sermon on "Radical Obedience to Conscience," while under indictment for conspiring to counsel young men to avoid the draft; the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. was preaching in Look magazine against urban rioting, warning that it would produce "a kind of right-wing takeover in the cities," and the stock market was turning sharply upward in the wake of the President's action.

NOW, FOUR YEARS later, King is gone, Look magazine is gone, and Coffin long has been superseded by other draft counselors. You have the war, of course, and the broad arrows on the situation maps. But it is not the follow-through to the Tet offensive we are watching now. It is, according to a group that gathered outside the White House to cheer the enemy on, the "Easter offensive," and the likelihood that it could upset this President in this election year is remote, indeed.

Yet, however, remote, it is there. Depending on how Mr. Nixon reacts or fails to react to the current enemy drive into South Vietnam, t exists on the left, at the center and on the right of the American electorate. And no one is more nervously aware of it than the President himself.

As this is written, an unnamed American military source in Vietnam has stated the administration position as succinctly as anybody. "We're going to do everything we can to protect our people and keep our casualties down," he said. "Where a situation becomes untenable, we're going to pull our people out. The only assistance we're going to give the South Vietnamese is air."

Adherence even to that much of a commitment to help Saigon is, of course, too much for the most urgent advocates of American withdrawal. They have not been satisfied with the rate of pullout ordered by Mr. Nixon, and will not be satisfied by anything less than total abandonment of South Vietnam. But then, they are not going to vote for Mr. Nixon under any circumstances.

But, the great middle ranks of American voters will sanction such air support from the United States during the pullout. What will stir them is any readjustment of the withdrawal schedule already made public. And what will arouse them further, into a vengeful political mood, is any recommitment of American ground forces to action, with an accompanying upward turn on the graphs showing U.S. combat casualties.

FORTUNATELY, for the President's standing with the center of the electorate, the discreetly hasty execution of the withdrawal plan to date makes it impossible for U.S. ground troops to return to combat for anything more than spot defenses of major American installations. Of the approximately 100,000 Americans remaining in-country, only some 7,000 are combat troops.

Thus the timing of this offensive by the enemy is not so disadvantageous to the President as it seems at first. True, he has to feel let down that they made any strong moveat all before his re-election campaign was over. But at least they waited until the U.S. ground potential was nearly nil, and Mr. Nixon can say now to Saigon that he really would like to help out, but he simply does not have the troops to do much.

In fact, the most useful option remaining open to Mr. Nixon at this juncture probably is to pray hard. For only if a series of doubtful "ifs" turn out happily will he be protected from the wrath of that third section of the political spectrum, the rigid American right.

If the South Vietnamese army performs well under full-scale enemy attack, thus justifying the strategy x Vietnamization; if the current enemy offensive is confined to limited objectives in the northernmost province; if any later major thrusts which could endanger the Saigon government are delayed at least until next Nov. 8 — then the President's effort to neutralize the war issue will be a success.

But if not, then Vietnam will be added to China as an irritant to the Republican right wing, and Mr. Nixon will find that the once-promising presence of George Wallace on a third- or fourth-party ticket in the fall will wind up hurting the GOP more than it does the Democrats. That is not the way his original scenario concluded.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Omitted Paragraph Of Letter Makes Clear Which Supervisor

You will recall that on the editorial in the I-J last Friday was a transcript of most of the letter that a lady had written to one of the two incumbent supervisors who are running for re-election. You will also recall that the import of the letter was that because of a credibility gap, she was withdrawing her support of the supervisor addressed.

The editor, in presenting the transcript, said that the first of the four paragraphs, in which she amplified and pinpointed her reasons, was omitted because it dwelt exclusively with the one supervisor's personal acts.

There was so much interest aroused as to which of the two supervisors the letter had been addressed, that I did some research on it. Following is a repeat of the first two short paragraphs of the letter, then the one omitted:

"DEAR MR. (SUPERVISOR): I am writing to request that you not use my name in your campaign since I can no longer support your re-election.

"Although I have been your loyal supporter in the past, agreeing and disagreeing with you honestly and openly, I find some recent events to be of such grave concern it is impossible to continue. I will try to briefly list some of my reasons.

"1. The credibility gap created by your allowing the creation of Flood Control Sub-Zone 9A as a maintenance zone, then permitting capital improvements to be outlined as the responsibility of the sub-zone (see minutes of the Sub-Zone 9A Advisory Board — March through September 1971). Your further stating in your letter to Sleepy Hollow Homes Association last fall, in response to their request to be removed from the sub-zone, that you could not understand where we got the idea capital projects were a considered responsibility of Sub-Zone 9A. You were there at the organizational meeting of the Sub-Zone 9A Advisory Board when the capital improvement projects were outlined as the responsibility of the sub-zone, and at some of the subsequent advisory meetings when these major projects were further reviewed! If, in fact you expected to keep the sub-zone limited to maintenance of debris in creek as originally intended, why did you allow a $6,000 study of the sub-zone improvement needs and charge expenses to the sub-zone?"

(Note: Sub-Zone 9A is to cover maintenance in the unincorporated areas of Ross Valley.)

THIS FROM WEDNESDAY I-J (about the voting on the security continuance at the Civic Center): "Arrigoni, who last week told the Marin Labor Council he supported 'elimination of security as we now have it,' yesterday changed his mind and voted with Baar and McInnis."

It's hard for some who occupy the throne romm out at Brasilia to understand that it is a mistake to think the king can do no wrong. Tenure is a nebulous thing.

It must be sort of tough to abandon your two buddies and your protege, whom you have lauded to the skies and bragged that, "This man knows what Marin County government is and should be and is fair and objective." Goldarn these election years, you always have to run scared. Mister it's bad, no foolin'! Yes siree, it sure is.

In listing the accomplishments of Peter Arrigoni in the editorial last Tuesday, the editor failed to give him credit for inviting the skunks, raccoons, and all the other such varmints to leave their homeland — Golden Gate Park — and partake of our luxuries over here. If you remember Michael Wornum joined him in that endeavor, something like a two-man visitors bureau, as it were. Ain't being a supervisor in Marin grand? All that fun and money too!

'ITT Secrets' Best Seller In Chile

By ARTHUR GOLDEN

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)— "The Secret Documents of the ITT" has become a runaway best-seller in Chile and a money-maker for the government publishing house.

The 80,000-copy "official translation" of alleged confidential papers of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. was virtually sold out soon after it went on sale at midweek.

An official of the state-owned Quimantu Publishing Company said it appeared the government would make a small profit from sales. The 93-page paperbound book costs the equivalent of about 90 cents.

The documents were released in Washington last month by Columnist Jack Anderson. They purport to show how ITT plotted to prevent the inauguration of President Salvador Allende in 1970.

Jaime Suarez, secretary general of the government, said in a foreword to the book that it was the "patriotic debt" of the Allende regime to publish translations of the documents.

"All citizens should consider and analyze the extraordinary gravity of the documents for tha independence, sovereignty and self-determination of our country," he said.

The government mounted a massive campaign to promote sales of the volume. The book includes photocopies of what Anderson described as authentic ITT documents.

Advertisements in progovernment newspapers and radio stations urged Chileans to buy copies of the "extraordinary publication." Giant signs reproducing the book's black and white cover were plastered on newsstands.

Mrs. Nelly Hernandez, who operates a news kiosk a block from the presidential palace, said she sold all her 50 copies of the book within two hours. "I might even read it myself," she said.

Roving vendors did a brisk business outside a downtown movie house showing the sex education film "The Perfect Marriage." They sold dozens of books to moviegoers waiting to enter the theatre.

The government press said the El Mercurio version toned down accusations against the government of President Eduardo Frei, Allende's predecessor. El Mercurio editorially denounced the charge as a "distortion."

The importance of the documents depended on who was reading them. Members of Frei's Christian Democrat party denounced the papers as fiction, designed to distract public attention from Allende's difficulties.

But the magazine Mayoria, also published by Quimantu, said the documents were as important as papers dealing with the founding of Chile by the Spanish conquistadores.

It accurately translates, for example, unflattering references to the Marxist president as a heavy drinker who has "refined and capitalistic tastes" despite calculated appeals to the masses.

At one point, a footnote accurately identifies as Shakespeare the source for a reference in one of the documents to a U.S. official who "loved not wisely but too well."

The only error found in a careful reading of the official translation is in a reference to "Foggy Bottom," the northwest District of Columbia neighborhood where the state department is located.

Driver Is Treated In Two-Car Crash

Matthew Evers, 26, of 28 Lucky Drive, Greenbrae, has been treated at Marin General Hospital for scrapes and bruises received in a two-car accident, hospital authorities reported.

Evers was a passenger in a car driven by Mitchell Andrew Howe, 22, of 96 La Verne Avenue, Mill Valley, which collided with another auto at 12:10 p.m. Wednesday at Almonte Boulevard and Rosemont Avenue, Homestead Valley. Ladislav Eduard Leiterman, 44, of 526 Midvale Way, Mill Valley, was the driver of the other auto, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Industrialist Hits Broadcasts

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton suggested Thursday that Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty be silenced because they "stir up anger and bitterness toward the United States" in Communist nations.

"Let us ask ourselves how we would feel if the Soviets set up a special station in one of our neighboring countries in an attempt to arouse the American citizenry, or some racial or ethnic segment of it, against its government and media," Eaton said in a statement.

"The American people would certainly not for one instant put up with being told what to do and how to do it by an outside power of opposing ideology," he added.

Moratorium On Car Use Is Lifted

The moratorium on using private cars for field trips has been lifted for the remainder of the school year by the San Anselmo School District Board, said Supt. Ivan D. Chappell.

The moratorium was imposed on March 6 because the board felt that the district's insurance policy might not cover accidents with such cars.

The staff had prepared a new policy for the district, but the board rejected it Tuesday night, Chappell said. The staff is to revise and resubmit it to the board at the end of the school year, he said. The board objected to leaving use of private cars to the discretion of principals and teachers.

The board approved hiring three custodians and one part-time clerk under the federal work program. The custodians will get $3.05 per hour and the clerk $2.59 per hour. The federal government will pay 90 per cent and the San Anselmo district 10 per cent of the salaries under a contract that runs through Oct. 30, Chappell said.

Candidate Plans Wine, Cheese, Dancer

A wine, cheese and art festival — complete with belly dancer —will be staged tonight as part of the election campaign of Gerald J. Hood, running for the Mill Valley City Council.

The festival, which will run from 6 to 9 p.m., will be held at the Outdoor Art Club. It is being sponsored by Hood's election committee.

Two School Roles To Be Combined

The Lagunitas School District board has declared it will combine the roles of principal and district superintendent, according to Anna Mae Kondratieff, district secretary. The district now employs Harry Roche as principal of Lagunitas and San Geronimo elementary schools and William E. Johnson as district superintendent.

At a special meeting Wednesday night, the board passed a resolution of intent outlining three areas of administrative responsibility.

The roles of principal and superintendent would be merged, as would the roles of business manager and district secretary. In addition, a post to review curriculum in the district would be established.

A committee was appointed to offer the board a more detailed definition of the three areas of responsibility at its next meeting.

The board's next meeting, scheduled for April 10, was postponed until April 24.
